Long Distance Eye.
How Many Sleep, Forgotten.
Kang Teh's Era.
No Dictator Yet.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

NEWS THAT civilized men, if there were any, would call the only important news, concerns the 200-inch telescope mirror, for which the mould is prepared in the glass works at Corning, N. Y.

This gigantic scientific "eye," seventeen feet wide, will take man's sight and intellect into space four times farther than they have ever before travelled.

If the pouring of melted borosilicate glass, slow polishing and shaping are successful, the $6,000,000 telescope, twice the size of any now existing, will enable men to look at objects one thousand million light years distant from this planet, which means that they will be able to see nebulae "outside universes," from which light started traveling toward this spot one thousand million years ago, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

Multiply the number of seconds in one year by 186,000, multiply the result by one thousand million, and you will know how many miles into space this great "eye" will take the minds and investigations of men.

IT WILL take 200,000 pounds of glass to make this giant mirror, ten hours to pour the molten glass, ten months for it to cool—slow cooling is essential—then months of grinding and shaping. The International Education Board has given the six million to make the great experiment in cosmic exploration.

That seems to us "a large sum," but this country gave ten thousand million, which it won't get back, to help foreigners murder each other, and nearly all thought it was acting patriotically and reasonably.

WHAT WE actually see impresses us. A young woman, in Chicago, twenty-six years old, has just finished her second year in a deep sleep, puzzling doctors, baffling their science. Everybody is interested in that, wonders what the girl's spirit does through the long sleeping hours, whether it is permitted to wander away.

In graveyards are millions that have slept for generations, and everywhere beneath the sod endless other millions are sleeping, never to wake on this earth. Nobody wonders about that, everybody takes it for granted.

You will hear a thousand men discuss the coming Carnera fight for one that discusses immortality and what happens after the mourners have gone home.

PU-YI, Chinese prince, once heir to the imperial throne of China, will emerge from his "period of purification" as "Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo." Confucious says "tranquility and virtue" are necessary in a sovereign, and Pu-Yi's new name, "Kang Teh," means tranquility and virtue.

The years to come in Manchukuo, where Pu-Yi's Manchurian ancestors ruled before they became emperors of China, will be called Kang Teh.

HOW LONG will it last? How long will the able Japanese believe it necessary or worth while to keep up the pretense of independent rule in Manchukuo?

It is interesting to see the power of Japan demonstrated in her ability to set up an emperor on what was Chinese territory, on the edge of angry Russia.

That has not been done since Napoleon made kings of his relatives, dukes and princes of "nobodies," or at least, not since Woodrow Wilson set up various little countries in Europe, carving up old ones.

COL. FRANK B. SHUTTS, in the editorial page of his Miami paper, discussing the President's proposed commission to control radio, telephone, telegraph, says:

"The government must take care not to establish forms of censorships, or the power that wields the force over the wires and the air may likewise decide what the people shall or shall not hear. The issue of liberty remains paramount."

Sometimes liberty oozes away so gradually you hardly know it is going. Up to now, however, this country may congratulate itself upon being managed under democratic forms of government, not ruled arbitrarily by a dictator.

Dictators are the fashion. They are established in Italy, Russia, Germany, Turkey, England, through Lord Rothermere, is reaching out for one, and France seems to need one.

If we can "get by" with a few commissions and a few initials, NRA, CWA, RFC, etc., and avoid dictatorship, we will do well.

WASHINGTON agrees to let Spain send us 1,500,000 gallons of wine and Spain agrees to buy about seventeen million pounds of American tobacco.

Port wine is recommended for the old, in small quantities, when they are no longer able to assimilate claret and other, lighter acid wines.

But California produces excellent port wine, sherry also, and it is well to give American producers as much of the American market as possible.

It would be much better if anybody could get from Spain sherry as good as that once sold in London by Ruskin's father, before some merchants and growers adopted the trick of putting lime on the inside of barrels, to make sherry "dry" and give it a "bite."

Bell 'Phone Sues Over Meter Tax

COLLECTION BAN SOUGHT IN COURT

Other Utilities Likely To Join Fight on City Ordinance

The first legal move by a public utility corporation against the city's $2 meter tax was made today by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

The company, in a bill in equity filed in Common Pleas Court by its counsel, C. F. C. Arensberg, asks a preliminary injunction against the city and Controller James P. Kerr to prevent levying of the tax and the enforcement of any of the provisions of the meter ordinance.

Legal action by other utilities to resist the meter tax is considered certain, the only question being how the battle will be conducted.

ASKS COURT BAN

The Bell Telephone Company asks the court to declare the meter ordinance, which was passed without Mayor McNair's signature, as contrary to the state and national constitutions and as confiscation of property without due process of law.

The company has 50,500 devices known as "message registers" used for recording calls. These would be subject to the $2 tax, according to the bill of complaint and would result in a tax in excess of $100,000.

Discrimination is alleged because it is contended the tax bears more heavily on some meters than others. The $2 tax on the "message registers" which are valued at $3.17 each amounts to 63 per cent of their value as compared with .45 per cent to 24 per cent on other types of meters including electric and gas recorders.

CITES ASSEMBLY ACT

The company contends that the instruments and equipment are represented in the company's capital stock, already taxed by the state.

The special act of Assembly on which the ordinance is based did not confer on the city the right to tax public service companies, it is contended. Taxes should be assessed prior to the January 1 for the ensuing year, and such has not been done by the city in regard to the meters, the complaint avers.

Utility corporations had been asked to file with Controller Kerr a list of the number and location of various meters owned and used by them.

U. S. Relief Set After CWA End

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Coincident with the demobilization of the CWA, set for mid-May, President Roosevelt and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins have completed a new program for carrying on the work of relief for needy and unemployed, it was announced today.

They believe that the $950,000,000 recently supplied by Congress will be sufficient to carry on until the end of this fiscal year, June 30, and the new fiscal year, which starts July 1. Half a billion dollars has been allotted for the new fiscal year.

NEEDY CLASSIFIED

While details remain to be worked out, the President revealed today that the relief population after CWA is demobilized will be classified in three groups:

1—Distressed families in farm areas.

2—So-called "stranded" elements in small communities where industries have disappeared or languished.

3—Unemployed in the large cities.

In the city areas, the President said, work relief would be offered wherever possible, but that where no work could be provided directly, relief would be necessary.

The President said the various municipal organizations in the country would be asked to plan work programs, and that the relief would be carried forward by providing work relief for the needy only. The White House statement said:

"Work will be given to an individual for a period not to ex-

STRIKE BLOCKS HOPKINS FETE

Objection of hotel strikers and welfare workers today resulted in abandonment of plans for a banquet at which city welfare workers were to hear Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, Saturday night.

The banquet was slated for the Hotel William Penn but Southard Hay, city welfare director, said opposition had been expressed because employes at the hotel are on strike.

After a conference with heads of social agencies, hotel representatives and a strikers' committee, Director Hay announced cancellation of the plans.

Hopkins will be here for a conference of the American Public Welfare Association Saturday.

DOUBLE LOVE ADMITTED AT TRIAL

Woman Doctor Says She Admired 2 Men At Same Time

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET,
International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 28.—Cross-examination of Dr. Sara Ruth Dean today brought an admission from the woman that she loved two men at the same time—Dr. J. Preston Kennedy, the man she is accused of murdering, and Capt. Franklin C. Maul, the "mysterious" Delaware River pilot whose very existence the prosecution has questioned.

Revealed as a woman whose love for both men was so strong that it was difficult for her to decide which she would marry, Dr. Dean nevertheless staunchly withstood the barrage of questions hurled at her by Fred Witty, special prosecutor.

FACED WITH LETTER

Confronting her with a letter which she had written Kennedy, in which was enclosed one from Capt. Maul, Witty asked:

"Was that fair to Capt. Maul?"

"Yes. Dr. Kennedy had shown me letters from a woman named 'Jody.'"

"So you loved two men at the same time?"

"An unfortunate situation, but true."

"Enough to marry both?"

"No, only one."

Witty then demanded to know why Dr. Dean did not attempt to see Dr. Kennedy while the surgeon was ill in the Baptist Hospital at Jackson, where he died allegedly from the effects of a poisoned whisky highball. She said:

"I thought he was just getting over a spree or something."

Ship Pilot Denies Plan To Wed Dr. Dean

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The Bulletin today quotes Capt. Franklin C. Maull, a ship pilot of Lewes, Del., as denying that Dr. Sarah Ruth Dena and he planned to wed.

Dr Dean, accused of slaying Dr. John Preston Kennedy, testified yesterday at her trial in Greenwood, Miss., that she broke off her engagement to the physician to marry Capt. Maul, and that Kennedy "threatened to kill us both."

"No word of marriage ever passed between us."

The Delaware river pilot said he had known Dr. Dean for "several months" while she was a physician in a hospital at Lewes.

Carnera-Loughran Battle Postponed

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Rain today forced a postponement until tomorrow night of the world heavyweight title fight between Primo Carnera, the champion, and Challenger Tommy Loughran, which had been scheduled for the Madison Square Garden outdoor arena here tonight.

The fight, it was announced this morning by Promoter James J. Johnson, will be held tomorrow night, with the weighing-in ceremony also being put off until tomorrow afternoon.

McNair Platform High Wages and Low Prices

In serious mood, Mayor William N. McNair today said the "past is a closed book" and announced his platform for Governor in one sentence. It is:

"I stand for high wages and low prices, which can be accomplished through removal of governmental barriers to production and exchange."

Pressed for an explanation of his terse platform, the Mayor added:

"Of course, that can be elaborated upon, but if I am nominated that will be my platform."

He offered no comment of his appended statement:

"The past is a closed book."

TENSION GROWS IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Tension aroused by fear of possible disorders with the expiration of the Nazi "ultimatum" to the government was heightened today by belated reports of shooting on the Austro-German border.

Government leaders said they expected no spectacular developments as a result of the "ultimatum" delivered February 19 by Theodore Habicht, exiled leader of the Austrian Nazis.

In a speech broadcast from Munich, Habicht gave Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss until noon today to take the Austrian Nazis into the government or face a "renewed fight."

Vienna was unusually quiet. There were no demonstrations or disturbances.

Pro-government observers hailed the stillness as a demonstration of the government's strength. Nazi sympathizers said it was "a Nazi demonstration of silence against Habicht."

Poland Set On Holding Corridor

Editor's Note — Poland will never give up the Polish Corridor without fighting, H. R. Knickerbocker writes after visiting Gdynia, the magic city that has sprung up since the World War, in the fifteenth of his articles on "Will War Come."

GDYNIA, Poland, Feb. 28.—Poland will never give up the Corridor to Germany. Germany today has a truce with Poland. But if Germany wants permanent peace with Poland she will have to relinquish her claims to the corridor. If Germany wants the corridor, she will have to conquer Poland to get it.

This today is the strongest impression on a visit to the most remarkable city in Europe, here in the center of that Corridor, which for 15 years has been notorious as one sure cause of the war to come. The city is the only one in Europe not touched by the depression, the only city

HUNT 10TH BODY IN TRAIN WRECK

Search for James R. Glover, of Industry, Pa., as a possible tenth victim of the North Side railroad wreck was being made today by Pennsylvania Railroad authorities.

He was en route from Rochester, Pa., to Pittsburgh, his ultimate destination being the Civilian Conservation Camp near Philipsburg, Pa. His overcoat and battered grip containing letters addressed to him were found in the wrecked train.

Railroad officials informed Coroner McGregor no trace of Glover had been found. They said he may have emerged from the wreck not badly hurt and hitch-hiked to Philipsburg. No one by that name is in any hospital here. Wreckage was still being combed. The young man's parents were reported here seeking him.

The mass was sung by Cardinal Sincero, while the pontiff sat on the papal throne.

EX-SENATOR IS NAMED ALSO IN QUIZ

$15,000 Asked for Services to Air Company

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Ernest W. Smoot, son of former Senator Smoot, of Utah, told Senate air mail investigators today that he represented Western Air Express in Washington in 1930, while receiving $3,325 a year as clerk of the Senate finance committee.

Smoot agreed with James G. Woolley, former vice president of Western Air, that his job was to keep in touch with the Comptroller General, who had held up payment on a mail contract, and to "contact" members of the House postoffice committee.

SMOOT HIRED

Woolley told the committee yesterday his firm hired Ernest Smoot as a Washington representative when a contract was held up.

The Senator's son was retained, Woolley said, when Comptroller General McCarl held up payments on the middle continental route contract on the ground it was not let to the low bidder.

After McCarl rescinded his order, Ernest Smoot sent his bill for $15,000 "for the specific services you instructed me on November 13 to perform in Washington."

Woolley said postoffice department officials had said the contract would not be awarded without word from Senator Smoot and Representative Tilson.

Woolley also introduced a telegram purportedly written to the company by Ernest Smoot in which it was said that "if nothing happens next week, my father and I will see McCarl again."

Smoot, testifying in a voice scarcely audible at times, asserted his father had taken the contract up with Brown once.

A letter purportedly written by Senator Smoot to McCarl dated December 12, 1930, said certain of his constituents had asked that a decision in the T. W. A. contract be "expedited."

Smoot agreed that the Comptroller General on January 10 reversed his previous decision on the basis of additional facts. The unsuccessful bidder had proposed a rate of 64 per cent of the maximum allowed, whereas T. W. A.'s bid had been 97½ per cent, various witnesses had previously testified.

Senator Smoot refused to sign a letter to McCarl, drafted by Western Air Express, which would have urged the comptroller general to

Blast Hurts 3 CWA Men, Officer

Three CWA workers and a traffic patrolman were injured this afternoon when gases exploded in a manhole over which they had built a fire.

The injured were Patrolman Walter Long, Charles Dunn, 40, of 7018 Chaucer street; Donald Mostrianni, 33, of 12 Fernando street, and Harvey Romak, 42, of 228 Gilmore way. All were burned and treated at Mercy Hospital where their conditions were reported not serious.

Force of the explosion hurtled the manhole cover about 40 feet in the air against a telephone pole, ripped off Long's badge and hat and tore Dunn's coat into shreds, according to Long.

More Drunken Driving Here Since Repeal

Drivers and pedestrians under the influence of liquor are becoming an increasing menace, since repeal, Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, emphasized today.

He said:

"The large proportion of accidents occurring between midnight and 6 a. m. assumes deep significance when coupled with the number of drivers under the influence of liquor. Unquestionably it is becoming a vital factor in traffic accidents.

"The drunken pedestrian is also becoming a problem."

Thirty-six drivers were reported under the influence of liquor in January as compared with two for the same month last year, McIntyre said.

Fifteen fatalities occurred in Pittsburgh last month compared with six for January, 1933, the figures show. Pedestrian deaths accounted for the entire increase McIntyre urges more severe penalties for reckless drivers and those under the influence of liquor.

Man Runs Over Coaster, Finds Own Son Victim

CHARLEROI, Feb. 28.—Run over by his own father, Kenneth Cotton, 12, was in Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today trying to comfort his dad with assurances he "wasn't hurt a bit."

The father, Louis Cotton, manager of a chain grocery in Monessen, had helped pick up the unconscious boy last night after his car ran over him. The boy was coasting. Cotton did not know it was his own son until they reached a physician's office.

And this morning when shown X-ray pictures of his son's fractured left hip and broken left leg, the father fainted in the hospital.

Mr. Cotton was driving along Lincoln avenue when he saw a group of boys coasting down Ninth street. He stopped and waited until he thought all had passed. As he started his car again, a sled shot out of the darkness and darted directly underneath the car. The rear wheels passed over the boy on the sled.

PROTESTS AGAINST NRA RENEWED BEFORE GEN. JOHNSON

CODES CALLED UNFAIR TO BUSINESS

Administrator Holds 5 Hearings on Complaints

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The NRA, belabored lustily in the first sessions of Hugh S. Johnson's "great roundup" of criticism, stepped out today and took some more.

Five separate hearings for complaints went on full blast, with a hundred men and women lined up to take the places of the more than a score who yesterday denounced and suggested changes; flinging at NRA a barrage of what Johnson terms "dead cats."

Officials, however, hope for something new. Except in a few conspicuous instances, they held yesterday's sessions had brought forth only the same "dead cats" that had been thrown before.

COMPLAINTS VOICED

Among the statements voiced at meetings are these:

That NRA boosts costs.

That the small business man should be protected better.

That cut-throat competition is not sufficiently outlawed.

That some codes tend toward monopoly.

That the maximum work week should be 30 hours.

That unconstitutional acts are committed under NRA.

That union men are discriminated against in some cases, and workers "exploited" by employers.

That women should be permitted to continue industrial home work.

That industrial home work should be abolished.

Among the prominent people who registered their thoughts with NRA were:

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who urged consideration for small book stores and groceries.

Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, who wants small business protected better.

BREAKDOWN CHARGED

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, who wired after a tour:

"There is utter breakdown of NRA enforcement machinery in all parts of the country I have visited."

Under the sweeping generalities a few men and women brought forward claims of painful hardship and injustice, presented with a show of deep sincerity which drew from the presiding officials promises of quick investigation into the charges.

Johnson himself went about from meeting to meeting, timing his visits to each of the sessions to catch the known "tough ones."

Today, Mrs. Mary W. Dewson, of New York, representing the National Consumers' League, asserted that unless "wholesale chiseling" by employers were stopped the recovery program would be destroyed.

Mrs. Dewson, presenting a summary of studies in 25 states made by her organization, cited "the settled evasions and outright violations" she said were used to defeat NRA's purposes.

Failure to readjust the wages of skilled workers to the shortened work week, so that many are now getting $10 less a week than before NRA, was the first case cited. Others included:

Much increased application of the "stretch-out" system; designating workers as executives to avoid hour limitations; using wage exemptions for apprentices to hire cheap help; discharging these as soon as the learning period has expired; manipulating time clocks to work longer hours than allowed; enforced payless holidays made up by overtime, and deductions from pay envelopes for every conceivable excuse, including even charging waitresses for the pencils used.

NRA Held Success By Pa. Labor Head

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte Carr, State Secretary of Labor, says the NRA, judging from its effects in Pennsylvania, "already is a success."

A half million persons in Pennsylvania have been put to work through the NRA and it has raised average weekly wages from $15 to $18, she said here last night.

Limit on Foreign Actors Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Two bills designed to limit the number of foreign actors and singers entering this country were approved today by the House Immigration Committee.

30-HOUR WEEK HIT BY WEIR

A warning against the 30-hour week because it would increase the cost of production was voiced by E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, last night at a banquet of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania.

Addressing more than 600 persons, he said:

"In view of the fact that there are still a great number of people unemployed, a very active movement already has been started for a compulsory 30-hour week. On the face of it, rather plausible arguments are advanced that this will put more men back to work. I know nothing has been proposed that requires more careful investigation and consideration because unquestionably the cost of production will be materially increased through this reduction in hours.

"If a 30-hour week gives more persons work, why not a 20-hour week or less, which would give even more employment?"

And then, answering himself, he said:

"Personally, I think our efforts should be toward enabling people to buy more, to consume more, to share more in profits, rather than to produce less. I think a dose of castor oil is a good thing once in a while, but one cannot live on it."

REPUBLIC SIGNS MINE PACT

Officials of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, Youngstown, O., and the United Mine Workers of America yesterday signed a contract covering wages and working conditions in the "captive" mines of the company in Western Pennsylvania, according to P. T. Fagan, district president of the union.

Terms of the contract are similar to pacts already agreed to by coal mining subsidiaries of the United States Steel, Jones and Laughlin and Inland Steel concerns in which union miners were granted the privilege of the checkoff of union dues and other concessions.

LINK DEBT TALK TO ROOSEVELT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A rumor that President Roosevelt is now negotiating a further reduction in foreign debt payments was given currency in the Senate this afternoon during a sharp debate on the Robinson resolution, asking the executive to report all steps taken so far toward slicing the debts.

The resolution was sponsored by Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Indiana, who declared the taxpayers were entitled to know whether Mr. Roosevelt was negotiating any new debt agreement.

It was opposed by Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, the majority leader, who denounced it as a political move to embarrass the President.

Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, supported the resolution, declaring the people should be given all debt information "not incompatible with the public interest."

ANSWER FILED BY MULDOWNEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Representative Michael J. Muldowney, Republican, of the Thirty-second Pennsylvania District, whose election in November, 1932, was contested by Mrs. Anne E. Felix, Democratic candidate, yesterday filed his brief with the clerk of the House in answer to the allegations of the contestant.

A period of 30 days is granted Mrs. Felix to make answer and the case will be referred to the Committee on Elections of the House.

The brief submitted by Mrs. Felix is notable as the most voluminous document ever submitted in an election contest in the 145 years since the first session of Congress.

With the arguments, authorities quoted and the appendix embracing testimony, it contains 288 printed pages, much of which is in newspaper type. Its contents largely are a resume of the testimony before the Elections Bureau last year.

EXTEND BANK'S MONEY RIGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House the Fletcher Bill extending for one year from March 3, the time in which Federal Reserve banks may use United States bonds as security for federal reserve notes.

The bill had been reported unanimously by the banking committee and Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, called it up immediately the Senate met.

FIRM TO CALL JOHNSTON BACK

Stockholders of the Keystone Driller Company today had paved the way for re-election of Leslie M. Johnston, Pittsburgh public works director, as president of the company.

A group of stockholders objected to Johnstn's holding the presidency after his appointment to the city office. He was not re-elected a director at a recent meeting, and thus became ineligible for the presidency.

The stockholders were told at a meeting in Beaver Falls last night that Pittsburgh banking interests want Johnston reinstated on the board of directors. The company is indebted to the First National Bank at Pittsburgh and the closed Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A.

The stockholders decided last nightt hat one of their four representatives on the board should resign when the directors meet late today in order to comply with the request of the banking interests. A new plan of refinancing the company was discussed and a committee authorized to investigate it.

VOTE CASE GOES TO JURY

The fate of six election officials charged with falsifying records in the 1932 election in the Second District, Third Ward, was placed in the hands of a jury in Federal Court shortly before noon today.

The defendants are Dewey Budwey, judge; Richard Burgundy and John J. Juliana, inspectors; Michael Cozza and Francis Haeck, clerks of the board, and H. S. Mahfood, Republican district chairman and watcher.

Immediately after the case was given to the jury, the twelfth and last election fraud trial for this term was begun before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. Four election officials of the Eighth District, Third Ward, and two non-board defendants are to be tried.

They are James Macri, judge; James A. Ventrone and James Collins, Negro, inspectors, and M. J. Ventrone, clerk. Sam Mattes, said to be a county employe, and John Stabile, are the non-board defendants. John Cunningham, election constable, who was to go on trial, is in Homeopathic Hospital with a broken leg and will be tried later.

ceed six months. This is in order that it may not be considered, or utilized, as a permanent method of support.

"Every effort will be made to continue opportunities for work for the professional groups in need—teachers, engineers, architects, nurses and others."

Mr. Roosevelt explained that the percentage of federal money, compared to state and municipal funds, which would be thrown into the relief program, has not yet been worked out. Wherever possible, the cities and states will be expected to carry their share of the burden. In some cases, however, the federal contribution will necessarily run high.

PROGRAM EXPLAINED

The program of attack on the problems of the rural needy, Mr. Roosevelt explained, was a part of the agricultural program. Efforts to help these people will be directed towards removing them from dependence upon a single cash crop.

The aim will be to bring these farmers into a program of diversified crops and opportunities to earn cash incomes through part time or seasonal employment in small industrial enterprises.

Solution of the relief problem for the so-called "stranded" population lies in removing them to other localities. The White House statement had this to say concerning this phase of relief:

"It is planned to explore this difficult situation and, in collaboration with the subsistence homestead division of the Department of the Interior, and with other federal and local agencies, devise and apply definite remedial measures which will affect an appreciable number of these families.

"These measures will be directed first at maintenance of small tracts of land, and then at the development of supplemental industrial opportunities to provide for a normal standard of living."

CWA TO DROP 2,800 WEEKLY

Slow but sure death for the CWA in Allegheny County, after a temporary spurt in employment, impended today following announcement by officials that 2,800 men are to be slashed from the payrolls here weekly.

Orders to reduce employment came from Harrisburg following an attempt by James L. Stuart, county administrator, to increase the number of job-holders here. Eric H. Biddle, state CWA head, had already approved the hiring of 4,000 additional men and Stuart hoped for further approvals.

The local office intends to rush action on new projects in order that the payroll may be increased to the approved size before demobilization begins next week.

Workers will be released according to their economic status and the urgency of the job on which they are employed, according to Charles Mayfield, chief CWA engineer for the county.

He said many projects are now approaching their natural conclusion, and numerous employes automatically will be discharged as the jobs end.

If the reduction program is followed, all CWA projects will cease May 1.

WELFARE ROW FLARES

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Controversy between the Department of Welfare and members of the county poor boards was carried into the open today, with the directors replying to what they termed criticisms from the "charity racket."

Answering charges of inefficiency and expense hurled from the Pennsylvania Conference for Social Workers in Lancaster, Russell E. H. Romberger, secretary of the Association of Directors of the poor and Charities and Corrections, said the directors' records are open to "scrutiny of any taxpayer."

He attacked Mrs. Alice Liveright, secretary of the Department of Welfare, and Arthur Bunham, president of the Social Workers, both of whom spoke at the conference.

Both assailed the Pennsylvania poor board system. Mrs. Liveright predicting the directors will be replaced by appointive officers. She said the present set-up is "inefficient and costly."

Heart Attack Kills Gibson, Steel Official

Charles I. Gibson, 56, manager of the Guernsey plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, died of a heart attack in Cambridge, O., last night, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Besides his wife, Mrs. Gibson leaves a son, Arthur, of New Kensington, who is employed in the office of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company here.

ROOSEVELT'S PLANS FOUGHT IN CONGRESS

Filibuster on Naval Bill Threatens In Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The smooth, matched strides of Congress and the White House were broken today.

Democratic leaders, struggling to bring the executive and legislative branches back into step, ran smack into opposing sentiment.

A Senate filibuster was in the making against enactment this session of the half-billion-dollar naval construction bill.

House Democratic chieftains, with a veto-threatened upset of the Economy Act on their hands, called a conference for tonight to find a way out. The upset came yesterday, when the Senate voted to restore large benefits for war veterans and federal pay cuts—which would mean a total expense of about $350,000,000. A veto by the White House is threatened.

Prior to receiving any word from the White House, House leaders were uncertain today as to their course. House sentiment in favor of helping veterans has considerable strength.

One thing leaders decided tentatively, however, was to postpone any immediate action on the Senate revision of the independent offices bill, now loaded with the new benefits for veterans and federal employes.

The House-approved bill to bring the Navy to treaty limits—already the Senate's unfinished business for almost two weeks—was due for more buffeting about.

DAVIS EXPLAINS BONUS VOTE

Senator James J. Davis feels today that he did World War veterans a "signal service" by voting against the Long amendment providing immediate payment of the bonus.

Senator Davis said, in part, last night:

"In face of the President's warning that he would veto the bonus, I felt assured the Pennsylvania veterans would support me in my action. A veto would have meant not only defeat of the appropriation to operate the independent offices, but also of the restoration of the federal pay, Spanish-American War veterans' pensions and World War veterans liberalized compensation."

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Henry Grab, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, today issued a statement here denying that Frank L. Lynch, Philadelphia County commander, had charged Gov. Gifford Pinchot with "playing peanut politics" with the soldiers bonus distribution.

Lynch was quoted as making the charge from Philadelphia several days ago.

CASH FOR BONUS READY MARCH 12

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis says $30,000,000 will be available for bonus payments to Pennsylvania war veterans March 12, and the first checks will be mailed about three days later.

The successful bidder on the first block of bonds will turn that amount over to the state at that time. The remainder of the $50,000,000 issue will be floated as additional funds are needed.

About half of the 400,000 applications expected already have been received, Davis says.

Bids on the first bonds are to be received today.

SENATOR HITS EXCHANGE BILL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—If necessary, the Federal Trade Commission would be able to step in and run the stock exchange, under the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, Thomas G. Corcoran, counsel for the RFC, told the Senate Banking Committee today.

Senator Kean (Rep.), of New Jersey, vigorously opposed granting this power to the federal body. Kean also termed as "blackmail" a section of the bill which would legalize civil damage suits against brokers for a long period after fraud is discovered.

35,000 P. R. R. Men Ask Pay Increase

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Representatives of 35,000 craft employes of the Pennsylvania system voted at a meeting here yesterday to request a 10 per cent increase in their basic pay instead of accepting a 15 per cent proposed by the railroad management.

L. M. Graham, of Pittsburgh, their spokesman, said he expects to confer with officials of the railroad in Philadelphia, March 7.

ESTHER RALSTON

ACTRESS' MATE DROPS SUIT

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—Divorce plans of Esther Ralston, featured screen actress, became uncontested today with the withdrawal by her husband, George Webb, publicity man, of the complaint he filed 20 minutes behind that of his wife in Superior Court Monday.

Webb declared that the almost simultaneous filing was a mistake, explaining that he believed Miss Ralston intended for him to start the action.

His withdrawal followed a conference of attorneys late yesterday. A property settlement also was made.

SMOOT'S SON IN AIR QUIZ

accept the T. W. A. bid because it would serve the interest of "public safety."

LETTER INTRODUCED

A letter from Woolley to young Smoot was introduced, saying:

"We'd like to have your father use his very important influence."

Another said the company regarded "yourself and your father as one of our major assets."

Western Air Express refused to pay his $15,000 bill, and he received only $2,500 for his services, Smoot said.

EX-SENATOR IN DENIAL

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Former Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate at the time air mail contracts were under negotiation in 1930, today branded as "an absolute falsehood" testimony of James G. Woolley that he had obtained the Senator's influence in behalf of a contract for the Western Air Express. The former Senator said:

"I don't know Mr. Woolley and I don't remember that I ever met him."

He made the statement at his office at the headquarters of the Latter Day Saints Church. Ex-Senator Smoot is a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the church.

Mr. Smoot declared he knew nothing of any connection his son may have had with Western Air.

Army Plane Crashes On Air Mail Mission

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Lieut. Berril Walsh today had escaped injuries when his Army observation plane, returning from Salt Lake City for air mail service, "cracked up" while landing at Grand Central airport at Glendale.

How Lieut. Walsh happened to land at Grand Central instead of the United Airport at Burbank, the regular port, was not explained.

SCHOOL HEADS HIT POLITICAL INFLUENCE

Adopt Five-Point Program Demanding Better Conditions

By S. CARLYLE ADAMS,
International News Correspondent

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 28.—Commending President oRosevelt and Congress for their efforts to abolish child labor and to safeguard child health, the 6,000 members of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association today adopted a five-point program for American education, demanding that the control of schools be removed from political and class influence.

These policies were contained in the official resolutions of the body adopted at the annual convention here.

The resolutions were presented by Dr. E. E. Oberholtzer, who, tomorrow, will become the new president of the Department of Superintendence, comprising city and stat epublic school officials and college administrators from all parts of the country.

The five-pointp rogram, designed as the new American educational program, is summarized, briefly, as follows:

1—An opportunity for every child to receive educational training in school from early childhood to the age at which employment "is socially desirable" and for continued adult education as social conditions require.

2—For every classroom a competent teacher who shall be maintained on an economic level sufficient to render broad professional service.

3—For every school system a school board which is independent of political and class control, "responsive to the will of the people, with freedom to develop efficiently, economically and impartially all policies in support of an adequate school program."

4—Adequate revenue from a properly adjusted tax system, sufficient to support the school program without restricting adequate opportunities for all children.

5—State support of schools, supplemented by non-control federal aid sufficient to permit every district to maintain an acceptable minimum program of education, yet safeguarding local initiative and autonomy in every local district which can function effectively in the conduct of its schools.

It was the sentiment of the school heads that if federal support is given to poverty-stricken school districts, a safeguard must be provided that educational freedom must not be hampered.

CRASH PERILS ARMY FLIER

Lieut. W. I. Sanders, of the United States Army Air Corps, narrowly escaped injury yesterday when he was forced to bring his plane down in a field near Rockwood, Pa., according to an International News report.

He was en route from Washington to Cleveland with the mail, and was scheduled to stop at the County Airport at 1:20 yesterday, 20 minutes before the crash occurred.

Lieut. Sanders said he developed engine trouble at an altitude of 2,000. He landed in a snow bank and damaged the landing gear and propeller of his plane. The mail remained intact, and was forwarded here by train.

ROOSEVELT IN AIR PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt canvassed the unsettled air mail situation at a lengthy conference today but detailed planning for return of this service to private contractors was deferred pending another session soon.

Postmaster General Farley headed the group, which included other postoffice and Army officials.

S. A. R. Chief Calls Foes Of Defense Traitors

By a Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Speaking at the annual dinner of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at the Plaza Hotel last night, Arthur M. McCrillis, national president of the organization, denounced opponents of adequate national defense as "Benedict Arnolds of the Constitution."

McCrillis, who devoted his address mostly to national defense, added:

"The Benedict Arnolds are the ones who would weaken our national defense.

"Those who oppose continuation of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and other national defense measures are traitors to the Constitution.

"War cannot be legislated out of existence. It can be kept out only by a strong national defense."

McCrillis voiced his organization's praise and indorsement of the uncensored war pictures and editorials on national defense appearing in the Hearst newspapers. He said:

"The Hearst newspapers deserve much praise for fighting those whom I consider the modern Benedict Arnolds of our Constitution.

"Our organization falls wholeheartedly in line with the ideals inspired by the war pictures and editorials."

He added that the campaign of the Hearst newspapers for adequate national defense is an "outstanding example of patriotism."

Expert on Blind Flying Faces Court-Martial

International News Service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 28.—Courtmartial proceedings against Maj. William C. Ocker, internationally famous expert on blind flying, opened at Fort Sam Houston today as Army officials put the veteran pilot "on the carpet" for alleged insubordination to superiors.

The charges against Maj. Ocker were preferred by Lieut. Col. Henry A. Clagett, Kelly Field commandant.

Maj. Clyde C. Johnston, senior flight surgeon, testified that Maj. Ocker was grounded as the result of a physical examination. The pilot asked for an examination later and requested two physicians be present.

Maj. Johnson testified that Maj. Ocker said:

"If other pilots on this field, namely Col. Clagett, were given more than cursory examination, they, too, would be off the flying field."

Maj. Johnston further testified Maj. Ocker charged "there was a collusion" between Col. Clagett and Johnston relative to Ocker's physical examination.

Maj. Ocker, a pioneer in the development of blind flying, is now 58, but tall and erect. He entered an emphatic plea of "not guilty."

PRIZE DOG 'KIDNAPED' AT SHOW, HELD FOR $500 RANSOM

OWNER FEARS BOSTON BULL WILL DIE

Mystery Message By Phone Demands Cash Be Paid

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—The fantastic story of a dog held for $500 ransom confronted police today.

Awaiting the dog's return following a series of negotiations is Louis Rudginsky, a tire merchant of Boston, Mass., who revealed that his dog, Kid Boots, 18-month-old prize Boston terrier, has been in the hands of abductors

Kid Boots was seized at the conclusion of the Western Boston Terrier Club annual show in a Loop hotel. The dog had just won first prize for males.

Monday morning a man's voice on the telephone informed Rudginsky:

"We have your dog. We want $500 to give it back."

Rudginsky accepted the matter as hoax, scoffing at the demand, but last night he was told by another caller to name a friend through whom the kidnapers could deal.

Rudginsky, almost in a state of collapse, said today:

"The dog will die if I do not get him back soon. The long trip here weakened him, and I have had to give him medicine constantly. Several years ago I lost my fortune which amounted to over a million dollars, but it did not affect me as much as this does."

$900,000 FIRE LAID TO BOY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The blame for the $900,000 fire which recently wiped out the State Arsenal, today was placed on 10-year-old Cecil Kiper, a fourth grade schoolboy.

The boy confessed late yesterday, Gov. Henry Horner announced, that he had tossed a lighted paper bag against the stage curtain in the arsenal's auditorium, starting the fire, but insisted that he had not meant to do it. He went home after starting the fire last November 18, but returned to watch it when fire-fighting apparatus began arriving on the scene.

Mrs. Roy Nicholson, the boy's mother, asserted her son told her that he had told officials he fired the building, only after they had offered him a quarter to say so. He denied to her, she said, that he had done so, and she said she would take the matter before Gov. Horner herself.

20 of 500 Marooned On Ice Reach Shore

MOSCOW, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Twenty of 500 Soviet fishermen adrift in the Caspian Sea on treacherous ice floes reached shore safely today near Port Alexandrovsky.

A Soviet rescue plane located two groups of 55 and 33 castaways, landed on the ice, and left food and medical supplies calculated to hold them over until final rescue can be effected.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure that caused the cold weather over this section during the past several days is now centered over Eastern Virginia, and covers the Atlantic Coast states. In the West, a low is centered over Arizona, and there is another center over Manitoba, the two centers connected by a trough formation across the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains. This low pressure is causing a general rising temperature condition over the states east of the Rocky Mountains, and light rain or snow over the southern states west of the Mississippi. Temperature will rise slowly over this section during the next few days.

River Conditions.

The extremely cold weather last night intensified the frozen condition of the main rivers and their tributaries in the Pittsburgh district. The ice on the Fourth pool Allegheny River is now 10 inches thick; on the Fifth pool, 14 inches, and above the Fifth pool 15 inches. On the Monongahela pools the ice is seven inches thick from Lock No. 4 up. In the Pittsburgh harbor the ice ranges from two inches to six inches thick, and in the pools between Pittsburgh and Wheeling ice ranges from 6 to 10 inches thick. Temperatures in the Allegheny Valley ranged from 20 to 30 degrees below zero this morning, and in the Monongahela Valley from 10 to 20 degrees below. At Dam No. 2, Ohio River, the temperature was 12 degrees below zero.

A Story of Mighty Force

A picture story, mute but convincing, that tells of the great forces that wrought disaster when the P. R. R. Akron-Pittsburgh flier wrecked. Look at that interior. How could anyone survive? Look at these mighty cars, torn and twisted masses. Captions? Pictures such as these need no captions.

SEEK 10TH BODY IN WRECKAGE OF TRAIN

mission, joined Guy R. Johnson, Public Service Commission representative, were here today and examined the wreckage. They said they will remain here indefinitely.

The Federal investigators are H. E. Nason, Robert Tonkin and H. D. Lyon, who came from Washington this morning. Johnson arrived from Harrisburg last night.

The investigators were to receive reports from railroad officials and engineers and make a study of the wreckage in an effort to establish the cause of the catastrophe.

The wrecked locomotive was lifted from the debris in Merchant street, North Side. Two cars, one a Pullman, were lifted yesterday, permitting recovery of the bodies of the engine crew.

That the train was traveling at unusually high speed is agreed among a majority of passengers and witnesses. Estimates ranged from 35 to 70 miles an hour.

'FASTEST RIDE'

M. A. Jones, sporting goods salesman of Chicago, said it was "the fastest ride I ever got or ever wanted." He estimated the speed of the train "at least 70 miles an hour."

M. N. Brown, porter, of New York, who has been making the Akron run regularly for 14 years, estimated the speed at 35 miles an hour. He said:

"The train had too much speed when it hit the curve."

Coroner W. J. McGregor, scoffing at one explanation of a "frozen" switch as the cause, said he believed it was due to "something going wrong with the switch after the front wheels of the engine passed over it." He said:

"I believe the switch was properly set. The switch light, so far as I have been able to learn, was properly set. As the front truck wheels of the engine passed over the switch, something unforeseen happened. It possibly was caused by the flange of the driving wheel on the right side spreading the switch."

The body of Engineer William M. Shaw, New Castle, was found late yesterday. A son, Russell E. Shaw, of New Castle, claimed the body at the morgue last night.

Only one unidentified body remained in the morgue today. It is that of a Negro woman, believed to be a resident of Eastern Ohio.

BODIES MOVED

The body of F. R. Dravo, president of the Dravo Contracting Company, was taken to a Sewickley undertaking establishment, later being removed to the Dravo home. Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, wife of the assistant to the general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was identified at the morgue and today was to be removed to Sewickley.

Dravo's desire to be in Washington an hour earlier caused him to board the train in Sewickley. He was en route to the capital to discuss government contracts. He telephoned the Pennsylvania Railroad for a reservation Monday afternoon. He was told he could board a Pullman at Sewickley and go straight through to Washington, arriving at 9 a. m.

He preferred, however, to reach the capital at 8 a. m., even though he had to change trains at Pittsburgh, so he took the earlier train.

A man not previously reported injured was C. S. Thompson, of 574 Monroe street, Gary, Ind., who received treatment for minor hurts in the Allegheny General Hospital.

WRECK CREWS TOIL

All night long wreck crews toiled in the debris. They searched diligently for valuables left behind by passengers, taking all personal effects to the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad claim agent. Into a huge bonfire they tossed worthless and damaged effects, making notes for later claims from the owners.

By late today it was expected by railroad officials that the entire wreck would be cleared up. The damaged bridge, the D. L. Clark building, a corner torn off, and a section of torn up track were all that remained for the curious who again today thronged the district.

WRECK YIELDS LUGGAGE

Funeral expenses of the dead and hospital bills of the injured in the Merchant street train wreck will be paid by the Pennsylvania Railroad, a spokesman said today.

Claim agents representing the railroad visited the injured yesterday in some of the hospitals.

In the Pennsylvania Station, the traveling bags, overcoats and other possessions of the victims were piled high. These will be kept until claimed.

A religious book entitled "I Follow the Road" was found in the death car. One penciled paragraph was headed, "The Comedy of Terrors."

Other items, still strewn about the debris, included a woman's shoe; two pair of men's overshoes, a woman's stocking, a jar of cold cream, a broken hand mirror, a necktie and a movie magazine.

The suitcase of Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, who was killed, was recovered from the day coach late yesterday.

SEWICKLEY MAN SPARED FROM P. R. R. CRASH

Alertness of Clerks Causes J. W. Cree, Jr., To Change Trains

Alertness of clerks at the Sewickley station saved J. W. Cree, Jr., manager of the Denny estate and chairman of the national NRA real estate code committee, from being a victim of the disastrous North Side wreck.

On their advice he waited for the New Yorker, Chicago to New York flyer, instead of boarding the ill-fated Akron-Pittsburgh express, and catching another New York train at Pennsylvania station.

Cree had chatted at the Sewickley station with his fellow-townsmen, F. R. Dravo and Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, who took the Akron train 15 minutes before he boarded the New Yorker. He passed the scene of the wreck at the Merchant street viaduct on the North Side, not knowing they had been killed.

FEARED VICTIM

He had telephoned his wife before leaving Sewickley that his train was late, but didn't mention what train. When word of the disaster spread, all hospitals were called for trace of him. He was to have taken the Akron train.

His office force wired Montclair, N. J., where he had an appointment yesterday morning, for trace of him. However, he had read of the wreck in the newspapers and telegraphed Mrs. Cree he was safe. Today he was in Washington attending a meeting of the code committee.

PULLMAN SHIFTED

Cree had taken reservations on the Manhattan Limited which ordinarily stops at Sewickley. This train, however, had been rerouted over the Panhandle division because of a wreck at Sandusky, O., the night before. His sleeper had been switched to the New Yorker. Clerks at the Sewickley station, learning of this, advised Cree to wait for the New Yorker, although it was an hour and 15 minutes late, reaching Sewickley at 9:30 p. m., the time of the North Side wreck.

'BIRTHDAY' BABY BORN TO JOAN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—An eight-pound daughter was born yesterday to Joan Bennett, screen actress, on the anniversary of her 24th birthday. Miss Bennett is the wife of Gene Markey, film writer.

The new arrival will be named Melinda Markey. Miss Bennett has another daughter by a previous marriage, Diana Fox, who observed her fourth birthday last Thursday.

P.R.R. Flyer Derailed At East St. Louis

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The locomotive and baggage car of the Pittsburgh section of the Pennsylvania train "Spirit of St. Louis" were derailed at Willows, near here yesterday, with no injury to passengers or crew.

Pennsylvania officials said the train, bound for St. Louis, was carrying only about eight passengers, who were taken into St. Louis on another train.

Verona Girl Burned By Spaghetti Dies

Burns received when she spilled a bowl of spaghetti on her neck and face caused the death of Miss Amedo Loggie, 19, in her home, 453 West Railroad street, Verona, last night, according to a Coroner's report. The accident occurred in her home Monday.

Sun-Telegraph Photos of Wreck Made Official

Praising the Sun-Telegraph photographs of the North Side train wreck as the "most remarkable pictures of a disaster," Coroner W. J. McGregor today attached the pictures to the official county record.

They will be used to aid the Coroner's jury in visualizing the wreck, he said. The inquest will be delayed so that all facts uncovered by other investigations may be placed before the jury at the same time.

McGregor said:

"I don't believe I have ever seen photographs which so truly tell the story of a disaster in such a striking and exact fashion.

"The size of the photographs and clarity of detail permits their use in explaining just what happened. They will be of great assistance in visualizing the story of the wreck when it is told to a Coroner's jury at the inquest which will eventually result in a verdict as to how these nine wreck victims met their deaths.

"The inquest will be held as soon as we can place before the jury all reports of various investigations representing the state and the railroad."

ROBBER RAIDS ZOO SNAKES

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Someone stole nine rare snakes from the reptile house at Bronz Zoo.

To get them, the thief had to jimmy open the window of the snake house late at night and thread his way through hundreds of venomous, hissing serpents. The snakes had no financial value. Why were they taken?

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, nationally-known curator of reptiles, believes the nocturnal prowler was a madman.

FUMES KILL 1, OVERCOME 2

One man was dead and two others were in the Allegheny General Hospital today, victims of carbon monoxide fumes.

James O'Neil, 50, of 256 Robinson street, died last night after resuscitation efforts failed. He was found unconscious in his garage.

Henry Rush, 21, and Gottlieb Kramer, 22, both of Chicago, were overcome as they slept in the cab of their truck at Anderson and Lacock streets. They were revived at the hospital.

Black Watch Chief In World War Dies

FINTRAY HOUSE, Aberdeenshire, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Baron Sempill, 71, died of pneumonia today. He had never fully recovered from the spine wounds he received in France at the battle of Loos, September 25, 1915, when he was a colonel in command of the Eighth Battalion of the famous Black Watch.

His son, Col. William Francis Forbes-Sempill, the master of Sempill, who succeeds to the title, was injured in an automobile accident in Chicago last year.

Ponies Starving; Aid by Air Planned

SNOW HILL, Md., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—With scores of wild ponies reported starving to death on the ice-covered islands and banks off the Maryland shore, a petition for federal relief for the animals was under consideration today by Worcester County citizens.

Prof. R. V. Truitt, University of Maryland zoologist, suggested airplanes be used to drop fodder, as the ice is too heavy for boats to reach the ponies.

Dog Alive in Crash

THE COON DOG THAT ESCAPED DEATH IN THE P. R. R. WRECK

The coon dog found in a debris-littered crate in the wrecked baggage car of the P. R. R. train that met disaster on the North Side. She had been shipped by Howard D. Zigler, Marshallville, O., and consigned to Portland, Me. Seventeen hours in the wreck, she has now been "forwarded" to Maine. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

FAMILIES FLEE FLAMES IN BITTER COLD

Overheated Furnaces, Pipe Thawing Cause Six Fires

As the mercury fell below the zero mark this morning firemen were called to several residences in the city to extinguish fires blamed on overheated furnaces and efforts to thaw out water pipes.

Six people were assisted from their home when fire destroyed the second and third floors of a residence at 715 Chislett street, early today. Loss was estimated at $5,000.

Routed from their beds by the flames were Morris Shechter, his wife, Anna; his daughter, Sarah; Jack Levinson, his wife and his daughter, Eileen, 5.

The residence of Dominic Cardillo, 6344 Dean street, was damaged by fire early today. Damage was estimated at $150.

An overheated furnace was blamed for a blaze that damaged the two-story frame residence of Theodore Frabaotnik, 1613 Bingham street, early today.

Mrs. Mary Miller and her two small children were helped from their home on the second floor of 65 Magdalena street when fire threatened the structure. Police reported the fire was the result of an effort to thaw out a frozen water pipe.

Two families were routed when fire threatened a three-story building at 5224 Butler street this morning. The first floor is occupied by a beer garden owned by Paskro Bara. The second and third floors are residences.

Fire damaged the two-story frame dwelling of Thomas Mise, Negro janitor at the Swissvale Borough Hall, at 2014 Collingwood avenue, Swissvale, early today. Mise, his wife and eight children were driven into the cold.

FOG AND FROST ADD TO COLD

ture at the Weather Bureau was one degree below zero at 8 a. m. in Pittsburgh.

There was no comfort in the news that this mark was two degrees above yesterday's minimum. The fog and frost combined to make the atmosphere doubly uncomfortable.

RECORD FOR DATE

The one below mark was a record for February 28 in the files of the Weather Bureau.

Pittsburgh was comparatively "warm," according to unofficial thermometers in other places. McDonald reported the record low of 26 below; 24 below was recorded between Kittanning and Freeport; Arnold and Crafton had 18 below, and in the vicinity of Greensburg there were readings from 12 to 22 below.

It was colder still in Northwestern Pennsylvania. Ridgway's official thermometer registered 32 below, and at that borough's water works, there was a reading of 40 below.

SNOW PREDICTED

The fog and frost here were attributed to the variation in temperature and lack of wind in the district. Colder air striking the atmosphere of the valley created the fog, according to the Weather Bureau.

March will enter like a lion tomorrow, if the Weather man's predictions are borne out. The forecast was cloudy and somewhat warmer with snow tomorrow afternoon or night.

Last night's cold strengthened the ice in the rivers. The Allegheny was frozen to a depth of 15 inches above Pittsburgh. The Monongahela had seven-inch ice in its upper reaches. The Ohio had thickness of six to 10 inches.

Cherry Blossoms By Easter Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A brave prophecy was made today by Albert Clyde-Burton, assistant superintendent of national capital parks—cherry blossoms by Easter time!

He made it in the face of more snow than this city has had in many a year.

ARTIST DEFENDS WINE BOTTLES IN PAINTINGS

Wine, not beer, fills those bottles in Milan Petrovits' painting of the national peasant dance of Hungary, "The Hungarian Csardas," the artist asserted today.

Last week, the 'One Hundred Friends of Pittsburgh Art" purchased Petrovits' painting as one of the pictures from the Associated Artists exhibit they will give to Pittsburgh public schools. Protesting in a letter to the Board of Education, Mrs. Wesley A. Looney, of 609 Amberson avenue, has branded it as "an advertisement for beer."

Replying to Mrs. Looney's criticisms today, Petrovits exclaimed:

'How does Mrs. Looney know what is in those painted bottles? I didn't put labels on them. If they can be imagined to contain anything, they hold wine and not beer. They are just as important accessories in this picture as music for a dance.

"They belong there, and I know because I lived in Hungary for many years. A fault could be found in 'The Crucifixion of Christ,' painted by Rembrandt, if it were labeled 'Murder Scene.'

"It would be a sorry plight for art if it had to follow in the footsteps of our different uplifting organizations, which battle for a lost ideal, especially since Sweep Stakes began to play such an important role in the new era.

"However, I can guarantee that refreshments for my dancers are not as strong as the above mentioned brand. If the young people of Europe can drink light wine with benefit to their health, surely our children here can look at the picture without ill effects."

Jailer Discharged As Lynching Sequel

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Removal of Troy P. Combs as jailer of Perry County has been made as a sequel to the lynching of Rex Scott, a Negro prisoner, near Hazard in Southeastern Kentucky, last January 24.

In an executive order late yesterday Gov. Ruby Laffoon declared the office of jailer in Perry County vacant. Citing a statute giving him authority to remove a jailer, Gov. Laffoon said the taking of Scott from the jail prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of the jailer.

Samuel Harden Church Cites Test For Writers in Tabloid History

GEORGE WASHINGTON IN STONE ON HIGH MT. RUSHMORE

Mount Rushmore Competition Held Challenge

By SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH
President of Carnegie Institute.

I am well acquainted with Gutzon Borglum and think he is a genius in the whole field of sculptural art.

The work he is doing on Mount Rushmore promises to be the most audacious and distinctive piece of sculpture the world contains.

It is highly appropriate that the four gigantic carvings of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt should be supplemented with an epigraph history of the United States condensed in 600 words.

DIFFICULT TASK

It is easy to write history with an unlimited privilege of space, but one of the hardest tasks ever committed to ambitious authors will be the writing of a comprehensive epitome of our country in 600 words.

"The work of assembling these nine salient episodes in American history and giving them their right relation to each other in a setting of adequate, dignified and eloquent language, so as to create a piece of literature that will be worthy of the whole noble enterprise at Mount Rushmore, is a challenge to the intellectual capacity of the American people.

TASK TO BE FACED

"The condensation of great things into a small compass, as Lincoln did it in his Gettysburg address, is the task which each man and woman must face when they enter upon this delightful and absorbing competition.

"I feel sure that the very difficulty of the thing will attract a great multitude of eager and capable contestants, and, whether they win or lose, the work wil give them an understanding of the development of our country which will make them better and happier Americans."

GEOLOGIST SEES WORK OF AGES

The Mt. Rushmore memorial in the Black Hills of South Dakota, on which the 600 word history of the United States is to be carved, will stand for ages beyond our own special brand of civilizatin, in the opinion of Prof. Charles P. Berkey, head of the geology department of Columbia University.

Commenting yesterday on the selection of a suitable essay for the inscription to be engraved on the mountain, now underway throughout the nation, Prof. Berkey said that the inscription would be preserved for the ages. He declared:

"I am quite familiar with that region in South Dakota. It is not in the earthquake area nor is it in a particularly destructive region. Contrary to popular belief, the Black Hills are not of glacial formation. However, they were in the region of the great glacier of 20,000 years ago and withstood that phenomenon without any noticeable damage.

The mountains are of solid granite, and, if they withstand the ravages of time in the future as well as they have in the past, I see no reason for this memorial not living for ages beyond our own special brand of civilization. Consequently, the person or persons whose thoughts will be carved on the side of this mountain can be sure that their work will be preserved for the ages."

On the side opposite to that on which the inscription will be etched, gigantic figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt will be carved. That of Washington is practically completed.

Hollywood Actress Goes Under Knife

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Lucille Gleason, screen and stage actress, wife of James Gleason, the actor, was reported improved in condition today following an appendectomy.

Association Asks Donations for Poor

Tons of old newspapers, magazines, clothing and furniture donated by Pittsburghers help feed hungry, homeless men and women, the Association for Improvement of the Poor said today in appealing for donations.

Without these discarded things, supplementing financial contributions, the association would have been unable to feed 985,829 persons and provide lodging for 290,159, declared Secretary H. W. Shepard.

MT. RUSHMORE PLAN HAILED BY EDUCATORS

Professors of history in leading universities and boards of education throughout the country yesterday joined the groups enlisting in the movement to aid the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission obtain the inscription for the impressive monument under way in South Dakota.

Dr. George J. Ryan, president of the New York Board of Education, declared the project would excite an interest in public and parochial schools equal to any displayed in seats of higher learning. He said:

"Interest in American history is a flaming realty in our public schools.

"Reminders of our origins like the Mount Rushmore Memorial are to be applauded. They play constructive roles in affirmative citizenship."

NOTABLES JOIN

Outstanding figures among the country's writers, painters and architects are sharing the interest of educators in the undertaking.

Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, is carving the Rushmore memorial in the granite of one of the dominant peaks of the Black Hills in South Dakota.

On one side of the mountain he has begun colossal figures of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

On the opposite side is a space more than 100 by 120 feet awaiting the drills and chisels of his men. In this he intends to engrave in letters thirteen feet high six words of inscription. These will deal with outstanding episodes in the birth and development of the nation.

It is to aid the Mount Rushmore National Memorial Commission to obtain the inscription that the Hearst newspapers plan to undertake a national competition and have the text written by the men, women and children.

NINE EPISODES

There are nine episodes to be treated in the texts. Among them are the writing of the Declaration of Independence; the drafting of the Constitution; the purchase of Louisiana, and the ceding of the Floridas to the United States.

Others are the rise of the republic of Texas and its entry to the union as a state; the Mexican War and the acquisition of California; the settlement of the Oregon boundary disputes; the Alaska purchase, and the cutting of the Panama Canal.

The plan is to have a national and local committee pass on the texts submitted in this tournament in expression.

Cash and scholarships are planned as prizes for texts adjudged the best.

"Golden Wedding, please"

IT HAS THE REPUTATION

No doubt it was the fine reputation of Golden Wedding that started the great demand for it—but reputation alone couldn't account for the way that demand has grown and still is growing every day. There are some very sound reasons why America's millions are finding in Golden Wedding the quality they are looking for. For one thing ... Schenley started years ago putting away a reserve of fine old whiskies for today's blending needs. It's things like that which contribute to Golden Wedding's mellow smoothness. And here's something which will especially interest you: Golden Wedding is a blend of straight whiskies without a drop of alcohol or spirits added. You'll want to remember that!

MANAGER PLAN PROPOSED FOR COUNTIES

(Local governments must be reorganized quickly or they will cease to exist, George W. Hibbs, former Commissioner of Fayette County, believes. Today's article, in which Mr. Hibbs expresses his views, is the forty-fourth of a series being published by the Sun-Telegraph in a campaign to lower taxes through elimination of waste and overlapping in governmental services.)

Immediate reorganization of county governments as well as township, borough and school governments is the only way to bring any substantial relief to the overburdened taxpayer, George W. Hibbs, former County Commissioner of Fayette County, believes. In suggesting reorganization, Mr. Hibbs declared that a county manager is apparently the best form of county control.

Mr. Hibbs declared that no county with less than 150,000 persons should have a separate government. This would mean that many of the smaller counties would be consolidated. Such consolidation has been suggested several times in the last few months by local and state leaders who are anxious to see the present ox-cart governments modernized to better answer the needs of the day.

RELIEF DIRECTOR

For more than 18 years Mr. Hibbs has served in public life in Fayette County. At present he is executive director of the Fayette County Emergency Relief Board. Regarding governmental changes he said:

"Economy in government or business is the only way to reduce costs. Real economy in government means less government. We have 43 local governments functioning in Fayette County, 43 separate road and street departments buying machinery and material under the supervision of many persons who are not experienced in that line.

"With a small army of officials, such as tax collectors, road supervisors, school directors, aldermen, constables, etc., it has become such a burden on the taxpayer that he can no longer exist. We have seen the value of the home, the farm, and the business property deteriorate to such a measure that no one cares to buy real estate.

"More than 10,000 properties were returned to the county commissioners in 1933 in Fayette County for taxes. We will not have and cannot expect to have real prosperity until we have a building boom. No one will build or improve real estate with this tax burden hanging over them."

STAND ON REFORMS

Mr. Hibbs pointed out that there is one way to bring about some relief and that is to make every person seeking office make known their stand on governmental reforms. He said:

"Now is the time, when we are about to elect state officials, to see that the people who are sent to Harrisburg are in sympathy with the movements to equalize the tax burden on real estate."

In suggesting a county manager plan, Mr. Hibbs joins the group of several prominent persons who have expressed their belief that a county manager is the best and most efficient means of conducting the affairs of a county. Attorney C. Ward Eicher, of Greensburg, and the National Municipal League have expressed similar opinions.

Bloomfield Trade Body Indorses Tax on Sales

Reed, Davis and Congressmen Petitioned

The Bloomfield Board of Trade today joined numerous other organizations in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County seeking enactment of a manufacturers' sales tax to replace the income tax.

A resolution declaring that tax reform and economy in national, state and local government fundamental to any efficient and adequate plan to establish a basis for permanent recovery and economic stability beneficial to all of the people concluded with a plea for the sales tax. It was sent to Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis and Allegheny County's members of the House of Representatives.

Decision of the Bloomfield Board of Trade was announced by W. D. Larkin, the president, who said that the membership held that:

"An income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens employment of labor and thereby reduces payrolls and purchasing power.

"That as against an income tax a manufacturers' sales tax has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, 'will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum of disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without 'nterference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax, while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to administer and more equitable in its incidence."

Farm Problems Up At Meeting Friday

Farm problems, including sweet corn wilt, will be discussed at a meeting of the Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association in the North Side Carnegie Library at 2 p. m. Friday.

County Agent Henry R. Eby today announced Dr. R. S. Kirby, of the State College extension service, as the principal speaker.

Butler Landmark Destroyed by Fire

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A 14-room house, landmark of the oil boom days of 60 years ago is a mass of ruins, destroyed by fire. The structure was erected during the period when Butler was an oil center and recently had been the home of Supt. Clarence McGinnis, of the Daugherty Refining Company. The flames destroyed it yesterday with loss estimated by firemen at $5,000.

Kroger's Daughter Weds in Florida

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Henry Kroger, of Cincinnati, last night announced the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Gretcher Kroger Barnes, at noon yesterday, to Bruno Graf, of Berlin, at Villa Sueno.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. E. Biederwolf, pastor of Royal Poinciana Chapel.

Charge Firm Sold County Cheap Lamps

Ray Sprigle, county director of property and supplies, had investigators in the Old City Hall today, checking equipment furnished during the remodeling of the structure last summer.

Sprigle plans to communicate with the Enterprise Electric Company of Cleveland which, given a bid to furnish nine cast iron lanters at a cost of $1,800, substituted sheet bronze ones, worth about one-fourth as much, he declares.

Explaining Your Income Tax

(This is the third of a series of articles explaining the proper procedure in making out income tax returns.)

Many taxpayers make errors in deducting personal exemption or credit for dependents when there has been a change in their family status during the year.

A couple married throughout an entire year is entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500. But if they became married during the taxable year the credit for personal exemptions must be prorated. In doing this, a fractional part of a month is disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a full month.

A couple married on July 20, 1933, and who were living together on the last day of the taxable year, would have to make a special computation of their personal exemption.

For tax purposes they were single seven months and married five months of the year. Each is entitled to seven-twelfths of a year's exemption of $1,000 as a single person and they are jointly entitled to five-twelfths of a year's personal exemption of $2,500 as married persons. The total would be:

Wife's exemption as single person	$ 583.33
Husband's exemption as single person	583.33
Joint exemption as married persons	1,041.66
	$2,208.32

Credit for dependents must also be prorated where there has been a change during the tax year through birth, death or some other cause. Children cease to provide taxpayers a right to deduct credit for dependents when they pass the age of 18. For example, if a child had its eighteenth birthday on April 3, 1933, its parents could deduct credit for him as a dependent for only three months. The credit would be $100 instead of the credit for a full year of $400.

JAPS PROTEST REDS' FLIGHTS OVER BORDER

TOKIO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The Japanese Foreign Office sent a sharp protest today to Moscow demanding that flights of Soviet planes over Manchuria and Korea be stopped. A spokesman of the foreign office said:

"We consider such incidents highly dangerous. It is always dangerous for children to play with fire."

The protest was sent by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. With it, said a foreign office spokesman, went a demand for guarantees against any further flights by Russian planes over Manchurian or Korean territory.

The filing of the protest followed reports from Hsinking (Changchun), Manchukuo, of two instances in which (the reports said) Russians fired upon Japanese planes.

PLANE SHOT DOWN

There was also a report that a Japanese military plane had been shot down February 17, near the Manchukuo-Soviet border.

The war office said it lacked information concerning this report.

On February 23, and again on February 25, a foreign office spokesman declared, planes "satisfactorily identified as Russian" were sighted by Japanese authorities.

The war office announced also it had received reports that the pilot of a Japanese civilian airplane was wounded slightly when fired upon over the Amur River. A military observer accompanying him was said to have escaped uninjured. The plane was able to return safely.

BOUNDARY IN DISPUTE

The boundary in this territory is vaguely defined, both Russia and Manchukuo claiming certain areas, but is supposedly the Amur River. The Amur and the Sungari rivers flow together at the border between Soviet territory and the Japanese-assisted state of Manchukuo.

Adding to the reports of airplaine flights, the newspaper Asahi said today that a detachment of Soviet secret police cavalry crossed the Manchukuo border February 24.

This newspaper said the Japanese government was gravely concerned over the possible consequences of the incidents along the border.

TORCH MURDER BAND HUNTED

WELLINGTON, Col, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Enraged citizens formed posses today to seek members of a robber band which killed a man and a boy and wounded a woman.

Sheriff George Saunders, who said he was holding three persons and seeking two more, declared "we know who did it."

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith and Robert Griffin, 16, who lived with the Smiths, walked into an ambush last night when they returned home from attending a school play.

As they entered the darkened farmhouse, Mrs. Smith said, a burst of rifle fire hit them. Smith, who was 35 years old, died instantly, as did the boy. They were shot in the head.

Mrs. Smith turned to flee and was shot in the back. Feigning death, she saw the men pour kerosene on the bodies, as though to burn them. Then she screamed and the killers fled.

Pu-Yi Makes Bid For Recognition; Ceremony Near

HSINKING (CHANGCHUN), Manchukuo, Feb. 28.—Henry Pu-Yi, on the eve of his enthronement as emperor of Manchukuo, made a new bid for foreign recognition in a statement given the Associated Press today.

He reviewed the progress made in the Japanese-assisted state during the two years he has ruled as chief executive. In the statement he said:

"Let the world judge this, whether we deserve the right to a separate existence, or whether we ought to have foreign encouragement or recognition.

"By suppressing banditry, corrupt rule of 'squeeze' and exploitation of the masses by predatory war lords, we feel we have made a distinct contribution to the peace of Asia and to the welfare of the people."

In substantiation of this contention, the 28-year-old emperor-designate drew a contrast between conditions in Manchukuo and in China proper.

He asserted that "20 years of Republican rule in China has brought the people of that unhappy country only disunity, poverty, suffering, corruption, disorder and continued civil strife."

He added:

"Upon ascending the throne tomorrow, I rejoice that through the grace of heaven and the unselfish, unremitting toil of the people and of our government officials, we have measurably advanced toward realization of making Manchukuo 'an earthly paradise.' In our country, young though it is, the common people come into a divine heritage of peace, plenty and contentment."

PARIS COMES TO HORNE'S

A visit to the Gray Room of our Millinery Salons, tomorrow, will make a woman feel she has touched the fingertips of Madame la Mode, herself. There an authentic collection of hats has just arrived—Paris originals and Paris copies—the concrete result of our Buyer's latest trip to the great source of fashion.

This large import collection is evidence of our important position in the smart millinery world, and of its service to a sophisticated clientele which always looks to Horne's to bring Paris to its doors. It also emphasizes the fact that there is so much of art, imagination, and beauty of detail in this season's millinery, that the creative genius of Paris and skill of French hands, have the greatest chance in years of true appreciation.

The showing reveals the designers' generosity in permitting one to wear brims that cast concealing shadows, or hats that let the sun's rays illumine the forehead . . . $12.75 to $55.

POLAND DETERMINED TO HOLD 'CORRIDOR' AT ALL COSTS

Knickerbocker Sees Peace Depending On Germany

where building is going forward at breakneck speed, where traffic booms and business roars ahead. And this city did not even exist when the Corridor was created.

It is the youngest city in Europe. It is the youngest port in the world. And already it has outstripped a dozen great ports of ancient fame.

Aside from shipping men and politicians few persons outside of Poland know even today the name of this extraordinary place. In Polish Gdynia in German it is Gdingen. Ten years ago a couple of hundred fishermen inhabited the coast line and not even Poles or politicians had heard of it.

BUSIEST HARBOR

Today on top of a cliff at the east of the city there stands an immense cross that blazes out at night in electric lights. It blazes over a city of forty-seven thousand. It blazes over a harbor that today carries more goods than Amsterdam or Copenhagen, more than Le Havre or Bordeaux, more than Bremen or Stockholm, more than Stettin or Danzig.

Where this electric cross now stands will be built a great cathedral. For Poland that cathedral will be the holiest in the nation. Because Gdynia is the only city that has been born in New Poland. Poland, not rich, has spent more than one hundred million dollars in gold on Gdynia. But that is not a fraction of what Gdynia means to Poland.

Gdynia means Polish resolution to make a commercial success of the new Poland. It means Polish determination to keep its own outlet to the sea. But above all it means the Polish will to keep the Corridor, to make it impossible for any Pole to think of giving it up.

CORRIDOR AS MENACE

Fifteen years ago when the Polish Corridor passed from German to Polish hands, it did so because Wilson agreed that Poland should have an outlet to the sea. Czechoslovakia had no such outlet. Czechoslovakia used the ports of other countries and has not suffered. There is plenty of argument to prove that Europe might have been saved its most insoluble problem if the Corridor had never been cut through Germany. The cutting of the Corridor upset an existing condition. It became Germany's chief complaint. Even before Hitler came to power there was not a German, from Communist to National Socialist, who would not swear that sooner or later the Corridor must come back to Germany.

For without the Corridor, declared the Germans, we cannot live. It cuts off East Prussia from the Reich. It severs a limb from our body.

That was all true 15 years ago. Today, standing on the cliff overlooking Gdynia, one has to observe that an immense change has taken place. The Germans moved out of the Corridor when it went Polish. According to the statistics of the Germans themselves, the Poles forced out and Germany helped to move out of Poland around 900,000 Germans, a great many out of the Corridor itself. Thus, what was once German in population has now become Polish.

BIG POLISH PORT

And here where a few fishermen threw their nets 10 years ago, there is a great Polish port. It handles 34 per cent of all Poland's foreign trade.

Today the Poles ship through the Corridor, north and south, by way of Gdynia and Danzig twelve million tons of goods a year. This means around 70 per cent of Poland's total foreign trade. And Germany ships across the Corridor, east and west, between the Reich and East Prussia, only two million tons a year.

Thus, today, the Poles have created a brand new condition. They have created the facts for the argument that if the Corridor were to go back to Germany today, Poland would suffer more than Germany would gain.

But these are only the commercial considerations. Poland thinks today of the Corridor in much larger terms. Poland is a new state, carved out of three others, Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary. She has had to be ready at any moment to fight for her existence. One war she has fought, and won, against Russia. Military considerations must rank higher for Poland than for many other countries.

REDS AIDED

Military considerations make Warsaw inexorably resolved to keep the Corridor and to develop Gdynia. As the war with Russia broke out in 1919 German workmen in Danzig struck and refused to load munitions for Poland. They sympathized with the Reds. This was one reason why Poland, as soon as she recovered from the Russian war, resolved to build her own port.

A glance at the map will show another cogent military reason why Poland should wish to keep the Corridor away from Germany. The border of East Prussia is only about 70 miles from Warsaw, less than a 30-minute flight in a fast bomber. Now today, as a shrewd Pole observed, if Germany wished to move troops into East Prussia for the sake of a surprise attack on Warsaw, she would have to do it by sea. Ship transports are easily observed. It would be difficult to catch Warsaw napping.

But if Germany had the Corridor back she could move all the troops she wanted through the Corridor, secretly, to the East Prussian border, a stone's throw from Warsaw.

FEARS DISMEMBERMENT

For all these reasons Poland today is immovably resolved to keep the Corridor. Poland is convinced that to give up the Corridor would mean to invite a new dismemberment, a new partition, and the death of the new Polish state.

But today the panorama of Gdynia is Poland's best propaganda. There below us, out into the steel gray waters of the Baltic, stretch two miles of breakwaters. Six miles of wharves are lined with warehouses covering 122,000 square yards.

Fifty ships are docked in Gdynia today, while yesterday in Danzig only eight ships rested in that old harbor. Danzig is 700 years old as a port. Gdynia is 10 years old. Last spring Gdynia for the first time passed Danzig in amount of goods turnover.

We went down into the port. Railroad tracks criss-cross the city in a web that hums with traffic. Into the new passenger terminal a freight train pulls up with a shiny steel gangplank fresh from a Polish mill. For the last five years an average of 20,000 passengers a year have entered and left the port. Twenty-nine ships ventured into the embryo harbor in 1924.

TONNAGE MOUNTS

In 1932 3,610 ships entered and left Gdynia. In 1924 the port had a total turnover of 10,167 tons; in 1933 it was more than 6,000,000 tons. This means that of all the great ports of the continent, only Rotterdam, Antwerp, Hamburg and Marseilles had a larger trade. More than a million tons a year through Gdynia are carried in Polish ships.

Nothing less than a personal visit to Gdynia will drive home the conviction that Poland will never abandon the Corridor without fighting. Germans have promised not to fight the Poles. They still talk of buying Gdynia, and giving Poland a Corridor through Memel for the return of this Corridor to Germany. This may have been one of the German thoughts behind their non-aggression pact with Poland. But the sight of Gdynia refutes the possibility of such a trade.

In the investigation of the question "Will War Come?" the Polish Corridor takes a front place. The conclusion at this moment is that if Germany were still in her old mood about the absolute necessity of regaining the Corridor, war here would some day be inevitable. But Germany is not in her old mood, Danzig proved that. In Warsaw perhaps the answer may be found whether war over the Corridor is merely to be postponed, and if so for how long, or whether it may not, after all, transpire that here, too, Hitler may prove a peacemaker.

Man in Storm Drives Into Subway Station

PHILADELPIA, Feb. 28.—Imagine the surprise of James Benney when upon opening a window of his automobile he found himself in a subway station. His vision obscured by ice on the windshield, Benney had followed the street car tracks, which at Twenty-ninth street leave the surface, cross a bridge over the Schuylkill River and go into the subway. Traffic was held up 42 minutes while Benney got out.

You want some things strong ..but when it comes to cigarettes you want them mild

SOME folks like their tea or coffee strong enough to hold up a house . . . and maybe that's all right.

But most smokers, we find, like a mild cigarette. That may be because people smoke more nowadays. Or perhaps they've found that in a milder cigarette like Chesterfield they get more of the aroma and taste.

Milder doesn't mean namby-pamby. To Chesterfield smokers it means a cigarette that's mild and yet satisfies.

GIMBELS TELLS THE truth

Why a March Sale of Housewares?

SOMETIMES we have sales because it's a good time to get "bargains" to pass on to you. Sometimes, frankly, in order to increase our volume of business. This sale, however, is simply to help you get your house in order for Spring. We started buying for it months ago. We think we have the best lot of real savings we've ever been able to offer you during this annual March Sale.

New cleaning supplies? Naturally. Sturdy ladders? Of course. Clothes baskets, clothes pins, clothes lines? Yes. Everything from tricky butterball makers (wooden paddles at 15c pr.) to buffet ranges ($59.50.) We'll tell you just what to expect, too, (the paddles, for instance, make appetizing butterballs but are infinitely more trouble than a wire cutter) for both in our advertisements and across the counter

SUITS AND TOPCOATS made to YOUR measure

Do you insist on clothes made to your measure? Are you hard to fit an off-size? Too big for run-of-the-mill clothing? Have you your own ideas about the styling of your suit or topcoat? Then here's your tailoring sale!

YOU select the fabric from nearly 200 patterns. Worsteds, cheviots, tweeds, cashmeres, twists, serges, crashes, flannels, shetlands, gabardines, and velours. Every fabric is all-wool.

YOU tell the model you want. Double-breasted, single-breasted, sports suits with belted backs. Extra features cost you nothing more. Size makes no difference.

Then a skilled tailor will take your measurements, and a famous maker will tailor your suit or topcoat just as you want it. It will be ready for you in two weeks.

The lowest price at which we have ever sold made-to-measure clothing in all our years of business.

Congratulations to the University of Pittsburgh on Its 147th Birthday

Gimbels, with all of Western Pennsylvania, extends congratulations to the University of Pittsburgh today. On February 28, 1787, it received, in the name of the Pittsburgh Academy its first charter "to provide higher education for Western Pennsylvania."

We congratulate the University for the driving energy and zeal which brought it from that small but courageous beginning in practically frontier land to an institution that in 1933 taught 12,000 students from all parts of the country. We commend the public spirited citizens who have aided it in becoming one of the nation's great educational centers. And to the University itself we say

4 Ways to Capitalize on NAVY 10.95

1. Navy moss crepe. Made up into a smart two-piece effect frock and topped off with frothy white organza collar and cuffs.
2. Underneath this jacket is hiding as cute a frock as you've ever seen. With the same wide-wale white trimming. The revers and cuffs belong to the jacket.
3. This frilly capitalization looks like Irish lace—but truthful souls that we are—we assure you it's just starched crocheted lace.
4. Natural-colored linen makes the detachable front and collar. Note the metallic glitter of the round buttons.

EXTRA WIDE WITH Cushion Dots

88 IN. WIDE OVERALL 2 1/6 YDS. LONG

1.29 Pr.

The sheer marquisette contains with fat, cushion dots that are particularly appropriate for bedrooms. Ready-to-hang when you need them. You'll like the extra width that makes full, graceful folds even at wide windows. You'll like the 5½-inch extra wide ruffles, too. Choose large or small cushion dots in cream or ecru marquisette.

It took a combined Gimbel purchase of 12,000 pairs as well as the fact that all of the Gimbel stores buy most of their ruffled curtains from this manufacturer to get the price so low. You'd be wise to anticipate your Spring needs now.

Walter Winchell
ON BROADWAY

Man About Town.

Lord Reveistroke (Rupert Baring), whose father recently willed him several million $, is the one being breach-of-promised by Angela Joyce, British actress, now in H'wood. His uncle is the Earl of Craven, Lord Chamberlain to the King . . . Harrison Fisher's will (which gave all to Kitty, his heart for two decades) will be broken by his brother, Hugo, who hastened from Paris . . . She is very ill, too . . . The Bar Ass'n and Federal sleuths are investigating what Broadway shyster lawyer? It's certainly about time! . . . A dozen deaf and dumb lads from Staunton, Va., were taken thru the studios at Radio City Satdee and had a better time of it than those who could hear.

Are the missing files and records of the airplane quiz hidden in the homes of various employes? . . . Frank Luther of Chicago and Natalie Pritchard of Washington have that look in their orbs . . . Ditto Larry Tibbett and Francesca McKenny . . . Caroline Chantry is the toast of the Italian Embassy—she's the lovely over whom Gen. Balbo raved . . . How to go out of your mind: Being a booking agent in H'wood and having a movie official like your girl . . . Ask Charles Feldman, whose heart is Jeanne Howard . . . The buzz is that a cabinet member is on the spot. A group of gazettes will open up on him any month, now.

Agnes Olive Hill of Washington and George Vukmanic (Bullitt's aide) are betrothed . . . Either Gen. Van Horn Mosley or Gen. H. Drum will succeed Gen. Douglas MacArthur as chief of staff of the Army . . . Orchids to Manny Cohn, a manufacturer, who angeled "When in Rome," a new show, the profits of which go to various charities—no matter the creed . . . A new Broadway weekly is due March 1—beginning with a 52,000 run . . . The new Cotton Club opera begins March 11—the most ambitious floor show yet . . . George Jean Nathan, the critic, calls Percy Hammond "Groucho" Hammond—look who's talking! . . . The Kent Lezares are on the verge.

Eugene Meyer, former Federal Reserve head, is soon to open fire on several fronts to boom Ogden Mills for the Republican standard bearer in '36 . . . The statue of Samson by Helene Sardeau will start arguments when it is shown at the art show in Radio City . . . It is over 8 feet tall—but they will yell it is too nude . . . When a local magazine wants to get the dope on you for a profile—they assign a reporter to your ten "best" friends (as if anybody had three!) and to your (it seems) twenty worst enemies . . . Police Comm. O'Ryan, who denies he will resign to head the Transit Board (and be succeeded by Valentine), is plotting a new form of exam for police applicants . . . G. W. Hill is auditioning a new hour show—once weekly.

Mary O'Neill, radio critic of Albany, will become Mrs. Warren Hamilton Flood in April . . . The Maine Monument on Columbus Circle is being fixed at last. The suggestion first ran here two years ago . . . Hard to believe, but they insist that the recent "attack" case in San Antonio was a frame—over a grudge by higher-ups who didn't like Lieut. Murrel . . . It doesn't look like any of the current ABC rules (on bars) will be discontinued after April 1, as was hoped . . . They'd have you believe that a former millionaire is now a head waiter at the Palais Royal . . . Why does that woman, who explains Wilde's fantasy at the Music Hall, pronounce the word "proGRUM" when every dictionary tells you it is "proGRAM"?

Few newspapermen know that they have to bid for the coveted Pulitzer Prize. They are not considered otherwise . . . A certain socially registered man is breathing easier since O'Ryan became Commissioner. He paid plenty to hush a case—and the detectives, who went in for the shake-down racket, are now very cautious . . . The trouble is the victim won't let you help him . . . Remember "Fifi," the foil for Clayton, Jackson & Durante in the old days? . . . She finally gave up the bitter struggle and is with kin in Shanghai.

Add feuds: George Givot and Fred Keating. If one sees the other first—one leaves—anywhere . . . Such a hate! . . . Buddy Rogers' ass't conductor, Jerry Arlen, and Joan English of the Billy Rose show, are suffering so . . . Izzy Elinson doesn't think the new train that does 100 miles an hour will be popular with guys who like kissing their girls while going thru a tunnel . . . At the Mayfair Saturday night—there were more smellebs than ever from H'wood . . . If only someone had opened a window! . . . The room simply reeked—of fame . . . The only way to be sure of a friendship on Broadway—is to put it to the test . . . A famous star (with honey hair) in H'wood has discovered her marriage is another mistake. They dwell together strictly for professional reasons—waiting until the last mags cools off . . . They marcelled Victor Jory's hair at Fox studios for his latest film. And execs liked it so well it must stay that way—a contract's a contract . . . The Peter Hancocks (Viola Brothers Shore's daughter) are divorcing . . . Add merciless, but true similes (the best yet!)—Chick Webb's: "As lonesome as an ex-columnist."

Many Parties For Morgan Sisters

By GWYNN

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—Hollywood for the last week was positively pediculous with parties. The following social (if we call them that) events are just a few of the day and night going-ons, mostly caused by the visit of the two Morgan gals, one of whom is now Lady Furness and the other, by the grace of fortune, is Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt.

Charlie Chaplin gave a big soiree for them early in the week; the Barney Glazers (Sharon Lynn) entertained with a big tea at which no tea was served. Louella Parsons gave them a cocktail party that was the biggest thing since "The Miracle." And the twin sisters themselves gave parties. They hired the Colony Club for the afternoon and then dined a lot of people at the Russian Eagle. They left town Sunday—but they did all right—in Hollywood.

Added to these soirees was a huge affair given by Laddie Sanford and Mary Duncan. But the party the Darryl Zanucks threw Saturday night will be a hard one to beat. They, too, hired the Colony Club, which is now closed to "everything but" private parties, and soireed in honor of the polo-playing Aden Roark, the Lyn Howards, and other famous mallet wielders. Connie Bennett (with Gilbert Roland) and Mrs. David Selznick were the most stunningly gowned women present. Loretta Young with Spencer Tracy, Virginia Bruce Gilbert with Count Carpegna, the Sidney Lanfields, the Bob Leonards, the Raoul Walshes, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, Countess di Frasso, Lucien Hubbard and many more gambled and gamboled.

We had to laugh when Virginia Bruce, while the money-changing was at its height, was frantically searching for someone to give her change of a dollar so she could play the slot machines.

Sentimentalists would have you believe that the reason Norma Talmadge rushed back from London was in answer to Georgie Jessel's trans-Atlantic telephone calls. Which may be true—but "that ain't all!" Norma was supposed to co-star with Thomas Meighan in a British picture called "Somehow Good," but "Somehow Good" evidently wasn't good enough for Miss T. She became very bossy about everything connected with the picture. They refused—and Miss Talmadge left England in a huff drawn by eight white horses.

Reginald Denny says he knows an actor who is so afraid of getting a California sunstroke that he's hired a detective to shadow him!

Marie Dressler is all upset by Eastern reports that the Senate Investigating Committee will look her up while prying into the "alien actor" situation. Marie let out a heated blast in self-defense because her citizenship is her touchiest sore-spot. She said, "I am sick and tired of these digs at my citizenship, and if the Senate Committee wants to know anything about me, I wish they'd ask me instead of running into print with a lot of innuendoes that might give people the wrong idea." She stated further that she came here from Canada 50 years ago and married George Hoppert 35 years ago and that she has given more energy and time to American causes than she has ever devoted to her stage and screen work.

Random Shots: Thelma Todd and Pat de Cicco moved out of their house at the same time—in different directions. Their baggage on the sidewalk was a pretty sight . . . Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie may do a tour together when Bernie and his band come to Hollywood for "The Great Magoo" at Paramount . . . Claudette Colbert fully recovered from her secret sinus operation . . . Margaret Lindsay in the hospital to toss away her appendix . . . As predicted here weeks ago, the Georgie Raft-Virginia Pine pash is now tareefic! . . . The George Brent-Warner studio wrangle is now being aired in court—Brent claims they owe him $1,425. He hasn't been paid anything since he walked out of his role in "Mandalay." His salary is $450 per week . . . Grace Moore's husband, Valentine Parera, is being groomed for stardom at Fox.

Gloria Swanson will tour in a musical act before starting "Three Weeks" at MGM . . . Jimmy Gleason has a new contract with Fox . . . Erin O'Brien-Moore, who scored in "Street Scene" on the stage, is job-hunting in Hollywood . . . Prophecy: That Franchot Tone will be a star within a year—the lad has pahlenty . . . Sari Maritza and Vivian Gaye were robbed of their fur coats and other doodads while they were at the movies Saturday night.

Because Cecil de Mille must delay the starting of "Cleopatra," Warren William will have time to rush into the lead opposite Kay Francis in "Dr. Monica," which goes before the cameras at Warners. When it's finished William goes to Paramount on a loanout to appear with Claudette Colbert and Herbert Wilcoxen in "Cleopatra."

When Universal's "The Countess of Monte Cristo" was previewed, Patsy Kelly wowed everybody with her nut-comedy. Though well known on the New York stage, Patsy is new to pictures, but the gal is getting along. Now she's going into a leading role in "The 'arty's Over" with Stuart Erwin. Valter Lang directs the picture fo Columbia.

Ndist's Fate Is Slivers In Dancing Feet

By MICHAEL SHAW

his nudist life isn't what it's cracked up to be, accordin' Faith Bacon, featured dancer on the Penn stage this w Although her continual barefoot dancing has toughened hole (yes, s-o-l-e), once in an average of every fiveshows s Bacon carries off a sizable piece of the stage in the form splinter in her foot, yet con- es her dance as if everything e hotsy-totsy.

The half-inch sliver that embedded itself in the fan dancer's e at the beginning of her late Monday afternoon show had to be removed by a physician after the final curtain, yet she went through her routine as if nothing had gone amiss.

Another flea in the fan dancer's ointment is the expense. At first thought, this matter would seem never to bother nudists, yet those all-important fans cost $100 a piece, and they are inexpensive when compared to the $500 fans that were stolen from Miss Bacon in Chicago.

Incidentally, when Miss Bacon did her fan dance with a Loew unit some years ago, a fan on the left side of the stage was held by a young lady who said a few lines in a skit. Her name was Sally Rand.

After Sally's arrest in Chicago while exhibiting the dance that Faith Bacon had originated, Faith changed her routine to prevent the public from accusing her of capitalizing upon Sally's success. Such are the vicissitudes of a fan dancer.

In spite of the cold weather, Miss Bacon likes Pittsburgh for the "glorious vacation" she was granted Sunday on which to sleep and attend a birthday party that Bob Robinson, the "barker" in the show, gave for his wife.

The originator of the fan dance is supporting an older sister ill in Tuscon, Ariz. She prefers night club entertainment to vaudeville, because it permits more study time. She wants to be a doctor specializing in obstetrics, and believes she can achieve her goal within five or six years.

Fifi D'Orsay's work in Wonder Bar," opening in the Stanley Friday, made her postpone her marriage to Maurice Earl till four times. Al Jolson's par in the same picture caused a postponement of his annual honeymoon trip with his lovable wife, Ruby Keeler.

"Sons of the Desert," coming to the Fulton tomorrow, is one of the few pictures in which the actors' real names are used. Larel and Hardy, who have the kids, call each other just that in the farce, as in all their films.

Wilma Horner, pretty Avalon brunet, returns to tow as the only local principal in the "Runaway Girls" revue opening Sunday midnight at the Variety. She has just completed an engagement in the Star and Garter, Chicago.

Another local girl who made good returning to town next week—this time on the screen—is Mary Lange, North Side Ziegfeld girl, who will be seen in "Moulin Rouge," opening in the Penn Friday. Miss Lange was recently seen in the same theater in "Roman Scandals."

European Dancing Star Booked by Variety

The Variety, closed this week, will re-open with a Sunday midnight show, "Runway Girls," one of the biggest burlesque shows to be presented at the local theater in 10 years, with a cast of 18 principals will be the attraction. Georgia Sothorn, Reggie White and "Diana," the latter an oriental dancer from Europe, will be featured. The illuminated runway has been re-installed in the Variety and each week dancers and members of the chorus will be seen on it in specialty numbers.

Reveler

Patsy Dell is a member of the cast of 'Harry Delmar's Revels,' revue that will be seen on the stage Friday.

"Once a Crook—"

JIM AND FLORRIE were married very quietly, with none of the frills and fixings that usually go with a wedding ceremony. For Florrie's job as cashier in a beer garden was not exactly a magnificent one. And Jim was finding that any sort of job was hard to get. Especially hard in view of the fact that he had recently served a stretch in prison.

That worried Florrie more than the problem of making ends meet—Jim's record. When they returned to the furnished room that was to be their home, she slipped her arms around his neck.

"Jim," she began with a troubled frown, "I know you promised before. But I want you to say it again, that you'll never go back to the old business. Promise?"

"Sure. Sure, I promise, honey," the boy reassured her. "Before, there wasn't anybody to care what I did. But now it's different. I got you. And from now on, I'm gonna stay on the level."

"It won't be easy," Florrie warned him. "Jobs are hard to get. But if I ever thought you would go back to the old ways, I couldn't go on with you. There's something awful mean and small about a pickpocket."

"You ain't got nothing to worry about." Jim held her tighter. "I won't ever break my promise to you. I'll get a job, and pretty soon you won't have to work no more."

It was easy to talk that way then. It was, in fact, a lot easier than landing a job. Jim found that out before a month had passed. In the first place, there were very few openings. And those were quickly filled by men without prison records.

So Florrie remained at her job for several weeks after her marriage. She went to work early in the evening, returned home late at night, and her salary was barely enough to cover their actual needs.

As the weeks passed, Jim grew more and more discouraged.

"It's enough to drive a guy daffy," he said once, "having his wife slaving in a cheap beer joint and having to live off her pay. Gee, sometimes I feel like—"

Florrie clapped her hand quickly over his mouth.

"Don't even say it," she begged. "You know what that means if it ever happens. I told you I couldn't stay with you if you went back. Don't feel like that, dear," she coaxed, "things could be a lot worse. You'll get something soon."

But the weeks passed and Jim didn't get anything. Early each morning he went on his disheartening search and usually he didn't return until just before Florrie went to work. He grew sullen and morose.

That's the way things were when she came home a little earlier than usual one night. Jim was toiling with an iron and a wet cloth, putting a little brighteer shine on his already shiny suit. But he seemed more cheerful than usual. Florrie felt better when she noticed that.

"I gotta go out early in the morning," Jim explained. "And a fellow has to look half-way decent if he wants to get anything."

"Yeah, that's right."

Florrie wasn't actually listening. For her husband was transferring to his pockets the objects that he had removed in the process of suit-pressing. There was one object that was entirely unfamiliar. He saw her glance fall on it, and thrust it quickly out of sight.

"Jim!" Her voice was sharp. "What's that? Let me see what you got there!"

"Aw, it's nothing, only a wallet." Jim drew it out of his pocket slowly. "I picked it up off the street downtown tonight. I was going to return it tomorrow morning to the guy that lost it. I wasn't going to say nothing to you about it unless I got a reward or something. I wanted to surprise you."

His wife said merely, "Oh, was that it?"

Long after the lights were put out, however, she lay awake, thinking. Somehow, she wasn't as surprised as she might have been. She knew that, deep down in her heart, she had been expecting this all along. "Once a crook, always a crook," the old saying said.

Her heart ached heavily. For Jim had broken his promise. He was still a pickpocket, and she couldn't go on living with him under the circumstances. He had known that, but evidently it hadn't mattered very much.

She waited until he had gone out the next morning, and then she got her few belongings together and wrote the note. It was a very simple note. It said that things were over between them, for he had broken his promise. He was still a crook, and she could never trust him or believe in him again. She was going out of town, she said, to live with relatives, and she would start divorce proceedings from there.

Then she went out and locked the door behind her . . .

Jim came in about noon-time. He read the note that was propped up against a vase. When he finished reading it, his face was twisted in a very bitter smile.

He dug into his pocket and drew out two ten-dollar bills. These he laid on top of the letter that Florrie had written.

The man whose wallet he had returned that morning had given them to him as a reward. And they represented the only honest money that he had ever earned . . .

MAESTRO BERNIE BUYING THE "VERY FIRST TICKET."

'MAESTRO' AIDS HOSPITAL SHOW

Ben Bernie, "the old maestro," bought the first ticket today for a hospital benefit which will be sponsored by the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society in the Stanley Theater Sunday night.

A committee in charge, headed by Mrs. Simon Seegman, began their ticket sale when they cornered Bernie backstage at the Stanley just before the curtain went up on "all the lads."

Mrs. Harry M. Kalmine, vice chairman, made the sale. The benefit show will last from 7 to 11 p. m. Sunday, with a first run picture on the screen. The first show, beginning at 7 p. m., will also include feature shorts for childrens' entertainment. Proceeds will go to buy hospital supplies. Tickets are on sale by all members of the committee and at the Stanley boxoffice.

Trade Exhibit Arranged

The motion picture exhibitors of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, expected to number 500 to 600, will attend the annual Warner Brothers trade exhibit in the Schenley Theater, next Wednesday, March 6. The movie theater owners and operators will get an advance peek at two of Warner Brothers' and two of First National's new pictures. It will be the second show of this nature, a new form of merchandising plan adopted by Warner Brothers.

Headquarters for the exhibitors will be the Hotel Schenley. Pictures to be shown will be "As the Earth Turns," "Gambling Lady," "Wonder Bar" and "Journal of a Crime." There is a possibility that "Anthony Adverse," "DuBarry," "Napoleon," "Tale of Two Cities" and "British Agent" will be shown also.

Harry Delmar's Show In Pitt Friday

Harry Delmar will present his 1934 edition of "Harry Delmar's Revels," with a company of 47, in the Pitt, Friday, March 2. Manny King is the featured comedian. On the screen will be Mary Brian and Donald Cook in "Fog."

Players and Pays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

With the coming of "Catherine the Great" to the Fulton March 8 Pittsburgh will be seeing for themselves a little Austrian actress whom the critics of the world are now "discovering." This sudden jump into notice no doubt seems strange to her, since she has long been an outstanding artist on the European stage, and is no novice in European movies. We just haven't become acquainted with her, that's all. However it is quite likely that we shall, since she is now playing the feminine lead on the London stage in "Escape Me Never," and it is quite likely that it and Miss Bergner will reach Broadway next fall. Of course, the American movie magnates are angling for her, too, but it is believed she would like to make her bow in an American production with the feet of her planted firmly upon a stage. Miss Bergner, born in Vienna, has been on the stage since she was 11, and she has appeared in both Germany and Austria in Shakespearean as well as translations of modern English plays. In films she has played with Emil Jannings and Conrad Veidt. In "Catherine the Great" she plays opposite Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

In the reviews of "Tobacco Road," recent New York success starring Henry Hull, critics bestowed kind words upon the work of Renice Rehan. We read them never dreaming they referred to a Pittsburgh girl, whose real name is Renice Buck, daughter of Mrs. Minnia Buck, who has several sisters in Pittsburgh. Renice, who attended Ursiline Academy here, graduated a year ago from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, and she is playing her first important engagement in "Tobacco Road." The friend who suggested Rehan as a better stage name than Buck perhaps saw budding in her some of the power of the great Ada Rehan.

Dates selected for the presentation of Luigi Pirandello's "Naked," by the Civic Playhouse in the Hotel Schenley Theater, are Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 27 and 28.

MUSIC

Wachter Quartet

Carnegie Lecture Hall

The Wachter String Quartet gave its closing concert in Carnegie Lecture Hall last night with increased attendance again. Next season these players should make a point of promptness in beginning their music; that so-called academic quarter of an hour in tardiness is a nuisance and the audience frets before it bars a note.

Mr. Lissfelt

Last night's program was completely satisfactory; one of the most tuneful and rollicking of Haydn's Quartets—"The Lark"—the Mozart Quintet in A Major for clarinet and strings, and the Turina Quartet in D Minor.

The playing of the quartet shows continued improvement. In the Haydn there was some lack of ensemble spirit, each player going his own way and little blending of text in the early movements, but this disappeared during the Turina. This later work contains some rather smooth writing, but whether the music itself is too prolix, or whether the musicians themselves failed in the tempo, I am not able to say upon first hearing of the work. It did, however, get wearisome.

Domenico Caputo, our local violinist virtuoso, contributed his fine talent and mellow tone to the Mozart Quintet. He has played it here before and always with the fluency of a tried musician.

— FRED LISSFELT

PITT, W.-J. BOTH CLAIM BEING 'OLDEST'

An old argument cropped up again today as University of Pittsburgh alumni prepared to celebrate Pitt's Charter Day, marking the one hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of the founding of Pittsburgh Academy, at the Hotel Schenley tonight.

The University of Pittsburgh boasts that it is "the oldest institution of higher learning west of the Allegheny mountains in Pennsylvania."

Old Washington and Jefferson College comes right back with "We are the oldest college from the Alleghenies west!"

BOTH SIDES RIGHT

As it happens, both schools are right. Official state records show that the Legislature chartered Pittsburgh Academy, from which grew the University of Pittsburgh, February 28, 1787.

Washington Academy, one of the two schools from which originated Washington and Jefferson College, didn't receive its charter until September, 1787.

But this doesn't stop Washington and Jefferson from being the oldest college. The Legislature chartered Washington Academy as a college January 15, 1802. The Pittsburgh Academy didn't become the Western University of Pennsylvania until 1819.

Both schools have had their ups and downs since those early days. Washington College, of Washington, Pa., didn't unite with Jefferson College, of Canonsburg, to form W. & J. until 1869, and for some years after the union the two schools tried to carry on classes in both towns. At times, classes were entirely suspended.

DISCOURAGING TIMES

Several times, the life of the Western University of Pennsylvania seemed to hang by a thread. Fire destroyed the college building, then located downtown, in 1845, and again in 1849. "Wup," too, had to suspend clases for several years. But the trustees refused to be discouraged. The school was always rebuilt.

Finally, "Wup" became Pitt in 1907 when the university moved from a North Side location near the Allegheny Observatory, now a part of the university, to Oakland.

Now the university is engaged in the construction of the Cathedral of Learning, the tallest "schoolhouse" in the world. Steady progress seems assured.

Burns Prove Fatal To Versailles Girl

Helen Jakolik, 15, of 35 Snake Hollow road, Versailles Township, died in McKeesport Hospital today from burns received February 9, when her clothing ignited from a gas stove. Her mother, Mrs. Walter Jakolik, was slightly burned attempting to save the blazing girl.

Pigeon's Fly Here From Coast Ends In Butler

A pigeon that flew into the Butler Boy Scout headquarters after high winds blew it from its homeward course from the West Coast, was to be returned to its owner, Dr. J. M. Conway, 14 Club drive, today.

The bird was released last November on the coast. When it flew through an open window in Butler yesterday it showed the effects of its experiences, but had regained its strength today.

SHOPS TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

To meet their old friends, and to make new ones, 40 merchants, members of the Jenkins Arcade Association, with shops on the first three floors of the Arcade, will hold an open house day tomorrow.

Visitors will receive souvenirs at almost all the shops, and will be entertained by a number of exhibits, demonstrating the manufacture of many kinds of merchandise and the operation of many services.

In addition, an entertainment program has been arranged, including an orchestra, from 11:30 to 2 p. m. and from 3:30 to 6 p. m. After dinner another orchestra will play from 7 to 9.

Talent on the program includes Helen Belle Rush, Dr. J. C. MacBurney, radio singers, and Al Weber.

Honor Anniversary Of Academy Tonight

The one hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of the founding of Pittsburgh Academy, from which grew the University of Pittsburgh, will be observed tonight at a meeting of the University of Pittsburgh General Alumni Association in Hotel Schenley. Henry Obernauer, chairman, said more than 1,000 were expected to attend.

John G. Bowman, chancellor of the university, and Dr. Alexander Silverman, head of the department of chemistry, will speak.

Funeral services for Attorney William R. Murphy will be held tomorrow evening in his home, 525 Teece avenue, Bellevue.

Mr. Murphy died yesterday in his home. Besides his wife, Mrs. Emma Murphy, he leaves a son, Robert L. Murphy; a daughter, Mrs. John H. Louthan; a brother, John D. Murphy, of New York; his father, Jonathan D. Murphy, of St. Petersburg, Pa.; a sister, Miss Sarah B. Murphy, and two grandchildren.

He was born in Oil City, August 15, 1871, and attended the public schools of that city. He graduated from Allegheny College and the Pittsburgh Law School and was admitted to the bar in 1898.

Mr. Murphy was a member of the Allegheny County, Pennsylvania and American Bar Associations. He was also a member of the official board of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church.

Herbert H. Finch.

Funeral services for Herbert H. Finch, of 1043 Mt. Oliver street, who died yesterday, will be held at the John F. Semmelrock Funeral home, 2134 Brownsville road, Carrick, at 2 p. m. Saturday. Mr. Finch was a member of Pittsburgh Lodge No. 46, L. O. O. M., and Hilltop Circle No. 122, P. H. C.

He leaves his wife, Katherine Diebold Finch; a daughter, Violet M. Finch, and a sister, Mrs. Marie Page.

George W. Moore.

Funeral services for George W. Moore, 69, of 4920 Sciota street, will be held at Smullin's funeral home, 481 South Atlantic avenue, at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Mr. Moore, who died yesterday, leaves a daughter, Mary Gledhill, and two sons, George and Wilbert Moore.

W. W. Chapman.

Funeral services for W. W. Chapman, of Oakdale, who died Monday, were held today at the Oakdale Presbyterian Church. Interment was in Melrose Cemetery.

Mrs. Ellen Jane Robnson.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen Jane Robinson, 60, widow of Robert Robinson, and a lifelong resident of the Garfield district, will be held in the W. N. Wiler funeral home, Friendship avenue and Cedarville street, at 30 p. m., Friday. She died Monday in the Pittsburgh Hospital as result of injuries suffered when struck by an automobile five weeks ago.

Mrs. Robinson was an active member of St. John's Episcopal Church, Main and Butler streets, where services will be held. Interment will be in the Allegheny Cemetery.

She leaves two sons, Charles and Robert Robinson; four daughters, Mrs. Helen Taylor, Mrs. Margaret Thompson, Mrs. Lucinda Cefals, Mrs. Katherine Murphy; five sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Limegrover, Mrs. Margaret Zeiher, Mrs. Sarah Mellody, Mrs. Alice Winter, Mrs. Lucinda Koch and six grandchildren.

Alexander J. Negley.

Funeral services for Alexander Johnson Negley, member of a pioneer family that settled in Pittsburgh in 1778, will be held at the Negley home, 305 North Negley avenue, at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Mr. Negley died Monday night of a heart attack. He leaves his wife, Elizabeth Wishart Negley; two sisters, Miss Alice M. and Miss Georgina G. Negley; a niece and three nephews.

He was born in 1867 in "Rural Home," the family homestead on Highland avenue, long a picturesque landmark in the East End. Completing his education at the University of Pittsburgh, he was identified with various banks in the city, and later entered the lumber business.

After a brief career as a mining engineer in the development of gold interests in Idaho, Mr. Negley returned to Pittsburgh and was active in the development of real estate in the East End.

William W. Wyland.

Funeral services were held today for William W. Wyland, 73, who died Sunday at his home, 365 Highland avenue, West View.

Mr. Wyland was a member of Arch Street Methodist Episcopal Church, McKinley Lodge No. 318, F. & A. M., and Masonic Veterans.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mary Rodgers Wyland; four daughters, Mrs. Mary Martin, Miss Martha Wyland, Miss Ella R. Wyland and Mrs. Eliza McVay, and four grandchildren. Services will be from the home, with burial in Uniondale Cemetery.

Mrs. Philomena T. Kremer.

Mrs. Philomena T. Kremer, 64, died yesterday at her home, 10 Ravine street, Sharpsburg. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Marie Helbling and Louise and Olivo Kremer; two sons, Leo and Anthony, and two brothers, Henry and Lawrence Hohman. Her husband, Jacob J. Kremer, died 18 years ago.

RUM ABANDONED BY DUTCH HENRY

Dutch Henry has given up the sale of hard liquor in his restaurant.

The Diamond street host has abandoned the hard stuff because it interferes with the sale of beer. That is, the state laws allow the sale of beer over the bar but forbid such whisky sales.

And Dutch, his employes explained today, feels that his male customers would rather sling a foot over a shiny rail and guzzle beer at the bar in preference to drinking beer or whisky at a table.

Bed Clothes Ignite, Man Loses Life

Samuel Duncan, 38, of Fourth and Locust streets, McKeesport, died last night in McKeesport Hospital from burns suffered several hours before, when bedclothing caught fire from a hot plate in his home, police reported.

CITY GETS $186,900 RUM FEES

Pittsburgh's city treasury this week receives $186,900 in fees from licensed liquor venders for the period between December 2 and February 1.

Approximately 1,000 other municipalities in the state will share in the distribution of $1,692,950 in fees paid to the state during the first two months that liquor sales were legal.

McKeesport will receive $12,650; McKees Rocks, $6,300; Clairton, $4,350; Duquesne, $5,300; Braddock, $7,000; Homestead, $6,100; East Pittsburgh, $2,100, and Carnegie, $2,300.

Some boroughs and townships will receive little from the fees. Chalfant will get only $50; Ben Avon Heights, $50; Cheswick, $150; Dormont, $300; Greentree, $150; Plum Township, $50, and West Deer Township, $50.

Philadelphia's share of the fees is the largest, $670,250. Counties receiving only a single license fee are Forest, Fulton, Juniata, Montour and Union.

Council Balks M'Nair On Cheap Rum Ban

City Council has refused Mayor McNair permission to prohibit the sale of cheap whisky in Pittsburgh's state liquor stores.

The Mayor, appearing before Council, declared:

"It's not whisky; its misbranded. It's not fit to be sold for the purpose for which it is being sold."

An analysis of this whisky one month ago under City Health Director Ray P. Moyer brought out that it was drinkable—but lacked the age specified for whisky in technical definitions.

Council did reluctantly agree to ask the Pennsylvania Department of Health what effect this whisky had on consumers, and whether it violates the pure food laws.

Magistrate Howard B. McNutt told Council that nine of ten cases of drunkenness at Central Police Station came from the cheap whisky.

Councilman Soost defended it as the poor man's drink; Councilman Kane feared that, with the cheap whisky banned, drinkers would resort to something cheaper. Councilman McArdle questioned the city's right to interfere with the state stores.

Judge Urges Ban On Pa. Rum Control

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Judge Albert Dutton MacDade, of the Delaware County Court, says abolition of the State Liquor Control Board and its stores would end bootlegging. He made known his views in declining petitions that he run for Governor.

In the place of the board he recommends sectional commissions appointed by the Supreme Court to control the liquor business and sales by private firms or individuals.

1 OUT OF 21 BUY LIQUOR HERE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—One out of every 22 Pennsylvanians patronizes a state liquor store in a week.

Among Philadelphians the proportion of customers in the population is considerably larger, the clerks serving one out of every 15.4 persons, but in Allegheny County the ratio is little different from that for the state as a whole. It is one out of every 21.

These figures are obtained by comparing the number of customers served by the stores during the week ended February 17, the latest available, with the 1930 census returns.

Throughout the state, the stores had 438,231 patrons during the week; in Philadelphia, 126,258, and in Allegheny County, 65,726.

Pittsburgh had the busiest store, that on the Boulevard of the Allies serving 13,232 patrons.

TAX RATE CUT IN SEWICKLEY

A reduction of one and one half mills in borough taxes was voted at a meeting of Sewickley Council last night. Increased assessment valuation and further borough economies were said to have made the reduction possible. The new rate was set at 11 mills.

Police Chief Roy Barclay, suspended last Monday for the fifth time since the first of the year, was reinstated by Council.

An ordinance approving the grading and draining of the proposed site of the new Ohio River boulevard from Osborne to Chestnut street, a county CWA project, was passed.

Shake off that laxative habit

Physicians Warn Against Irritating Drugs

Medicine-laxatives—no matter how pleasant tasting—can often do untold harm. For most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract. Soon they lose their force—compel you to take more and more.

That's why more than 50,000 physicians recommend Pluto Water. For Pluto is not a drug or medicine-laxative but a saline mineral water. The same amount each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. It cannot give you the laxative habit!

Pluto Water is gentle—but speedy. It promptly opens the pylorus valve — permitting the flush to enter the intestines without anxious hours of waiting.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water—is practically tasteless. Take it whenever sluggish—gets results within an hour—and end that laxative habit! In two sizes: Splits (8 ounces)—large bottles (3 times the quantity). At all druggists.

STOP THAT COLD

THE FIRST DAY!

A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Trust to no makeshift methods. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drug gist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and accept no substitute on any pretext.

Actress Kids Lovelorn Lad Along

By AIRCASTER

All radio drama isn't written into the scripts.

Much of it isn't written at all because it is the drama of real life.

But sometimes it has to be acted as in the case of a popular kilocycle actress who has just come through a strange experience which probably saved a life

It was one of those backstage dramas, with a comedy twist, all which, as I learned, is not uncommon.

The actress is the possessor of one of radio's most fascinating dramatic voices and it is a rare week when her fan mail doesn't bring a hundred impassioned letters from the lads who woo and win her.

In the fan mail a month ago appeared one letter from a New England youth whose ambition it was to meet his heroine. The letter was so torrid that the actress did not reply to it. Came more letters, each more ardent, and then, eventually, from the same town came a letter from the chief of staff of a hospital.

It seems that the smitten lad was a patient in the doctor's hospital, and the doctor begged that the actress write to the youth.

A week later, the doctor wrote again that unless the young man might come to New York to see his heroine, very likely he would die of heartbreak.

The actress told the matter up with her sponsors, who confirmed the doctor's report, and it was arranged to bring the lad here.

His heroine with a lump in her throat, met him, rode about town for hours with him in a limousine, took him to a show, and later to dinner and her broadcast.

The youth went back to the hospital, happy and hopeful, and all unaware that the chauffeur of the limousine was really the husband of his heroine, and that it was all play-acting for his benefit.

But—the doctor has written that the lad will get well.

Fred Waring's sponsor decided today to abolish the practice of using guest stars on the Waring broadcast hereafter.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

If I told you that one of our soldiers in the last war went overseas and gave a good account of himself, yet had only four birthdays would you believe me?

Well, it is true. I am talking about David C. Phillips, born February 29, 1896. His mother's letter reminds me to say a good word for all the girls and boys born on February 29. They will celebrate birthdays in 1936.

I'll have to set aside a special day to print all the information about starlings. Some of you are for them but most of you are against them but more of that anon.

Right now I want to acknowledge the letter from the McKeesport woman whose heart was touched after my radio appeal for the birds. Immediately after the broadcast she threw out a few crumbs. She became very popular immediately and in two hours she had thrown a complete loaf not to mention suet, stale cake, and bones with meat on them.

She now is praying for spring to come. She can't stand the pace. She signed herself a poorer but wiser woman.

If she is poorer now this next item will bankrupt her. It seems that in all my zeal to take care of the birds I forgot all about the squirrels.

A FUNNY WAY TO FIGHT COLDS

Cold germs are often carried to your mouth on your hands. Parents should be particularly careful to rub Listerine on hands before contacts with children. It's a good idea for anyone to follow. And, of course, to keep the mouth clean, Listerine should be used as a gargle every morning and night.

BOGGS & BUHL

Our Carpet Work Rooms are justly famous for their ability to render high-grade service for measuring, estimating and laying carpets so that the most economical results are secured.

MARCH SALE·RUGS CARPET

Few stores in America—certainly none in this district—carry the large stocks of floor coverings day in and day out as Boggs & Buhl. Consequently when Boggs & Buhl announces a Carpet and Rug Sale, people expect to find unusual variety and extraordinary values. We are well prepared. Our stocks were purchased months ago at the old prices—and are marked on the same basis. Manufacturers wire us daily of price advances due early in March. Protect yourself from future higher prices in this sale!

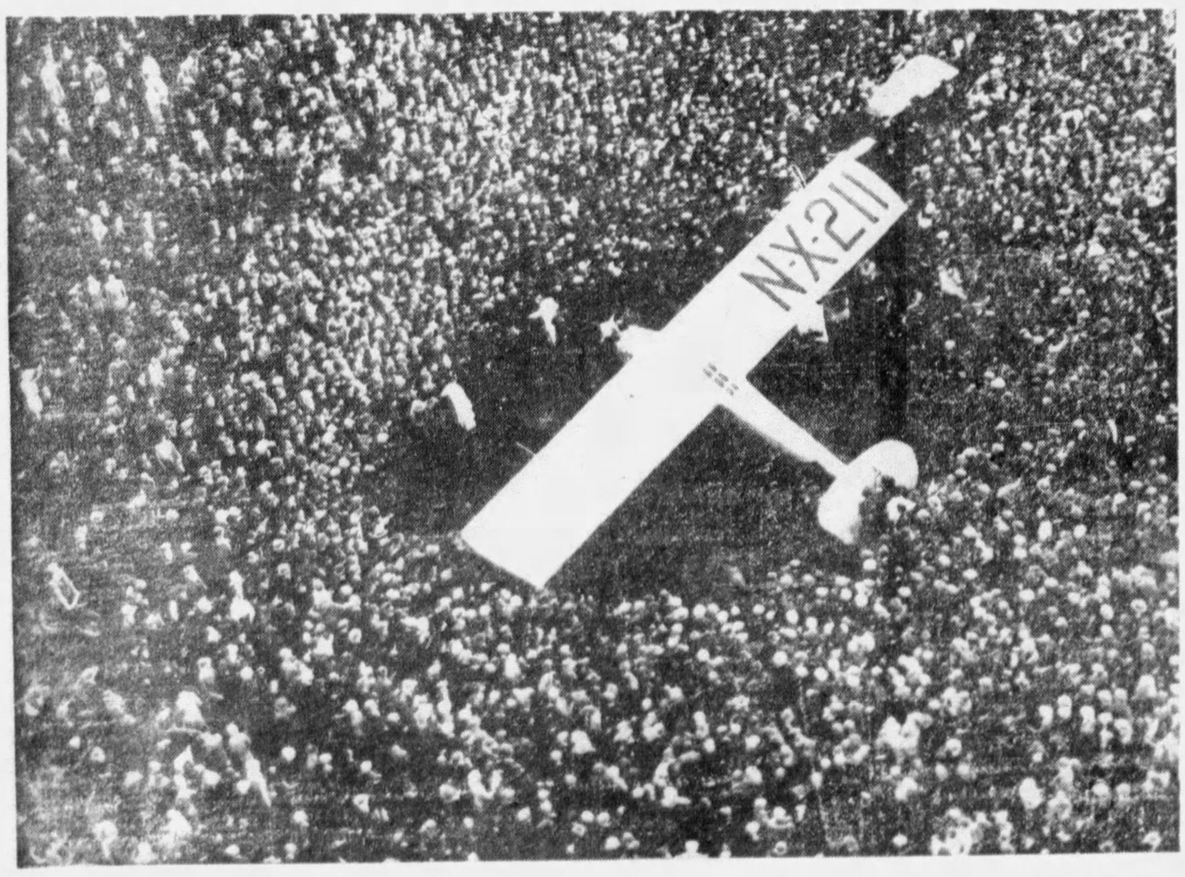
REMEMBER WHEN JACK JOHNSON BEAT JIM JEFFRIES?

This is a Picture-Story of Dramatic Events, Personalities, Beauties, Customs and Fashions Within the Memory of Living Americans

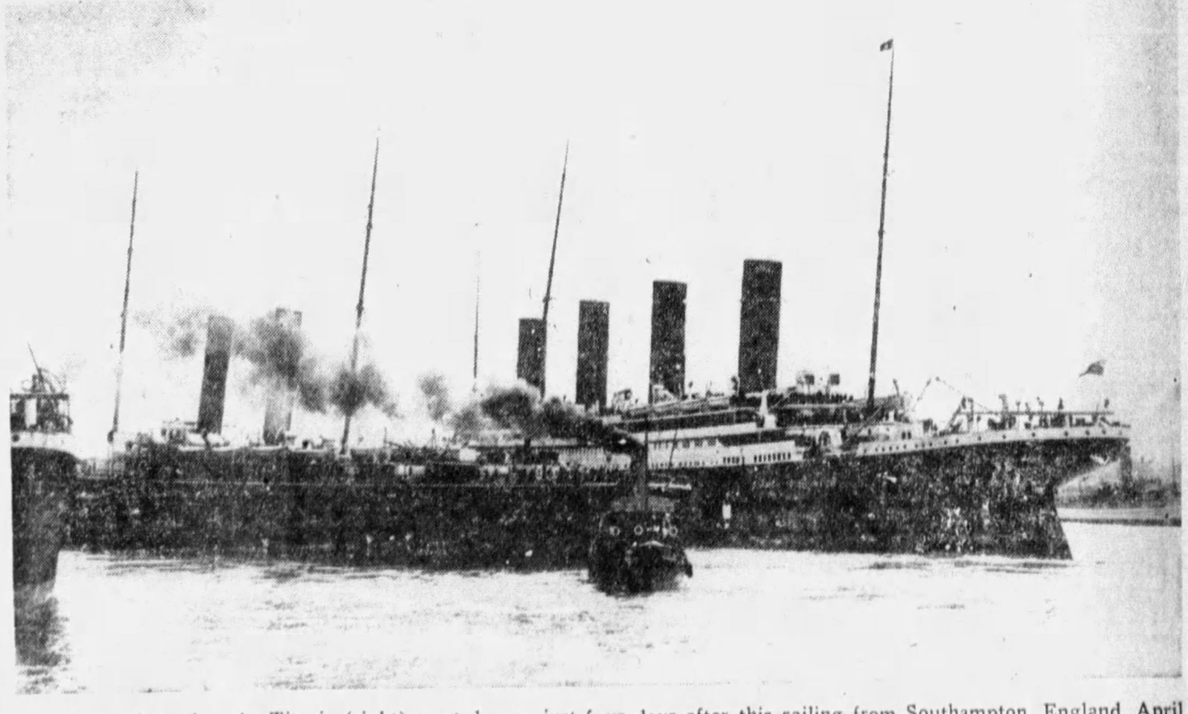
Remember when Dayton, Ohio, was flooded on March 25, 26, 27 in 1913? Because the swollen torrents that had been the Great Miami River, the Mad River and the Miami-Erie Canal ran far over their banks? The final death toll was placed at 732 drowned or killed in water-wrecked buildings.

Remember when only last year—February 15, 1933—shots fired in Miami at President-elect Roosevelt fatally wounded Chicago's Mayor Cermak (center), here helped away?

Remember when John Barrymore donned tights and played "Romeo" in the Actors' Equity show in New York in 1921? Later as 'Hamlet' he set a record 101 consecutive performances.



Remember when Col. Charles Augustus Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris and from obscurity to fame in May, 1927? Here is the great throng (about 100,000) that greeted him a few days later as he landed for a visit to London.



Remember when the Titanic (right) went down—just four days after this sailing from Southampton, England, April 10, 1912? The marvel of the seas and the pride of Britain, she struck an iceberg. The toll: more than 1,500 human lives.

Jeffries Versus Johnson

The news camera's story of how Jim Jeffries at Reno, Nev., on July 4, 1910, came from retirement to fight Jack Johnson, the Negro heavyweight.

Coyne Completes Raid On Tax Division

By MARK SHIELDS

Senator James J. Coyne today about completed his political rewarding and dynamiting in the inheritance tax division of the Register of Wills' office.

Mr. Shields

Announcements of appointments, promotions and reductions were made over the name of Auditor General Frank E. Baldwin, but all were at the instance of Senator Coyne, whose influence with the Republican state organization is undimmed.

Outstanding among the appointments was George Metzler, Republican chairman of the Sixth Ward, as an appraiser at $3,600 a year.

Mr. Metzler was a member of the Legislature, a position he resigned to accept from former Mayor John S. Herron an appointment as magistrate when Charles F. Papale was fired.

The result of that shift was to turn the Twelfth Ward into the Democratic column, Mr. Papale vaulting to that party, and in turn Mr. Metzler lost his magistrate's job when Mr. Herron went down to defeat.

A second interesting step in the new appointment for Mr. Metzler involves the demotion of Harry E. Speaker to a clerkship at $2,700 a year. He held the appraiser's job awarded to Metzler.

Mr. Speaker was secretary to Councilman William A. Magee when the latter was Mayor, and was Mr. Magee's personal appointment in the inheritance tax division.

T. Murray Locklin, who not so long ago lost his job on the mercantile board, paying $5,000, to make room for former Councilman Harry A. Little, now becomes a clerk in the Inheritance Tax Division at $2,400 a year. Mr. Locklin as a ward chairman did not perform to the satisfaction of Senator Coyne.

Rooney Gets Post As Investigator

Former Representative James P. Rooney, who shows signs of again being a candidate for the place he lost in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, has been named an investigator and assistant appraiser at a salary of $2,200 a year.

Mr. Rooney's brother has political influence on the North Side, which in part accounts for the appointment, though Jimmy and Senator Coyne are firm friends.

Mr. Rooney, a former football star at Pitt, scores with Senator Coyne running interference and taking out Frank C. Happ, whose dismissal was announced some time ago.

John Griffith, 520 Burgess street, becomes a clerk at a salary of $1,800 a year, succeeding Frank J. Laughlin.

C. M. Gault, 65 Vandergrift Building, has been named an investigator at $2,000 a year, replacing John J. Reilly.

Harry P. Fitzgerald, 108 Melwood street, has been advanced from clerk to assistant chief clerk, and his salary will be $3,000 a year. He succeeds Franklin M. Katz.

These replacements, promotions and demotions about complete the reorganization of the inheritance tax division. Those whose heads fell were adherents of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell. Senator Frank J. Harris and other political leaders who are not in the good graces of Senator Coyne.

Appointments in the division are made by the Auditor General. The employes work under the direction of the Register of Wills, and the return of the money they collect is made to the Department of Revenue of the state government. This is about as circuitous a responsibility as could be imagined.

Pinchot vs. Guffey Quandary for Washington

The Roosevelt administration may be somewhat embarrassed by the 1934 election in Pennsylvania, not so much in the primary as in the general election if some things happen.

For example, what will be the national administration's position if Gifford Pinchot should represent the Republicans and Joseph F. Guffey the Democrats in the November election?

Postmaster General James A. Farley will be for Guffey, and there is no uncertainty about that.

President Roosevelt, it is believed, also will lean toward Mr. Guffey, his former friendly relations with Mr. Pinchot having recently cooled.

While Republican progressive Senators such as La Follette, Johnson, Norris and Cutting were supporting Roosevelt during the 1932 campaign, Mr. Pinchot was silent until the evening of election day, after the polls closed. Then he hailed the Roosevelt victory as a Hoover repudiation.

There have been some more recent incidents which have not reunited the former friends.

But Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and one of the Roosevelt props, almost certainly will be for Mr. Pinchot. He was for Pinchot for President in 1932, and the only picture on the wall of his Chicago office was that of the Pennsylvania Governor.

This election can raise a ruckus in Pennsylvania, but it can also cause some trouble in Washington.

Incinerator Survey Expert Hired by City

Norman S. Sprague has been hired by City Council to survey possible locations for incinerating plants and compile designs and specifications. He will be paid $1,000, and will work in cooperation with George W. Schusler, superintendent-engineer in the Bureau of Sanitation.

Council is considering a $1,000,000 bond issue to finance the plants.

CHICKIE'S DAUGHTER -:- -:- By Elenore Meherin

CHAPTER V

Twilight swept the bay. The waters were a silvery blue and the great hulking Marin hills, hidden in gauze, became lovely and impalpable like lavender clouds. The whole scene was quiet as a picture with a stillness you could feel; a hush as of prayers.

Chickie paused at the stone rampart on Broadway and let her gaze wander down the terraced gardens to the shimmering waters.

The lovely red brick house on this quiet, cloistered street was hers—this home, with its love and its holy peace. Years had not dimmed the miracle of it. Whenever Chickie stood on these steps and let her eager gaze rest on the dark Marin hills she prayed, not consciously, not in words, but with her heart lifted to God.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, and Kathie McPike laughingly appeal to Kathie's foster-brother, Kevin Malone, to take them to their first dance. Kevin promises. Then, teased by the two girls because he is eight years older than they, he seizes Pippin and kisses her. Pippin goes home to her mother to secure permision to go to the dance, astonished and thrilled at the first real kiss she had ever known. Given permission, Pippin attends the dance with Kevin and has a glorious time. Chickie thinks her daughter has gone into the strange land of adolescence too soon. Kevin sails to Europe, but before going he kisses Pippin and makes her promise she will write to him.

Now Go On

Once they had stared behind the curtains of the little houses in Fair Oaks, whispering as she passed — "Look — wearing a camelia—brazen, isn't she?"

Once she had murmured, lost: "There is one last kindness life could give. If anyone really loved me, Jimmy, he would come tonight and kill me while I sleep. I want to die, only to die."

Her own mother, bidding farewell at a railroad station, would rather have kissed her in her coffin.

Even love could see no future for the pale, lovely girl who had blundered so.

Yet he who stood head and shoulders above other men came and laid his heart at her feet. Just as she was he wanted her. He took her hands, and looking down from his tall height said how beautiful she was; as few women are ever loved, she was loved.

The wonder of it! All the world must be astonished that in the end such gifts were hers.

Chickie laughed and dashed a hand across her eyes. Oh, that emerald cloud drifting over Tamalpais! And lavender hills dipping to the sea . . .

She went up the steps eager for the welcome always waiting. Jonathan, with the knob in his hand, pulled open the door.

"What kept you, Chickie-girl?"

Greets Chickie

Jonathan was 75. His shoulders sagged. But memories were assailing Chickie this lovely spring night. She saw in her father only the viking who had stood in a crowded courtroom, shouting and proud: "No outcast, sir! But my daughter!" She saw him always resilient and giant like that.

She kissed him. Here eyes were wet.

"Is that for happiness, Chickie-girl?"

"Such happiness, Jonathan!"

Her second son, named David for his father—a tall, appealing boy, nearing thirteen, waited in the shadows. He came now and took a bundle from Chickie's hands. He was quiet, but his eyes shone.

"Mother," said he, breathlessly, "the white cat looks awfully frightened. I think she's going to have her kittens tonight. I saw a picture of a rattlesnake. Did you know they feed mice to it alive? That's vicious. I wish David would hurry. I want to find out if it's true.

Chickie caught the boy to her. He was so precious, more poet than the surgeon he already planned to be.

SLEUTH WINS REWARD SUIT

James P. Hileman, of Crafton, won a $500 verdict in County Court today in a fight over a reward for the arrest of three convicted killers.

Hileman sued William and Edward Braum, contending they distributed handbills offering a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the killers of their brother, August Braum, Jr., West Elizabeth butcher, slain during a holdup in 1930.

Hileman convinced the jury that his sleuthing caused the arrest of three Negroes, two of whom were electrocuted. The third, convicted, died a natural death in the County Jail.

WIFE BLAMES FISHING TRIPS

Whenever her husband had to sell bonds he did not like he went fishing, Mrs. Katherine J. Wilson, 6213 Kentucky avenue, testified today in asking a divorce.

The result of these fishing excursions, she told Judge William H. McNaugher, was constant financial trouble. Her husband, Wade I. Wilson, was put on a straight commission basis by his bond firm and finally deserted her on December 3, 1931, she said.

After the desertion, she testified, Wilson went to Buffalo. Later she heard he was living at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., but he hung up when she called him on the telephone, she stated.

Author to Talk At Forum Session

Col. George A. Burrell, author of "An American Engineer Looks at Russia," will be the principal speaker at an open forum at Christ Church Parish House, 709 Union avenue, at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. Frank Orr Johnson, pastor of the church, will preside.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Flew in here yesterday, you got to fly back here to get over the tops of these snowdrifts, and brother you got to have altitude. My friend Gen. Johnson opened up his complaint division of the NRA. House was sold out before it opened. And I saw something with my own eyes that you wouldn't believe could happen. The Senate voted not to take the raise in salary. Thank Senator Borah for that. I say you thank him. I doubt if many of the Senators will thank him, but they did it, so give 'em a hand. The return of the 15 per cent in salary is only to apply up to six thousand dollar salaries.

Will Rogers

I tell you a lot of folks got these Senators wrong. They are a fine bunch. That fellow they sent to jail just got out Monday.

Yours,
WILL.

COUNTY TO SUE VERONA OVER ROAD COST

Barr As Collector Garners $800,000 On Old Debts

The county law department, upon order of the County Commissioners, is preparing to sue the borough of Verona for $18,000.

The order followed issuance of a report by Commissioner C. M. Barr, which showed the borough owed that much of the $20,000 damages on the portion of the Allegheny River boulevard in Verona.

More than $800,000 in old debts owed by municipalities, utilities and others have been collected by Commissioner Barr during the two years the new board has been in office.

CITY DEBT $747,000

Of the balance due, $897,855, the city of Pittsburgh owes the county $747,000; other municipalities $100,000, and the remainder by individuals or smaller companies.

A report of the one-man committee, which the other commissioners made Barr more than a year ago, shows some of the debts date back to 1920, and involve for the most part damages and allotments in inter-municipality developments or improvements.

The largest lump collected was from Munhall, from which Barr got $142,666 owed since 1925. Braddock paid $54,000, on the books since 1920. The largest utility sum was $124,064 from the Union Railroad Company for the Thompson Run bridge. McKeesport paid $130,000 dating from 1926.

DEBTS REDUCED

The report showed municipalities, when Barr started, owed the county $1,424,298 and now owe but $856,564; that utilities owed $298,840 and paid all but a balance of $26,945. Only $14,345 is left unpaid from other companies and persons, of $32,328 formerly owed.

The city's balance shows that $347,720 remains unpaid for its share on the Sixteenth Street Bridge, $151,497 for the West End-North Side Bridge, $125,000 for the Thirty-first Street Bridge, $52,000 for the Armstrong Tunnel, $42,000 for the Ohio River Boulevard, $20,000 on Rogers Field and other municipal improvements.

An attempt to force the city to pay the Sixteenth Street Bridge sum, made before the Public Service Commission, failed because the commission held it had no jurisdiction. Further action is planned.

Coach to Address Builders' Exchange

Robert E. Higgins, head football coach at Pennsylvania State College, and E. K. Hibshman, executive secretary of the college's alumni association, will speak tomorrow at a luncheon of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange in the Smithfield Street Grill. C. A. Powell, president of the exchange, will preside.

Higgins and Hibshman are to address the Pittsburgh Penn State Club at a luncheon Friday in the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club.

TEMPERAMENT CLASH BLAMED IN TRAGEDY

Swinbank and Wife Conflicting Types, Says Prosecutor

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 28.—The clash of two temperaments, flaring into sudden anger, scrawled in blood an end to the career of J. J. Swinbank, Pittsburgh steel construction engineer.

'That theory will be the basis upon which the prosecution will attempt to send his attractive widow, Lottie, to the penitentiary, County Attorney Clarence Houston announced today.

Swinbank was a builder. He worked to the raucous roar of riveting welders and the staccato pounding of great hammers. She is a musician. She played with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra and is a member now of the Tucson symphony. With such a background the interests of the two were widely separated.

Such is the picture that Houston plans to draw before an Arizona jury as he charges Mrs. Swinbank with having fired two bullets point blank into the chest and neck of her mate Wednesday night. He died Thursday.

DOCTOR ACCUSED

Dr. C. E. DuVall, Tucson physician who attended the wounded man, is charged with having obstructed justice by attempting to conceal a crime. Sheriff's officers assert he reported the shooting only a few minutes before Swinbank died, preventing them from getting a statement from him.

As stoical as the Indians who live not far from the Swinbank home, the comely widow continues to parry questions with banter. After three days in a jail cell, she still refuses to discuss the slaying with officers.

A few minutes after the shooting, Dr. DuVall maintains that she told him:

"I shot my husband in self-defense. I was forced to shoot him."

Mrs. Swinbank's plea will be self-defense, her attorneys have intimated.

DEFENSE MARSHALED

Among her witnesses at the preliminary hearing will be Joseph A. Wood, formerly of Pittsburgh, and a friend of the Swinbanks; her sister, Mrs. Viola Olsen, who also lived in Pittsburgh until recently; her two daughters, Gladys, 17, and Ada, 15, and her nephew, Albert McKinley. They are expected to tell how Swinbank often became intoxicated and abused his wife.

The Swinbanks lived in an old ranch house four miles north of Tucson. The home was set on a desert floor studded with gnarled giant cactus and long sweeps of gray mesquite.

The Swinbanks had been coming to Arizona to spend a few winter months for the last four years. The rest of the time they lived wherever buildings were rising, and in Pittsburgh.

VETERANS HIT BY SMITH ORDER

New Detectives Will Replace Demoted Officers

The often-suggested shakeup of the City Detective Bureau was carried out today.

Twenty-four sleuths escaped being fired but they were ordered back into uniform and on to beats by Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith. New detectives to replace them probably will be named soon.

Among the victims who will go back to pounding beats are Earl McDonald, John J. Crowe, A. Grayber, Nathan Auerbach, Dan Morgan and James (Trouble) McInerney.

All 24 have been carried on the payroll as patrolmen during the past but were assigned to the Detective Bureau for duty.

The other sleuths who will go back to beats, beginning tomorrow, are Vincent Burgo, Robert F. Carroll, T. F. Coleman, John J. Daley, Thomas J. Donahoe, Harry Foster, Charles A. Freeborn, William R. Harris, Frank Hutchinson, George F. Lehrman, William Long, John F. Malone, William H. Reese, Nick Spudic, Charles F. Sweeney, James F. Thompson, John L. Warnock and Howard Fiedler.

POLICE TO HEAR TRAINING TALKS

A series of monthly lectures designed to give instruction in proper police procedure, was to be launched today under the sponsorship of the Wilkinsburg Police Department.

Police of the Wilkinsburg district, including the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's force, will receive instruction in the making of arrests and preparation of cases under the general supervision of Capt. Thomas Martin, instructor at the State Police Training School at Hershey.

Among the speakers scheduled to appear at the meetings is Col. W. R. Dunlap, city director of supplies.

The lectures are sponsored by Burgess William Yocum and Police Chief William Harris, of Wilkinsburg, and Maj. William E. Mair, head of the Westinghouse force. The first meeting was to be held at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall, 726 Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, this afternoon.

DOUBLE BURIAL FOR COUPLE

A double funeral was being arranged today for the aged father and the step-mother of County Detective Joseph W. Bodner, who died within 12 hours of each other.

The father, Charles Bodner, 74, for many years proprietor of the Hotel Bodner, 633 Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, died at 12:30 p. m., yesterday, in Braddock General Hospital following amputation of his leg due to infection.

Twelve hours later his second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Bodner, 55, died in their home of pneumonia.

Mr. Bodner came to this country from Czechoslovakia when 18 and spent most of his life in East Pittsburgh. He leaves seven children.

Goodwill Campaign Half Way to Goal

The half-way point of the Y. M. and W. H. A.'s $60,000 goodwill campaign had been passed today with further substantial contributions expected to be reported tomorrow at a workers' luncheon in Kaufmann's dining room.

A total of $33,500 was reported collected at the workers' luncheon yesterday. Contributions reported for the day were $3,500, according to Hyman Rogal, drive chairman. The campaign is scheduled to continue through next week.

Writer to Present Cadets' New Flag

Miss Marion Brunot, Sun-Telegraph writer, will present an American flag to 55 members of the American Cadets at a ceremony in Lincoln Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church at 8 p. m. today. The flag is the gift of Mrs. John M. Davies. Eighteen years ago Mrs. Lillian Russell Moore presented the first flag to the cadets.

U. S. CASH ASKED FOR AIRPORT

Hoping to make the City-County airport one of the best in the country, county officials have asked the Public Works Administration for a $1,250,000 loan and grant, it was learned today.

The application was filed six weeks ago in Harrisburg, E. L. Schmidt, engineer of the county planning commission, said, but no announcement was made until the request was filed in Washington by the State Advisory Board, which ceases to exist after a final meeting tomorrow.

Schmidt said the loan would permit enlarging of the terminal and make it eligible for federal licensing as a A-1-A field, the highest government commercial field rating.

St. David's Day Banquet Saturday

Pittsburgh's Welsh population will celebrate St. David's Day Saturday with a banquet in the Fort Pitt Hotel under the auspices of the American Gorsedd. Attorney A. T. Morgan and Leo G. Griffith are to speak. The toastmaster will be J. R. Jones.

A. T. Morgan

A musical program will be presented by Evelyn Williams, Robert Jones and Evan Lloyd.

Helping Hand Farm Rent Pay Held Up

Controller James P. Kerr has refused to approve payment by the city of rental for the Helping Hand farm in Freeport road near Harmarville until Council approves an ordinance authorizing it.

Council has held over for one week an authorization of a payment of $1,250 to James P. Donovan, agent for the owners, for quarterly rent on the 500-acre farm.

Smith Friend Given Job by Governo

Gregory Ignatius Zatkovich, of Pittsburgh, a close friend of Judge Ralph H. Smith, has been appointed a workmen's compensation referee by Gov. Pinchot, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. Judge Smith is a Pinchot patronage dispenser in Allegheny County.

D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, was appointed a trustee of Pennsylvania State College.

Let Nature Take Its Course, Is Bugs' Advice on Business

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Can Gen. Johnson stop a man from selling a thing for less than it cost him?

We will answer that one like an echo in a tunnel.

You don't have to stop him. The law of extravagance and recompense will chew him up like barnacles taking over an iron boat.

A turnip like that will not last long in business. He is so close to the poorhouse he can ring the doorbell with his teeth.

The struggle for business is sharper than a serpent's tooth. But industrial hari-kiri is not competition.

City's Financial Rating High, Garland Asserts

With the exception of Cincinnati, no large city enjoys a financial standing equal to Pittsburgh's, Council President Robert Garland asserted at the centennial dinner of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society in the University Club last night.

The statement was supported by banking leaders at a meeting yesterday with Councilmen. Garland said:

"Just this afternoon five prominent bankers met in conference with members of Council and concurred in the opinion that no other large city, with the possible exception of Cincinnati, occupies such an enviable financial position as Pittsburgh."

He said the city had an unexpended borrowing power of 25 million dollars by consent of the people, and an unexpended councilmanic borrowing power of $5,800,000 available on 10 days' notice.

Other speakers at the Historical Society dinner included Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, A. Boyd Hamilton, former Councilman Frank L. Duggan and George Seibel, Sun-Telegraph dramatic critic. Former Gov. John S. Fisher, former Mayor John S. Herron and State Republican Chairman Edward Martin attended.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

When smart folks staying at home this winter or staying at home for the time being, get together, the topic of conversation, after the weather, now a goodly subject, has been taken care of, is news of fellow citizens who've departed the city for the resort lands of Florida sunny Bermuda or nearer-home Pinehurst.

Interesting news from Pine-Pinehurst for contract enthusiasts, is that Mrs. Joe Clifton Trees, of "Treesdale" Gibsonia, was a prize winner in the weekly contract bridge tourney Monday at the Carolina, Pinehurst.

Dr. Shelton and Wife Entertained in South

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Shelton are expected home the end of the week after six weeks in Florida.

Following a brief visit in St. Petersburg with Dr. and Mrs. M. N. Greer, formerly of Pittsburgh, they were guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Clement E. Kennedy, of the Vinoy Park Hotel. Later they spent a fortnight at Kenilworth Lodge, Sebring. In Bartow, Fla., they were guests of Capt. and Mrs. Phil Kussart, of Schenley Farms Terrace, Pittsburgh, who spend part of each winter there.

Ellen McClay Goes To Ranch in Wyoming

Ellen McClay has gone to Sheridan, Wyo., for a month or so of real winter at Eaton's Ranch.

Social secretary Eleanor Longenecker plans to sail Friday for Tampa, Fla., where she'll be the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. D. McDonald.

The William G. Costins have succumbed to Florida's lure, too. They left Sunday for Florida, planning to spend several weeks motoring there, going as far south as Key West.

Mrs. Samson Writes Glowingly of Florida

Mrs. Harry G. Samson, who with Mr. Samson and her mother, Mrs. Loraine Saeger, is staying at the Miramar Hotel, Miami, Fla., (they expect to be there until March 20) writes most enthusiastically of Florida—its blue skies, balmy air, beautiful flowers and tropical foliage, etc.

She went to the Miami Biltmore recently to hear former Pittsburgher Hervey Allen, author of "Anthony Adverse," talk on trends in American literature.

And the Samsons were dinner guests lately of President and Mrs. Ash, of Miami University, where they met the Irish poet, Colum.

To return to Pittsburgh tomorrow, the very first of March, will bring the opening that much-heralded garden bit at Carnegie Institute, arranged by the Garden Club of Allegheny County with the aid of the Fine Arts department and the Museum of Carnegie Institute.

Visitors From East Being Entertained

There's a veritable series of entertainments being given for two visitors, house guests of Mrs. Edwin Ruud, of South Graham street.

The visitors are Mrs. William Langenheim, of Ventnor, N. J., formerly of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. M. C. Cartall, of New York. In their honor Mrs. Ruud will give a bridge-luncheon at the Twentieth Century Club Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Yesterday Mrs. J. G. Kaufmann gave a luncheon for the visitors at the Hotel Schenley. Friday night the John H. Sorgs will give a dinner in their home, Woodhaven road.

Gertrude Kline Squirrel Hill Man Wed

Miss Gertrude Kline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kline, of Stanton avenue, and Irving Yochelson, of Shady avenue, were married Sunday evening at 5 o'clock in the Beacon Hotel, Squirrel Hill, by Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer, of Rodef Shalom Temple, in the presence of members of the two families.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, had as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Jerome Solomon. Miss Mildred Yochelson, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Rita May and Phyllis Fay Solomon, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Solomon, were their aunt's flower girls.

Ralph Simon was his uncle's best man, and Jerome Solomon and Marion Steinberger were ushers.

Mrs. George Schugar played the wedding march, and Mrs. Vida M. McClure sang. A wedding dinner at the Beacon Hotel followed, and a reception that night from 9 to 12 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Yochelson will be at home in Stanton avenue with the bride's parents.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Here's what some of the debutantes of the fall—those not in resort-land for the late winter—are doing with their time now.

Gretchen Lappe is holding down a position in the hat department of a local department store and loves it. We hear she's ever so successful.

Dark-haired Vardi Marshall is studying typing!

And lovely, blonde Eloise Dorrance is studying hard for a degree at Pitt.

Then there's a group going in for sewing — making tennis frocks mostly with summer sports in mind.

Sewing debs are Florence Willock, Analana Beeson, Barbara Verner, Eloise Dorrance and Vardi Marshall.

And I've already mentioned the group making a study of cookery!

The role of a dog always seems to fall to jolly Mrs. Rhodes Quaile, Junior League Children's Theater chairman. She was "Toto," the dog in "The Blue Bird." And in the marionette play "The Capture of Mr. Static," she's the "voice" of the dog "Bluff." And, of course, she works the strings that put Bluff, the marionette dog, through his paces.

The Junior League is giving a marionette show this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Frick Training School, and repeating the performance for the benefit of youthful Sewickleyites Saturday morning, March 10, at 11 o'clock in St. Stephen's parish house.

P. T. A. Council Broadcasts To Start

The first in a series of weekly radio programs to be presented by the City County Parent-Teacher Associations will be given over KDKA tomorrow at 4:15 o'clock.

The initial program will take the form of an interview, with Mrs. W. E. Brosius, president of the council, being interrogated on its work by Mrs. P. B. Digby, president of the James E. Rogers unit.

In succeeding programs the speakers will talk on the various angles of parent-teacher activities and relationships.

Edgewood Civic Club To Meet on Thursday

The Edgewood Civic Club's annual meeting is set for tomorrow at 10 o'clock in the Borough Building. There will be election of officers.

Edgewood Club Has Adventure in Humor

In its course of "Adventuring Hither and Yon," the Woman's Club of Edgewood is having an "adventure in humor" this afternoon at the Edgewood Club. Mrs. Joseph T. Miller is discussing "American Humorists" and Mrs. A. C. Manning is contributing selections from humorous writings.

Club Groups Plan Room Benefits

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In addition to the Carnegie Tech dessert bridge, planned to "establish" the foyer of the College Club as the "property" of Tech graduates who are members of the club, several other alumnae groups have planned benefits for the same purpose. The Tech members will have their affair on Saturday, March 10.

The Goucher College Club will have its benefit on the evening of March 16, a bridge, to establish a bedroom. Mrs. Cornelius D. Scully is chairman of this affair.

The Elmira College Club has planned a St. Patrick's Day bridge party with Mrs. Lawrence H. Miller, Miss Euphemia Trimble, Dr. Catherine Clarke, Mrs. Rowland Wilson, Mrs. E. F. Whitney and Mrs. W. H. Phillips comprising the committee on arrangments.

Lake Erie alumnae, under the chairmanship of Miss Frances Harper, have taken March 22, and the University of Wisconsin Club, March 24, for their "establishing parties." Wellesley Club members will entertain later in the month.

Other clubs which have established rooms are Smith College Club, Wilson College Club, Wheaton College Club, the alumnae of the University of Cincinnati, and the Wells College Club. The library has been taken by the Alumnae Association of Pennsylvania College for Women in memory of the college president, Miss Cora Helen Coolidge, who was one of the founders of the College Club.

Hospital Aid Society To Give Benefit Movie

A benefit movie will be held at the Stanley on Sunday under auspices of the Ladies' Hospital Aid Society. Funds realized from this project will be used to further the philanthropic work of the society.

Mrs. Simon Seegman, who heads the committee for this affair, has as her assistants Mrs. H. M. Kalmine, Mrs. S. R. Wilkoff, Mrs. Samuel Osgood, Mrs. I. M. Davis, Mrs. Ira Rosenbaum and Mrs. Morris Hershenson.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Cambrian Society of the North Side and the society will have their annual St. David's day celebration tomorrow evening in Emmanuel Baptist Church, Davis avenue.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Vera Myers, a fashion show and entertainment will be given Friday evening by the Delta Alpha Class of Calvary Presbyterian Church, Swissvale.

"Home and School Co-operation in Child Character Training" was the subject discussed last night at a meeting of Liberty Parent-Teacher Association's parent study group. The speaker was J. J. Coll, Liberty School principal.

Home Section Musicale at Congress

An exceptionally worthwhile musical program will be presented at the meeting of the home department of the Congress of Clubs following luncheon on Friday.

"Lo! Here the Gentle Lark" will be sung by Miss Gertrude Blenko, soprano, with flute obligato by Emmy Lou Bumgarner. Miss Blenko will also sing "Shortnin' Bread" by Wolf and "Joy" by Harvey Gaul and will be accompanied at the piano by her sister, Grace Blenko Martin. Mrs. Martin will also accompany Emmy Lou Bumgarner's flute solo "Scenes from Orpheus" by Gluck.

Dr. William W. McFarland, former head of the Department of Public Health, City of Pittsburgh, is to be the speaker and has chosen for his subject "Home, Health, Hazards."

A bake sale will precede luncheon with Mrs. E. D. McCafferty in charge.

Benefit Friday By Homewood Juniors

A benefit bridge will be held Friday evening by the Homewood Juniors at the home of Mrs. Elgin A. Hill, Fifth avenue. Mrs. Frank W. Law will be co-hostess. Husbands and friends are included in the guest list.

At the Juniors' March meeting, to be held Monday at the clubroom in Homewood Carnegie Library, Miss Karen Fladoes, director of Utility Hall, will speak on "The Art of Hospitality."

Music will be furnished by the Westinghouse High School Girls' special chorus, under the direction of Mrs. J. P. Alexander.

Sketches to Feature Mt. Lebanon Musicale

A costume recital featuring Japanese musical sketches by Mrs. Harold T. Hanson will be the principal program attraction at the evening musicale being sponsored by the music department of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club tonight at the home of Mrs. Adolph Krebs.

As a contrasting feature, Mrs. Edna Todd Batz will present a program of German lieder. Accompanists are Mae Barth Kinder and Luella Becker Volmrich.

Second Meet Arranged By Wilkinsburg Club

Today at the Y. W. C. A., the Wednesday Afternoon Club of Wilkinsburg is having its second February meeting. Under the leadership of Miss Ella Storer, the program is by Mrs. J. W. Adams, who has a paper on "Men of the Hour in Politics.'

Know-it-alls say that this season stripes and plaids are "to the fore"

And certain it is that for sports and simple daytime wear, the Pittsburgh stores have chosen stripes as leaders in their stockrooms! Simplicity of line and dramatic touches in the right spots make new Spring sportsters like the sketch here, an important addition to any wardrobe.

Sketch shows frock of striped Jenne (unstretchable silk jersey) in tan, rosy red or blue. With novel kid belt, silver ball buttons, double-breasted effect. A copyrighted model—sizes 14 to 20. Price $16.75.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

This is NOT the "day they give babies away with a half-a-pound-of-tea" . . . but proud possessors of future presidents or president's wives will rally to this bit of news! That . . .

The spectacle of "dides" need no longer grace your back yard or laundry now that some thoughtful company has gone to work and evolved some new-fangled ones which can be thrown away when used! The answer to many a mother's prayer we don't doubt . . . and in keeping with modern life. They're absolutely sanitary . . . with tape ties making them easy to put on . . . can be flushed away in a twinkle . . . and are reasonably priced—50c the dozen.

Still on the subject of babydom . . . we would also hand over the news of the sterilized bibs which are used once and discarded!

These mother's-helpers come packed in a cellophane-wrapped package—one dozen. In pastel shades. Priced 10c the package.

And if you have all such gadgets for the baby . . . then the suggestion of one of these new chenille rugs for the floor of the play pen will not come amiss.

These are but newly arrived . . . in pastel shades with flowers; or Little Bo Peeps and such on them . . . nice woolly softies to keep the baby comfy when he crawls about.

Others take the form of one of the Three Little Pigs . . . these to be used as bedside rugs lying in wait for little bare "piggies" which stretch toward cold floors when it's getting-up-time! $3.95 (and grand bargains for it, too).

Clean up your gloves and handbags . . . they get so grimy lugging them 'round the town. And now an old-old-timer in cleaning preparations comes to notice again! Made from the bark of certain trees (a secret handed down from great-grandmother's day) . . . and most efficient when it comes to cleaning smooth leathers. 25c the can.

Lipstick at a special price! THE lipstick so many of you swear by . . . named after one of the French kings . . . noted for its extremely lasting qualities. Usually $1 . . . now at 78c for a limited time. In four shades. * * *

Sometimes these days you find yourself "going West" even whilst going to sleep. The reason being the new Mae West nighties which are flaunting their ruffles in one of the stores and practically asking you to "come up and see them some time!"

Pale blue with peach colored ruffles 'round the bottom . . . cocoa lace edging and insertion (one inch wide) . . . and bows tied at each shoulder make this one as seductive as Mae herself.

Or if you go in for the coy coquette type of thing in the nightie line. . . try the other style which has lace and puffed sleeves. Belted with little satin ribbons. Sizes 15-16-17. And only $2.95 for all this glamour!

Ever since cottons came into their own a few years ago pique and seersucker have held first place in the ranks for smart daytime wear and trimming!

And these we've just seen are no exceptions. They're tailored types to put on and wear all day long as you go about your household duties . . . then wear through the day later when warm weather arrives and you want frocks for porch wear and marketing. In plain colors (the seersucker) and bright stripes . . . so many styles that your eyes go pop . . . sizes 14 to 42 . . . and costing the lowly sum of $2.98. Just the housewife's friend . . . that's what!

Braddock Club Offers 'Magazine' for February

The February edition of its "magazine" is being published today by the Woman's Club of Braddock, which is meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. H. C. Carlson has an original story and Mrs. George Martin an original poem. Mrs. J. B. Cook is doing the beauty column and fashions and a "Cook's Round Table" is conducted by Mrs. Ellis Hall, Mrs. S. F. Round and Mrs. James Richards.

THREE GOOD REASONS FOR HOLDING THE HEAD HIGHER

An ideal hat for the 'tween seasons, the bright brown rhumba straw cloth model above. The face band is gold, and there is another touch of the gold in the back of the design. It will be swell with a sports coat of Alaska seal in log-roller brown.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WOMEN HAVE NEVER been lacking in the attention they give their hair and their hats, but it seems as if Repeal is inducing them to be more astute than ever as to how they will titify the good points of their heads. It all comes from so much table-sitting. From luncheon, which has become an occasion, rather than a rush order, through teatime and dinner until after the theater, women who go places are constantly sitting around tables, whether or not they do a lot of eating and drinking.

JUST NOW THE HATS that they wear are harbingers of a spring that is certainly not even ready to dally in the lap of winter, so coy it is, but they certainly give worldly scenes an optimistic air. Straw fabrics are favorites, in shades that blend well and lightly with fur coats. All-white hats are extremely high style, perfectly swell with Persian lamb coats, or coats trimmed with silver fox, and there are a number of black straw brims tacked to white felt crowns, and trimmed with a gardenia or two, which are very good choices of the moment.

IN EVENING COIFFURES for the theater or a night of the light fantastic, the halo braid is in the limelight. It is a very becoming notion to most faces, for it tends to make the brow and eyes look wide, registering intelligence and freshness. It is perfectly permissible, however, to soften this hair arrangement if it is too severe for the specific brow, introducing a ripple of high-piled curls above it, from the rear, or Nana Sten bangs and kiss-wisps below it, over the face.

There are not so many big ornaments used now in very dressy hair arrangements. The brain has shooed away the jewelled halo very effectively, and it is really useful little pins and clips that are held over.

Necklaces are coming back, as predicted, for lower necklines.

The plain halo braid may not be every woman's best bet, and the arrangement above, where it is backed by curls, may be becoming.

It is to be a particularly navy blue spring, the little birds tell us, and here is a little yellow bird of defiant originality perched on a navy crepe hat which has an impudent swoop to its front brim, and a back brim which will fit very cozily into a fur coat.

Bread 'Starter' Wins Prudence Penny Prize

We're all of us interested in saving money, Prudence Penny knows, and any helpful hints as to wise economy are always welcome. Mrs. Elias Williams is well aware of this, so she gives us today an ever useful aid in the $5 prize winner.

Of her recipe she says:

"One way to avoid the expense of using large quantities of compressed yeast, especially with soft-wheat flour, is to keep some kind of "starter" from one baking to the next. My method of making liquid yeast with potatoes has proved particularly successful with soft-wheat flours."

Whether you've been keeping house for only a few months or for many, many years, you, too, must have some of these cooking aids. Send in your recipes which you have found both useful and delightful to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. For every recipe she uses she will pay you either $5 for the first prize or $1 for the 10 next best recipes. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. ELIAS WILLIAMS,
1012 Broadway, East McKeesport.

LIQUID YEAST OR STARTER

Three potatoes (three-fourths pounds.)
One and one-fourth cups boiling water.
One and one-eighth cups "starter" or one cake yeast in one and one-eighth cups water.
About one and one-half cups cold water.
Three and three-fourth tablespoons sugar.
One and one-half tablespoons salt.

Good, sound, clean potatoes must be used. Pare the potatoes, cut into small pieces, and cook until tender in the boiling water. Mash them in the water in which they were cooked. Add the sugar, salt and enough cold water to make three and one-fourth cups of liquid, and allow this mixture to become luke-warm (about 82 degrees F.). Add one and one-eighth cups of starter reserved from the last baking. If none of this starter is available, which of course is the case when making it for the first time, one cake of dried or compressed yeast soaked in one and one-eighth cups of luke-warm water may be used instead. Allow this mixture to stand over night. In the morning it should be light and frothy. Stir it well and pour off one and one-eighth cups to save as a starter for the next baking, and store this in a clean, scalded jar, loosely covered, in a cool place. In very cold weather it must be protected from freezing. The remainder is ready to use. The following directions for making bread from the liquid yeast are based on the use of soft-wheat flour:

About two and three-fourth pounds, or three squarts, sifted soft-wheat flour.
Five tablespoons sugar.
Three tablespoons shortening.
Three and one-fourth cups liquid yeast.

Set the yeast for about half an hour in a pan of water of the right temperature to bring it to about 82 degrees F. Add the shortening and sugar and gradually stir in the flour. The exact quantity of flour required for a given quantity of liquid differs, of course, according to the strength of the flour. The dough should be rather stiff.

If bread is baked twice a week or oftener and the starter is cared for properly, there should be no trouble with spoilage. If bread is not baked this often, the starter should be renewed by making up a new mixture, as described, at least once a week; or if the weather is hot and no cool storage place is available, as often as twice a week. If the mixture should by any chance develop any unusual appearance or odor it should be discarded and a new starter made with clean materials and scalded utensils.

Note In measuring, one-eighth cup equals two tablespoons.

'Joan of Arc of Politics' Warns Against Fascism

Introduced by Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, president of the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, as "The Joan of Arc of Politics," Miss Jennie Lee addressed the section yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. & W. H. A., speaking on "Fascism and World Revolutions."

Fascism has grown in Germany because it is all things to all men through its utterly contradictory appeals. It must not be assumed, she said, that what the Nazis say has the slightest relation to what is happening or what they want to happen.

Miss Lee, former Labor member of the English House of Commons, says she is declaring war on the racket which has as its objective exploitation of the idealism and decency and social aspirations of the ordinary citizen. Fascism is not an effort to make people think, but to establish certain emotional contacts; it is a movement built on contempt of the average intelligence, she stated.

Only united action against Fascism will avert another European war, Miss Lee declared, saying that military drilling, mental and material preparations are proceeding at top speed in Germany. Socialism alone can solve the problems of the modern world, she declared.

Also on the program was Mark Meyer, violinist, with Miss Hulda Lefridge at the piano.

The students of the Studio School of Art, Oliver avenue, organized a society on Saturday known as "The Daubers." The activities of the club will be both social and educational.

Outside speakers will address certain club meetings on different phases of art, to which the public will be invited. The regular meetings of the club will be held the first Thursday of each month. At least one social affair will be held each month.

Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Reid Jackson; first vice president, Miss Virginia Dauria; second vice president, William Baily; third vice president, William Lambert; secretary, Miss Betty Creighton; corresponding secretary, Miss Virginia Durning, and social chairman, Miss Annie Louise Uhl.

South Hills Study Group To Meet

"Entertaining the Islanders," by Struthers Burt, is being reviewed by Mrs. Fred S. Bloom at the meeting of the Wednesday study group of South Hills College Club today, for which Mrs. A. W. Skilling is hostess.

The Thursday group will meet at the home of Mrs. A. M. Langord tomorrow with Mrs. R. H. Braun, Jr., reviewing "The Farm," by Louis Bromfield.

On March 6 Mrs. Ross K. Conaway will review "As the Earth Turns," by Gladys Hasty Carroll, and Mrs. W. S. Speir will be hostess.

An interesting feature of the literary program for the Monday night study group this week was the appearance of Miss Jean Wiley, whose talk centered around the life of her father, Richard Wiley, author of "Whisky Rebellion."

Singing Festival To Be Given by Welsh Club

Sponsored by the Women's Welsh Club, a Welsh singing festival (gymanfa ganu) will be held at 3 o'clock and at 7:30 on Sunday (St. David's Day) in the Carmel Presbyterian Church, Oakland. In the evening the Rev. W. H. Williams will speak and a chorus of 50 voices will be heard under the direction of Samuel Jones.

A trio composed of Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens Cross, William Stephan and Thomas Morris will also appear on the program. Accompanists are Miss Jane Davies and J. Harry Jones. Tea will be served between sessions.

The club has scheduled a card party for March 15 at Spear's, and the regular monthly meeting for Monday evening in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Critical Attitude Barrier To Popularity

The UNADJUSTED are always HOWLING.

Please help me, Miss Brunot.

LONESOME.

The lonesome heart is always crying out. It is always the same cry. I haven't any friends. I want a boy friend. I don't do what the others do, and I don't go where they do. And yet, Lonesome, if you are different, why shouldn't there be different results. If you don't like to do what certain people do, there is only one answer, find people who don't do those things.

Put one thing right into your bonnet, sister, and think it over. It is that one of the biggest barriers to popularity is a critical attitude toward what others are doing.

MUST BE A FRIEND

Another thing to remember is that you mustn't always expect the worst.

Young people mostly mean well. They may be careless in their actions, and say a lot of loud-sounding words. But right down under all this, is the same desire as you have. That of keeping good.

I quite agree with your mother. The man who asked for information, and then made a date, may have been a playboy. Each girl meets a number like that, before the right man comes along.

Loneliness is a terrible thing. Yet we are born into it. All of us experience it. And often those who are clamoring the wildest for the best place on the van of lively times, is the loneliest of all.

Just because we shout out loud, and dance, and drink, is no reason we aren't heart hungry. There are few people any of us meet who are wholly companionable. Life is sort of a blind-man's game with us all. We stumble and fumble. And sometimes we find.

To have friends, you must be a friend, Lonesome.

You can't have a good time, and wear a long face.

By FAY KING

It is not that some persons are less sensitive than others, but that they have better control. They have learned to treat all baseness with the contempt and indifference it deserves.

If one flares up into a fury or rage every time one feels offended, and has a right to do so, one will be worn down by the frenzy of it all.

Better that this energy be used in application for one's own benefit. Think instantly that "this is nothing, and to ignore it is to rise above it."

A man once said "never show hostility until you can crush, and then show a better nature than that."

Until you learn to control your temper you are not master of yourself.

Young People Start Pursuit of Honeymooners

Before Bob could reply to Avis' proposal that she accompany the boys upon a chase "even to Queensboro Bridge," which Carolyn and Marion had said their mothers would not permit them to take, Carolyn interposed with the exaggerated idea of "playing up to the other girl," which so many modern young things have.

"I think that would be lovely of you, Avis," she said gallantly. "Of course, the boys wouldn't want to go without a girl, especially as they're chasing a bride as well as a groom, and as long as we can't go I think it is perfectly scrumptious of you to offer to go along."

"Thank you; that is sweet of you, Carol," Avis returned. "And I'll promise to return him without even a scar on his heart. I shall be on my very best behavior. Cross my heart! Hope to die!"

Her smile which I have heard her say has been called Mona Lisa's, but which reminded me far more forcibly of that of the Cheshire cat, was unmistakable in its complacent meaning. If she chose, that smile said, she would return with both boys shackled in her train. It implied plainly that only her forbearance—her refusal to use her lure—would give either Marion or Carolyn a chance to prove the loyalty of their swains.

BOYS DISAPPROVE

I felt as if I should shriek aloud as I waited what seemed an interminable minute, but which really was but the fraction of a second, for the boys to answer. I had heard intimate little grudges from both of them, and they had looked at each other inscrutably, but when Bob spoke his meaning was unmistakable.

"Sorry to spoil all the Gaston and Alphonse stunt, Carol," he said, "but if you and Marion can't come along with us, we're not going. In the first place this is your party as much as ours; and in the second, Ronald and I would never dare to drive through the moonlight with Avis for so long a stretch. We'd either both of us come home engaged to her, or one of us would be a corpse, and then there'd be a scandal."

There was the suspicion of a sneer in his voice, and I saw the eyes of Marion and Carolyn brighten with pardonable gratification as they recognized it. But the conceit of Avis Arlen renders her invulnerable to all such darts, and her response to the sally was a simpering, "Oh! Aren't you boys simply dreadful!"

START TO FOLLOW

"But what are we standing around here for?" Ronald demanded. "If we beat it over to the Ticers, we may at least find out which way they went. Something sometimes happens to even the newest of cars, you know—and then we'd be in luck."

Bob looked at him shrewdly. "Terrible lot of enthusiasm you're pumping up all of a sudden," he said; and I knew that the discovery Avis had made had revealed to Bob and Carolyn that Ronald and Marion had in reality been helping Noel and Mary to get away, instead of aiding the others to track them.

"I suppose you think we've been double-crossing you," Ronald began lamely.

"Think! you poor fish!" Bob retorted. "We don't think, when it's broadcast to us. We know. But we don't hold it against you. So come along and let's have the fun of chasing 'em, even if you haven't left us a Chinaman's chance of finding 'em."

His tone held no rancor. Indeed, it held distinct merriment, instead. And I drew a little breath of relief that the good fellowship of the evening had not been spoiled; indeed, had not been even marred.

"Come along, everybody!" Bob went on, and Avis simpered: "Does that mean me?"

"Sure thing!" Bob rejoined carelessly, and Avis fixed limpid eyes upon Carolyn and Marion.

"Won't you have to ask your mothers before you go?" she asked.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Widow's Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Am I correct when I say that a widow uses her husband's name until she remarries? For instance, if she is married to a Mr. John J. Jones, doesn't she use that signature until she remarries? A friend of mine states that she would use "Mrs. Alice Jones." Is there any circumstance where she does use "Mrs. Alice Jones?" M.

You are correct. A widow uses exactly the same forms of names as she used when her husband was living. Her formal name is Mrs. John Jay Jones. Her informal name is Alice Wells Jones. There may be some special legal circumstances when she might be directed to use the signature Mrs. Alice Jones, but socially she would not use this form . . . not with correct form and good taste.

How to Keep Well

:-: By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Twenty-Year War on Hookworm Is Successful

We are indebted to the Rockefeller Foundation of Medicine for its many discoveries in the field of medicine. One of the outstanding achievements of this notable institution is the control of hookworm, a disease that at one time was especially prevalent in the southern parts of the United States.

Dr. Copeland

It is now almost twenty years since the Rockefeller sanitary commission attempted to eradicate this obstinate and harmful disease. At the time the commission began its work more than thirty-nine per cent of the school children in the south were afflicted with hookworm. Though the disease is not entirely eradicated few cases of hookworm are now seen.

In addition to greatly reducing the number of cases, the commission has triumphed in its battle against filth and uncleanliness. This was only made possible by the rigid enforcement of laws governing hygiene, and the education of the afflicted sections as to the dangers of hookworm and other diseases that result from careless habits of hygiene.

Persons afflicted with hookworm are described as being lazy. They lack "pep," and strength and show definite signs of physical and mental backwardness. As the disease progresses, digestive disturbances appear. A peculiar symptom of this disorder is the perverted desire of the sufferer to consume odd articles, such as clay, dirt, resin, chalk and hair.

Hookworm is caused by small worms which enter the skin. The worms attack particularly those who walk barefooted. For this reason the first precaution taken against this disease is to advise against going barefooted. Once the worms reach the skin they burrow through it, get into the intestine. Here they multiply rapidly.

If unmolested they severely undermine the health of the victim. The disease is contagious.

Once the hookworm becomes lodged in any portion of the intestine, it may live there for years unless destroyed by proper medicine. It has been estimated that an individual afflicted with hookworm may harbor from a dozen to a thousand worms. Since each worm sucks blood from the intestinal wall, great damage is done to the health of the victim.

Hookworms are destroyed by the use of "thymol" or "carbon tetrachlorid". Of course, this should only be used under the supervision of a physician. He will prescribe the necessary dosage. As a rule, a few doses destroy the worms and eggs of the hookworm.

Answers to Health Queries

J. W. Q.—I am 16 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, what should I weigh?

A.—You should weigh about 114 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of your age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

A. L. Q.—What causes stiffness in the knees? 2. What do you advise for falling hair?

A.—This may be due to arthritis. Send self-addressed, envelope for further particulars and repeat your question. 2. Brush the hair daily and use a good tonic.

R. S. N. Q.—What causes little lumps under the skin?

A—This is probably due to scabies. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

:-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Big Swing

Purely and simply out of a ritable feeling towards the erts involved, I will not dige the names of the culprits o misplayed today's hand. e South player, playing with weaker partner, opened the ding with a complete psychic d eventually bid and made a ne which should have been eated two tricks. And, to ke the swing even greater, st and West had a laydown ne of their own.

South, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

—A psychic, but a very dan ous one. South fears that opponents may have a lay n game or Slam and hopes eep them from reaching it. seven-card spade suit makes bid sufficiently safe.

—A very bad Forcing bid, ch, however, turned out quite ply for North and South.

—South feels that he is com ed to rebid his psychic after th's Forcing bid. Besides if can keep the bidding suffi tly low, partner may have ugh to enable him to make e in spades.

—A very fine bid indeed by th, even though three no mp would have been fol ed by South's bidding four des, anyway.

glance at the four hands show that four hearts is a down for East and West, and to the fact that the King of des is adversely located four des should be defeated by tricks.

The South player, however s more than equal to the oc ion and played the hand most ceptively. West made the best ening of the diamond King. clarer won it with the Ace, d then immediately led the art Knave to trick 2. South alized he was in a hopeless ntract, which might be made ly through the process of mpletely concealing his cor ct holdings from his op nents, and as a result getting d defense.

East won the heart lead with e Ace, and led a low diamond but his partner in. West ruffed his singleton spade, th Declarer passed, and ect won with the King, im diately returning another ade and thus removing Dummy's last trump. Declarer now led the club King from Dummy, and East made his first mistake. On the basis of Declarer's play to Trick 2, he decided that South held originally three hearts to the King-Ten and that, since the last trump had been removed from Dummy, he must eventually make another heart trick unless the club suit could be used for discards. East accordingly did not go up with the club Ace in an effort to kill Dummy. As a matter of fact, a careful count of the hand would have enabled East to make the correct play.

At any rate, after the King of clubs held, Declarer led a low diamond from Dummy and trumped in his own hand. He now ran all his spades, and poor East found himself pseudo-squeezed. He could not get the idea out of his head that Declarer had the guarded King of hearts and therefore, when he was forced to discard again at the eleventh trick, he decided that Declarer must have originally held a singleton club, and therefore it would be necessary to discard the club Ace to prevent the Queen of hearts from dropping on the King. After this discard South was able to lead his low club, and, having previously dropped the Ten under the King, he was able to finesse against West's Knave and take the last two tricks in Dummy.

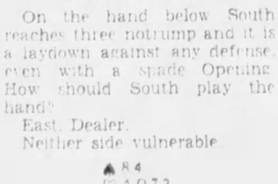
Although East's defense admittedly was quite bad, Declarer must be given a great deal of credit for the deceptive and tricky manner in which he played the hand. His play, however, could not have worked against very weak opponents as they would never have thought of staying off the first club to kill the Dummy.

Tomorrow's Hand

On the hand below South reaches three notrump and it is a laydown against any defense, even with a spade Opening. How should South play the hand?

East, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Embroidery Colorful on Dress

Now that Lent is here, the wise mother begins to busy herself with the Easter wardrobe of her young daughter. And what could be more appropriate on a child's dress for spring and summer than a dainty touch of embroidery and a bit of smocking? They enhance a dress and give it that expensive look that every needlewoman strives for. The embroidery, in the simplest of stitches, is easy to do and gives an opportunity for contrasting color. The smocking repeats this, giving an effective accent. Both the embroidery and the smocking can be used on any dress, but are most effective on Dress Pattern 652, which has simple lines and is easy to make.

Pattern 646 contains sufficient embroidery for the front and back of the yoke shown, smocking for the front and back of a dress; complete directions for the embroidery and smocking as well as illustrated stitches.

Dress Pattern 652 is available in a tissue pattern in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Yardages and a step-by-step guide for making the dress are given with the pattern.

Send 10 cents for Embroidery Pattern 646. Send 15 cents for Dress Pattern 652 (25 cents for both patterns) to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Sisters Race to Win Washday Speed Test

Two young wives who are sisters staged a washday speed test. Each sister used the same laundry soap, the same washing method, but Mrs. B— added two tablespoons or so of Lux to each tub of suds.

Then they compared notes. Mrs. B— finished first, yet both sisters agreed her wash looked ever so much nicer!

"Adding the Lux gave me much richer suds and these better suds got the clothes clean quicker," she said. "My wash looked lovely—white things so white and colored things just sparkling."

Why not try this new washday trick? It saves time and work!

NOTE: Use only Lux—no other soap—for silks, woolens, rayons. Delicate fabrics should never be exposed to harsh alkali or cake-soap rubbing.

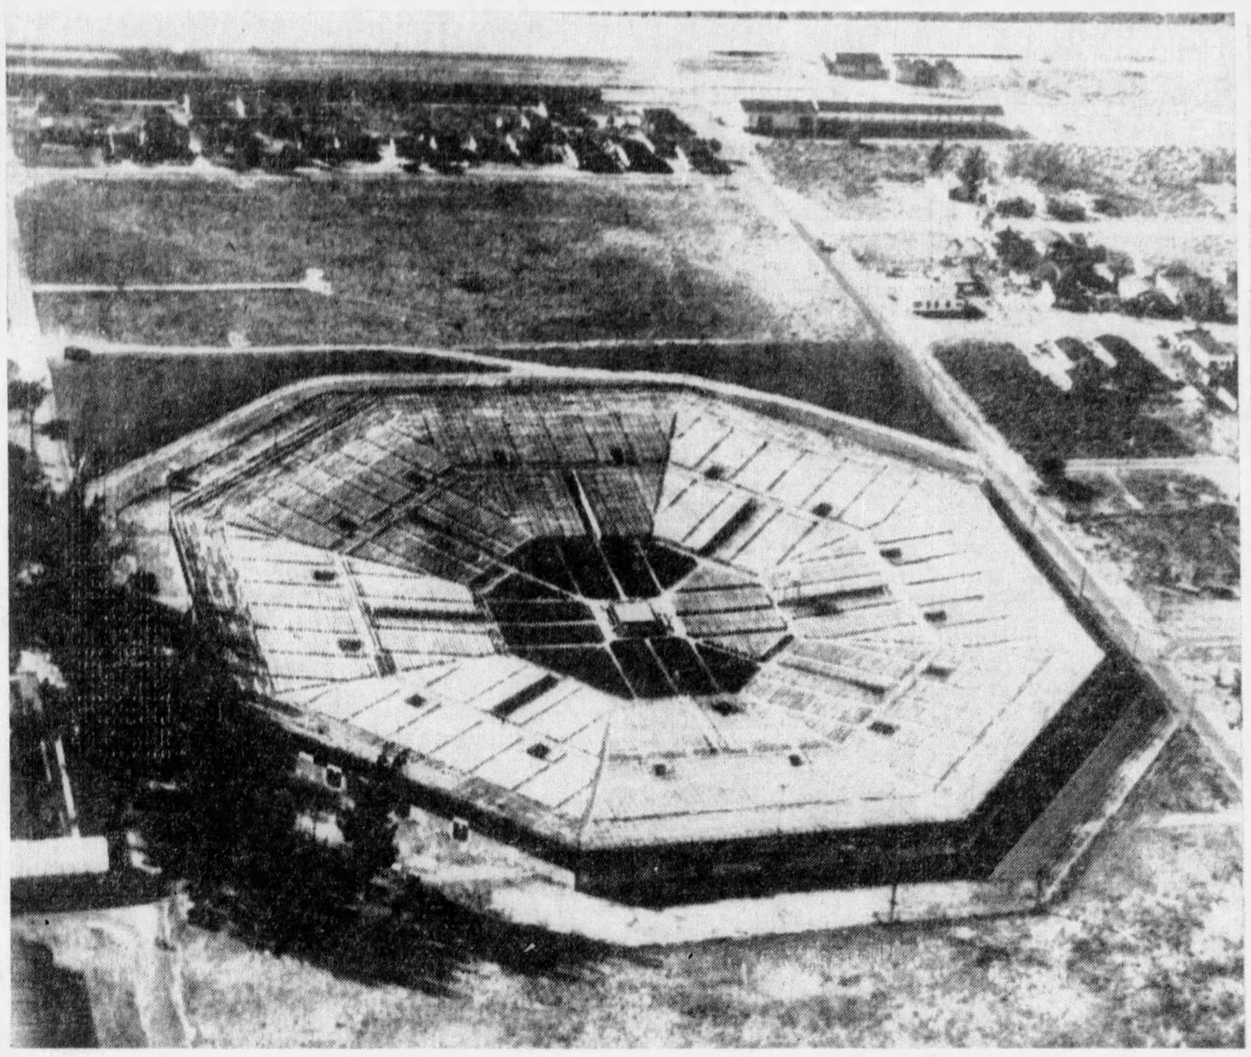
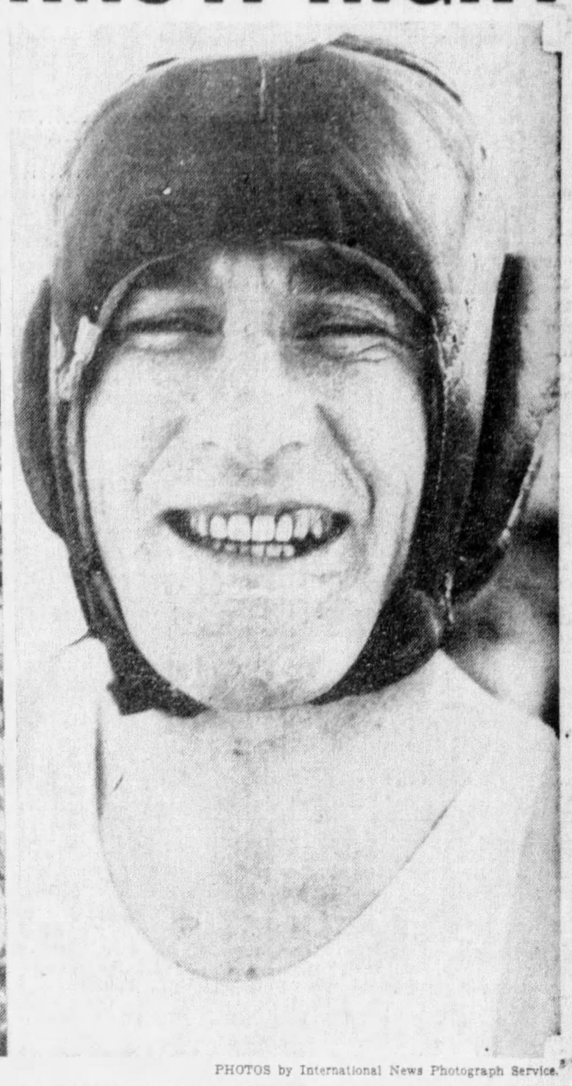
CARNERA FIGHT POSTPONED UNTIL TOMORROW NIGHT

PRIMO CARNERA, DEFENDING HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE



AIRPLANE VIEW OF MIAMI (FLA.) BOWL, SCENE OF BATTLE FOR WORLD BOXING CROWN POSTPONED UNTIL TOMORROW NIGHT



TOMMY LOUGHRAN, THE 31-YEAR-OLD CHALLENGER

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Carnera Seen as Victor.
Youth and Size Factors.
Loughran Minus Weapons.
Many Shifts By Quinn.
Appeal of Ray Missing.
Hughes' Transformation.

The outcome of the world heavyweight championship fight tomorrow night in Miami appears to depend on the form and condition of Primo Carnera. At his best, though admittedly that best is below the standards of past champions, Carnera ought to win on youth and great physicial advantages. Tommy Loughran's only chance for victory would seem to hinge on Carnera's lacking fitness and being out of stride. An upset of the dope would be pleasing to all American fans, as naturally they would like to see the title return to this country and there is no cleaner or more popular figure in the game than Loughran. But at this late stage of his career, Tommy just doesn't seem to have the stuff required to get away with the big job ahead of him.

Primo Carnera

Though the Philadelphian still is by far the best boxer among the heavyweights, it is doubtful if age and ringwear will permit him to maintain for 15 rounds the advantage that his skill probably will gain for him in the early frames. It will take a puncher to beat the giant titleholder, and Loughran is anything else. An otherwise great left hand is utterly barren of punching power. That impotent port jab is the challenger's only weapon. And it will hardly be enough.

POWER OF OTHER GOOD LEFTS MISSING

There's no disputing the value of a good south arm. As an old ring saying puts it, a fighter is no better than his left hand. But to be effective, he must be able to do more with it than merely jab in powder-puff fashion. It was a left with which Corbett beat Sullivan, Fitzsimmons beat Corbett, Johnson beat Jeffries, and Dempsey almost won from Tunney in their second meeting. But Corbett had the youth and stamina to outlast the poorly conditioned Sullivan, and those other lefts mentioned had something back of them. There is nothing back of Loughran's. Tommy cannot hurt Carnera, and Primo usually fights a lot better when he knows an opponent has no punch to be feared.

The titleholder himself is not a hitter, but he ought to win this fight by wearing Loughran down through the use of his much greater weight and strength at close quarters. Carnera looks like the winner, possibly by a knockout, and at least by a decision through piling up an advantage against a tired foe in the late rounds. As a spectacle, the bout is apt to be keenly disappointing, perhaps one of the worst title affairs on record, and worth no more than the slim gate it will draw.

MANY MANAGERIAL CHANGES UNDER QUINN

In being summarily relieved of the managership of the Dodgers for the reported reason that he and Business Manager Bob Quinn were far apart in their baseball ideas, Max Carey was only sharing the fate of a number of other pilots who did not last long on clubs with which Quinn held an office of authority. Frequent managerial changes have been made by clubs with which Bob was connected.

Bob Quinn

During Quinn's last year with the Browns, that club had two managers in Lee Fohl and Jimmy Austin before George Sisler was appointed. Going to Boston in 1924 to succeed Harry Frazee as president of the Red Sox, Quinn's first act was to dismiss Frank Chance and install Fohl as pilot. The Red Sox failed to improve, and Fohl was released, and Bill Carrigan was brought out of retirement. Carrigan failed to come up to expectations, and Heinie Wagner was placed in charge of the team. One season was all that Wagner lasted, and Shauno Collins took the reins, only to give up in the middle of the 1932 season, Marty McManus being appointed in his place to become the sixth Hub skipper in nine years.

PRESENT MILE STARS LACK COLOR OF RAY

While Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke, the current star one-mile runners, have been holding the attention of the track public with their repeated speed tests in winter meets, they owe their popularity solely to their performances. The interest in them comes from their close competition, speculation as to whether a succeeding race will change a previous result and as to whether a record is going to be cracked. Their appeal lies in the timer's watch.

Veteran track followers remark that in that respect, Cun-

The stage is set for the annual playoff series for the City Scholastic League basketball championship and three first round battles have been run off in the annual W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament.

Perry High School, defeating Oliver, 35 to 25, captured the Section II title in the City League yesterday afternoon and will meet South High, of Section I, defending league champion, in the first of the three-game series Friday.

Bob Kornick led Perry's attack, caging eight field goals and three fouls for a total of 19 points.

SOUTH WINS TWELFTH

In other games yesterday, South tallied its twelfth victory for the season without defeat, beating Fifth Avenue, 38 to 24; Connelley crushed Westinghouse, 47 to 10; Schenley won over Peabody, 29 to 15; Langley bumped Allegheny, 42 to 27, and South Hills toppled Carrick, 33 to 23.

Brentwood, Mapleton and East Pittsburgh, representing Sections XII, XIII and XVIII, respectively, turned in first round triumphs in the W. P. I. A. L. tournament.

Playing on the Mt. Lebanon High School floor, Brentwood came from behind to eliminate McDonald, 19 to 15. McDonald won the title in Section XIV. McDonald led, 10 to 6, at the end of the first half, but Brentwood staged a game rally in the last two periods to win out.

MAPLETON ADVANCES

Mapleton fought off East Pike Run, of Section XVI, as the latter staged a late rally to win, 28 to 25, on the Carmichaels floor. Mapleton led, 20 to 12, as the final period opened, but East Pike Run gave the former's supporters some uneasy moments as the boys staged a brave drive for points.

Johnny Coleman's East Pittsburgh five took things easy against Perryopolis, winning by a score of 54 to 27. The game was played on the Scott High School court.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE GRAND OLD MAN OF WORK—Robert Harrison, of Culverton, England, can lay a strong claim to being the world's oldest worker, having turned out hose for his firm, I. and R. Morley Company, of Nottingham, for more than 76 years. Harrison, who now is 90, started work at the age of 13, at the old hand-frame knitting machines, and today works at the oldest frame in all England—a frame that bears the scars of the earliest strikes of the industry, when laborers were striking for 15 and 14-hour days. Harrison still is suprisingly agile and alert and is assisted in his work by a son, aged 60, as well as a middle-aged grandson. At one time 10 of his children were knitting for Morley's.

Amateur bouts, Spartan Club, Wilkinsburg.
Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, Stadium, Chicago.
Tootsie Bashara vs. George Gibbs, 10 rounds, Atlantic City.
Eddie (Kid) Wolfe vs. Harry Dublinsky, 10 rounds, Memphis.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Rain today forced a postponement until tomorrow night of the world heavyweight title fight between Primo Carnera, the champion, and Challenger Tommy Loughran, which had been scheduled for the Madison Square Garden outdoor arena here tonight.

Decision to delay the fight another day was made by Garden officials as rain, which has fallen here intermittently during the past two days, continued to drench the countryside this morning.

Managers of the two fighters were called into a conference with officials of the Garden, and, after receiving a weather forecast that the unsettled weather probably would continue all day, the postponement decision was reached.

Loughran, who has completed his training for the 15-round title bout at headquarters in West Palm Beach, was notified of the postponement just as he was preparing to come here to weigh in with the giant champion.

As a result of the postponement, the fighters will not weigh in until 1:30 p. m. tomorrow.

SMALL GATE SEEN

Officials of Madison Square Garden of New York, promoting the fight, declared today most of the 2,000 ringside seats at $20 each had been sold or reserved. Even so, it is unlikely the net gate receipts would go far beyond the $50,000 mark. The attendance, cash and on the cuff, may not pass 25,000.

For a heavyweight title battle this would be the lowest "gate" in more than 30 years, contrasting sharply with the glamorous $400,000 fistic show that followed Tex Rickard's first invasion of this tropical resort in 1929.

Despite an extraordinary "build-up" for the popular and clever, but light-hitting, Loughran's chances, insiders consider Carnera a sure thing to win, probably by a knockout inside six or eight rounds.

FIGHT ON AIR HERE

Announcement was made today by Frank Smith, manager of radio station WWSW, that he has obtained permission from the Madison Square Garden interests to recreate the Carnera-Loughran fight through telepraphic description from the ringside, which will be announced by Walter Sickles, WWSW sports announcer.

Station KQV is attempting to make similar arrangements.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Bobby Leitham boxes Georgie Annarino and Frankie Wolfram meets Frankie Martin in 10-round bouts in Detroit Friday night.

Jimmy Vaughn, Cleveland featherweight, boxes Buddy Scrutchings, of Barberton, O., in a six-rounder in Cleveland the same night. Chuck Burns meets Mickey Dugan, Frankie Wine engages Lloyd Tremmell and Jack Pallat meets Eddie Roushkolb in other bouts on the card.

Georgie Nichols and Harry English do the honors in Cleveland next Monday night.

Tootsie Bashara meets Young Firpo in Philadelphia tomorrow night and Joe Kaminski collides with Ken Overlin there the following night.

Seven bouts make up an amateur boxing show under the auspices of the Spartan Club in its hall in Wilkinsburg tonight.

Entries close tonight for the Greater Pittsburgh amateur tournament to be staged at the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh beginning tomorrow night.

Val Grunenwald (or Grunen, as he was known when he was boxing around here) has been handing Chuck Mullins, Beechview light-heavyweight, for several months and has him ready now to turn loose in battles and has bouts in prospect at McKeesport next Monday night, the Moose Temple, Thursday of next week, when Francis Flynn plans to stage his first show, with Al Quail and Max Elling in the six-round windup, and at Motor Square Garden a week from next Monday. Chuck, former A. A. U. heavyweight champion was stricken with appendicitis after engaging in eight professional fights and has been out of the ring ever since.

STAR QUINTETS ON SEALS' BILL

Do you want to know who are the leading college and scholastic basketball players of the Pittsburgh district?

Very well. Tune in on the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight, and you'll hear all about them.

Jess Carver will name his all-star college team for the season, and Julius Levin will elaborate on his All-City League team, which appears in today's issue of the Sun-Telegraph. Carver's team will be published tomorrow.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will collaborate with Carver and Levin in the broadcast.

MARSHALL VICTOR

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Outplaying the invaders from start to finish, the Big Green quintet of Marshall College upset the Davis-Elkins basketball quintet in a fast game last night, 46 to 41.

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions:

1—Who is the head of the Department of Hygiene in charge of athletics in the Pittsburgh Public Schools?

2—Name the Pittsburgh golfer who has won the National public links title three times.

3—Who was the first president of the Allegheny County Basketball League?

4—Who, besides Eben M. Byers and Dave Herron, won the National amateur golf championship for Pittsburgh?

5—Where did the famous Coffey Club basketball team get its start?

(Answers in Want Ad section tomorrow. See today's Want Ad section for answers to yesterday's questions.)

TOURNEY DATES SET

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Feb. 28.—The Board of Education has set March 16-17 and March 30-31 as the respective weekend dates for the fifth annual junior and ninth annual senior Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia basketball tournaments which will be held here.

DONCHESS GOES TO DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Joseph C. Donchess, all-America end at Pittsburgh in 1929, and now a member of the staff at the Deaconess Hospital, Boston, today was named end coach of the Dartmouth varsity football team.

Joe Donchess

Announcement of the selection of Donchess was made by Harry R. Heneage, supervisor of athletics. Donchess will work under Dartmouth's new head coach, Earl Blaik. He was end coach at Pitt from the conclusion of his playing career in 1929 until last spring, and is the second Pitt coach to join the Blaik staff. The other was Andrew F. Gustafson, who was chosen as the new backfield coach.

Donchess will come here next week to join with Blaik in the preparations for spring practice, which is scheduled to get under way within two weeks.

Donchess began his medical interneship at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg, and went to the Deaconess in Boston within the past year. He will continue his study of pathology and surgery at the Dartmouth medical school and a local hospital.

TOM DAVIES SIGNS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Tom Davies, former all-American football star at Pitt, has been reappointed football coach at the University of Rochester. Davies will start his ninth season at the Rochester college in September.

At Jacksonville, Fla.—Eddie Buri defeated Russell Gonzales, 10 rounds; Charley Gaynor defeated Joe Vergas, 8 rounds.
At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Al Rowe defeated Johnny Alba, 10 rounds.
At Dallas, Tex.—Tracy Cox defeated Ray Kiser, 10 rounds; Babe Kiser defeated Charley Light, 8 rounds.

TENNIS PROS PAD RANKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Professional tennis has made further inroads into amateur ranks as Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, Cal., present ninth ranking player of the United States and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., seventh ranking star in 1926, agreed to join Big Bill Tilden's touring troupe.

They will play their first matches for pay at New Haven, March 21 and then make a nationwide tour with Tilden and Ellsworth Vines, Jr., former United States and Wimbledon titleholder, who deserted the simon pures last fall and since has made some $30,000 for himself.

'BAMA WINS TITLE

ATLANTA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Alabama put on the steam last night to roll over the fighting gators from Florida, 41 to 25, and win the Southern Conference basketball championship.

SOUTH AND CONNELLEY LEAD IN ALL-STAR SELECTIONS

ED SPOTOVICH AND MILKOVICH HONORED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Rich in the development of outstanding basketball players, many of whom played brilliant ball their first season as regulars, the task of selecting the best performers in two sections of the City High School League presents a difficult problem due to an abundance of sterling forwards and centers and a dearth of first-class guards.

Ed Spotovich

Due to the keen competition for all positions on the two quintets, it was necessary to make a shift or two in order to reward the boys who could not be deprived of recognition for their consistently good work throughout the season.

PLAYERS SHIFTED

In announcing its all-scholastic selections composed of the most worthy performers in the City League, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has found it necessary to shift players out of their regular positions in order to round out what it considers to be the best-balanced teams in the local circuit.

This is especially true in the case of Eddie Spotovich, one of the greatest all-around athletes turned out by a City League school in rs. Spotovich, nominally a ter, has been moved to forward nake room for Frank (Hank) nowski. Connelley's sterling t man. Spotovich, the leading er in the City League, having psed the mark set by Arthur att, Schenley star of two years go, is an all-round performer n the floor and could play forward with as much finesse as he displays at the center post. A fine floor man, an excellent shot and a teamworker in every sense of the word, Spotovich has been the keyman in the fine attack shown by the Orioles all season. His sterling performances have played a prominent role in keeping South's City League record for the past two seasons free of defeat.

KORNICK SELECTED

Spotovich's running mate at the other forward post is Bob Kornick, scoring ace of the Perry High School quintet and the leading point-getter in Section 11. Kornick, chosen as forward last season, thus wins all-scholastic honors in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for the third successive time, the only City League athlete to accomplish this achievement. Kornick's scoring ability has enabled Perry to come through with its second successive Section 11 championship. He has the distinction of being the only player in Section 11 to win a place on the first team. Those who have followed the City League teams in both sections must admit that the major portion of individual stars is found in the first group.

Coming to the important position of center we find Frank (Hank) Evanowski, of Connelley, a product of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club, chosen for this important task despite the fact he was playing his first season in the City League. A tall, rangy athlete, with an accurate eye for field goals from all sections of the floor, Hank was the only boy to give Spotovich any trouble during the past City League race. Evanowski did not have the supporting cast that assisted Spotovich, whose team is heralded as being superior to that which represented the Orioles on the floor last season despite the loss of Bill Jesko.

SWITCHED TO GUARDS

Two boys who confined their activities to the forward posts on their teams during the regular City League campaigns are switched to guards due to the dearth of good players for these positions. Ed Milkovich of South on whose shoulders was placed the task of filling Jesko's shoes, came through nobly and few will deny him the right to a place on the first team. A shifty performer, a perfect shot and a fine defensive player, Milkovich helped South High supporters forget the brilliant exploits of Jesko. He played an important role in the success attained by the Orioles. His ability to roam the floor makes him an ideal basketball player.

Like Milkovich, Eddie Stroloski of Connelley, was an all-round performer. Also a forward, Stroloski is moved to guard because he can play the position to a queen's toaste. The keyman in the Connelley attack an offense that succeeded in mastering every team in the Section I race with the exception of South High, which fact kept the Traders out of the post-season playoff series for the title. Stroloski was the boy who steadied the play of the Connelley quintet. He is a fighter from the first whistle to the last, he breaks up passes consistently and his work as a sharpshooter leaves little or no room for improvement. As was the case of Evanowski, Stroloski made the first selection his first season on the Connelley team.

SECOND TEAM STRONG

The second team is not far behind the first in all-round effectiveness. George Fowle, of South Hills, and Joe Galiszewski of South, were chosen as forwards their regular positions although Fowle at times appeared at center. Both boys are excellent shots and good floor men. Galiszewski is rated one of the fastest youngsters in the Section I race.

Stanley Puzausky, of Langley High School, a deaf and dumb boy is named as center on the second team. Under normal conditions, Puzausky would have qualified for a berth on the first team, but the material for the center position was of such extraordinary quality this season, that it was impossible to find a higher position for him.

Two boys who played an important part in the success attained by their respective teams are named as guards on the second quintet. In Charley Miskevics, of South, and Bill Dignan, of Langley, the second team includes two guards who deserve being rated among the best in the local circuit. Miskevics is not a player of the flashy type, but he nevertheless plays an important role in the South attack. Few passes elude him and his ability to snare the ball off the banking board invariably resulted in field goals for the Orioles. He comes through with points when they are needed most.

VALUABLE PLAYER

Like Miskevics, Dignan has proved himself one of the most valuable performers on R. R. Russell's quintet, a team that stayed in the running for the Section II crown until the closing weeks. While Miskevics confines his activities mainly to preventing the opposition from scoring, Dignan also plays an important part in the Langley attack. Miskevics and Dignan had the misfortune to show their best form when the caliber of play in the City League was of such high quality, otherwise both boys would have merited first-team rating.

Each member of the first team will receive a gold medal from the Pintex Corporation, which organization also presents a trophy to the winner of the city championships in basketball and football.

M'GRAW RITES IMPRESSIVE

International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—This big city and the world of sport paid final tribute today to John J. McGraw, baseball's "little Napoleon," who for 30 years managed the New York Giants.

More than 5,000 mourners attended a solemn high requiem mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, while as many more lined Fifth avenue near the edifice.

At 7:30 a. m. private services were held at the McGraw home in Pelham Manor.

Only a few intimate friends and relatives of Mrs. McGraw attended, among them Mrs. Christy Mathewson, widow of the great Giant pitcher; Mrs. Bessie Cregar, sister of Mrs. Mathewson; Mrs. Stephen Van Lill, of Baltimore, sister of Mrs. McGraw, and Edward James, an elderly Negro servant.

NOTABLES ATTEND

A line of 110 honorary pallbearers awaited the casket at the Cathedral and inside the Cathedral notables of sport, of politics and of finance jammed every available seat.

Bill Terry, who succeeded McGraw as manager of the Giants; Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the ball club; Eddie Collins, vice president of the Boston Red Sox; Sam Watters, vice president and secretary of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and hundreds of other prominent figures in the baseball world were present.

The solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Vincent De Paul Mulry, pastor of the church attended by McGraw in Pelham Manor.

The eulogy was given by the Rev. Henry F. Hammer, representing Monsignor Michael J. Lavelle. He spoke of the sportsmanship and leadership of the deceased.

'GOODBY, JOHN'

It was a simple service amid the thousands of candles throwing shadows from the altar upon the casket blanketed with orchids and roses. A great orchid wreath from the American League, friendly rival circuit of his own league, the National, stood out amid the floral tributes.

Finally the services came to a close as Father Mulry blessed the body. Softly the organist played a dirge. The coffin was carried down the aisle. Mrs. McGraw and relatives following. Outside thousands lined the street as the coffin was placed in a waiting hearse to be taken to Baltimore. There the body will be placed temporarily in a vault for interment in the spring.

Before the casket was closed in his home in Pelham Manor, Mrs. McGraw, the widow, leaned over and kissed his forehead. She said:

"Goodby, John."

ROOKIE HURLER MAY WIN JOB WITH BUCS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 28.—As the Pirates speed west to their training camp at Paso Robles, Cal., Manager George Gibson seemingly has only one worry. It isn't about who is going to play second base or whether Pitcher Bill Swift eventually will desert the holdout ranks, either.

Gibby's worry is Lloyd Johnson the huge southpaw pitcher whom the Pirates purchased last fall from the Missions club of the Pacific Coast League. Johnson is the biggest player in organized baseball, and it is said that he also can outdo Larry French around the dinner table.

There isn't a uniform in the Pirate baggage which will fit him, and Gibby today was considering piecing two uniforms together to get a suit large enough to drape around Johnson's huge frame.

Johnson supposedly is six feet four inches tall, but Leon Chagnon, who played on the same club with him a few years ago, declares he is two inches taller than that. He weighs around 220 pounds. Incidentally, Chagnon is one of Johnson's best boosters. He says that Johnson has the stuff to make a big league pitcher if he can gain control. He always has been a wild man. To this Gibson replies that he never saw a young left-hander who wasn't wild and he isn't worried on that score.

With Swift still unsigned and among the missing, there is room for Johnson on the Pirate staff if he can show anything at all. He promises to be the prize rookie in camp this year, a distinction which Ralph Birkofer held last spring.

When Pitcher Heinie Meine joined the Pirate entourage at Omaha yesterday morning, every batteryman to date was accounted for.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—The Chicago Blue Ribbons will be hosts to the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets in an American and International Lacrosse Association game here tonight.

The White Sox, Chicago's other entry in the Association, moved into a tie with the Jackets for first place in the second half race by downing Pittsburgh, 11-4, here Sunday. The Ribbons can make it a three-way deadlock for the lead by winning tonight, but a Pittsburgh victory will give the visitors undisputed possession of the top rung.

Cochran in Cue Exhibition Tonight

Welker Cochran, versatile cue star, who was dethroned as world three-cushion billiard champion last week, is to appear in an exhibition match at Tobin's Parlors, Smithfield street, tonight.

Cochran is making a tour of Western Pennsylvania towns and cities.

VERDI ROLLS HIGH SCORES

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI

John Verdi, alley manager of the Keystone Athletic Club, turned in a remarkable average of 227 1/10 at tenpins for 10 games while warming up on the club alleys for the American Bowling Congress tournament at Peoria, Ill., which gets under way March 8. He recorded 68 strikes and 31 spares.

Verdi started the onslaught with a 191 score, the lowest he rolled, and continued with 208, 258, 235, 213, 207, 256, 222, 212 and concluded with 269.

Verdi's best score for a single game is 287. He has rolled 756 for three contests.

John also is a duckpinner, but he prefers the tenpins. In duckpins he has registered a 267 tally and a 689 set. He was assistant alley manager at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association for eight years before going to the Keystone A. C. in 1930.

Two teams will represent the Keystone Club at the A. B. C., rolling on April 6.

Teams in Tie For Bike Lead

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A tie between the teams of McNamara and Lands and Brocardo and Guimbretiere existed early today in the fifty-second hour of the six-day bike race at Madison Square Garden.

ROCKETS ELIMINATED

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Feb. 28.—Slippery Rock was eliminated from further consideration for championship honors in the Western Pennsylvania Teachers' College basketball championship here last night when Indiana romped off with an easy 42-27 win over the local floormen.

SPORTS COMMENT

ningham, Bonthron and Venzke differ from some of the great runners of earlier days. The present-day stars are not of the type of Joie Ray, Charley Paddock or Jake Driscoll, it is contended. Of the latter three, only Ray was a miler, but it wasn't only his speed that made him an international standout. Joie was a crowd man who played up to the spectators. People turned out to see Ray run, not merely because he was a great runner in his day, but because he gave a show. It didn't matter whether he won or lost. A race was worth looking at just because Ray was in it. At that, Joie's fame didn't get him much. Now he's just a figure in walkathons and dance marathons, picking up coins tossed on the floor by the spectators.

PITT PASSER'S STRANGE REVERSAL

When a severe cold recently forced Charley Hughes to miss several important games, the absence of the veteran Pitt court guard from the lineup brought to attention one of the strangest reversals of form that college basketball has seen. As a freshman on Paul Zehfuss' Panther Cubs, Hughes was about the greenest player observed in the Stadium in years. He had great spirit, but was sadly lacking in finesse. Game after game saw him leave before the finish as the referee waved him out on the personal foul rule. He earned the nickname of "Off-Tackle Charley" because of the way he charged up and down the floor.

Charley Hughes

However, Coach Carlson detected in Hughes the makings of a fine guard and used him the following year, calling him into service when the going became rough, literally speaking, on the Panthers' ill-fated Western trip. But as a diamond, Charley still was in the rough, and during his first two seasons on the varsity he led the field in personal fouls. There were few close games that did not see the elder of the Hughes brothers making his exit by that route. But the present season witnessed a striking change. While still playing great defensive basketball, Charley has developed into one of the cleanest players in the sport. Before being forced out by illness, he participated in 15 games and only 18 personal fouls were called against him. Such a record spells real basketball skill, especially under the aggressive defensive system followed by Dr. Carlson's teams.

Duquesne	0	2	1	3	14	.000

The City Hockey League will offer its second doubleheader of the season at Duquesne Garden tonight, when the Pirates will oppose Carnegie Tech and the J. Scott Morgans will do battle with the Red Ravens. The Pirates-Tech game originally was billed for Monday, but was postponed because of the local All-Stars-Buffalo tilt. The first face-off tonight will be at 8 o'clock.

Because they are deadlocked for first place in the league race, with little more than two weeks of play remaining, the Morgans and Pirates can be depended upon to "shoot the works" against their supposedly weaker opponents. The lineups:

Pirates.		Carnegie Tech.
Rodenbaugh	G.	Adamson
McCutcheon	D.	Dubin
Silk	D.	Gannon
McGill	C.	Bell
McGovern	W.	Jerge
Davies	W.	Aitles

Pirate spares—McMullen, R. Burke, J. Friday, Klenz, J. R. Friday, Shater, Conley.

Tech spares—Hudson, Dana, Diggons, Wicks, Dickson, Meyer, Kelley.

Morgans.		Ravens.
Scully	G.	Bughman
McSorley	D.	Chalfant
Tyson	D.	Hoel
R. Schhooley	C.	Longnacker
Fowell	W.	D. Thompson
B. Schooley	W.	McKinney

Morgan spares—Battaglio, Dort, Lovett, Jeffries, Brown.

Raven spares—Burke, Livingstone, Culbertson, Haverty, Oliver, L. Thompson, Davis, Montgomery.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Tommy Loughran, who battles Primo Carnera for the world heavyweight title down in Miami, Fla., tomorrow night, hopes he will have something big to be thankful for next Thanksgiving Day, his thirty-second birthday.

Have you noticed that most of the publicity emanating from Florida on the Carnera-Loughran bout has favored Loughran? That's because it's one of the union rules to build up the chances of the challenger for box office reasons and because Loughran always is fancy and good to look upon in both his workouts and in the ring, while Carnera is a very ordinary gymnasium performer.

A new publication of interest to sportsmen is "Fish and Game News of America," the first issue of which has just made its appearance. It's a weekly, published at Greenfield, Mass.

Lieut Huish, of South Atlantic avenue, is the captain of the football team at Carson Long Institute, a cadet school at New Bloomfield, Pa.

Teammates of the late John McGraw on the famous old Baltimore Orioles included such colorful players as Willie Keeler, Dan Brouthers, Wilbert Robinson, Kid Gleason, Joe Kelley and Hughey Jennings—a hardy crew!

True Success Story: Back in 1927 Johnny Allen was a hotel clerk in Stanford, N. C. Paul Krichell, New York Yankees' scout, was a guest. It was a hot night. Allen placed a group of electric fans in Krichell's room and his thoughtfulness led to a conversation, in which Allen confessed he did some pitching for a church league team. Krichell said he'd look him over, did, was impressed and got him a job with a minor league club. Now he's a mound star for the Yankees, virtually wafted into the major leagues on the breeze of those electric fans.

It was a year ago last Sunday that Thomas Yawkey, millionaire, bought the hapless Boston Red Sox—and now look at them!

"Jem Belcher's Last Fight," in Esquire, the magazine, is a corking fight story of the days of bare fists and stout hearts. Other sports articles in this publication have to do with the progress of track and field athletics and the big tournament tennis players.

Mike Moran, former local boxer, now a boxing judge, is being dogged by tough luck these days. Not yet recovered from an automobile crash which cut his face badly, he was stricken with acute appendicitis, from which he is now recovering following an operation in St. Joseph's Hospital, South Side.—HARRY KECK.

M'COSKY AFTER THIRD MEDAL

By TOM BIRKS

If Heidelberg can win its battle with the Cleveland Indians Sunday afternoon in the Western final of the national amateur cup, it will enable its leader, Johnny McCosky, to win his third national amateur soccer medal and become the only player in the country to accomplish the feat.

McClosky has been rated as the finest American-born soccer player from a scientific standpoint. A Heidelberg product, born and raised there, he has been playing with the Green and Gold since 1927.

He played inside left on the team when it won the amateur title in 1927 and 1929. Fans who have watched the clever wizard manipulate the ball find it hard to believe that McCosky did not get the fundamentals of the game from the other side of the water.

Never classed as a goal-getter to be compared with Buff Donnelli, McCosky has blossomed out this season, and has scored as many goals as any other forward in the Keystone League.

Pitt Mat Team Wins Over Tech

Pitt's wrestlers had an easy time of it in tossing Carnegie Tech's intra-mural grapplers about in a match following the Pitt-Tech basketball tussles in the Tartan gymnasium last night. The Panthers won seven of the eight bouts and scored 31 points to 5 for the Skibos. The summary:

115-pound class—Tech forfeited to Pitt as entry was overweight.

125-pound class—Hinchberger, Pitt, defeated Mitcher, Carnegie Tech, by a fall in 8 minutes.

135-pound class—Hill, Carnegie Tech, defeated Penner, Pitt, by a fall in 3 minutes 7 seconds.

145-pound class—Capt. Isley, Pitt, defeated Kreider, Carnegie Tech, by a fall in 6 minutes 59 seconds.

155-pound class—Cox, Pitt, defeated Dryer, Carnegie Tech, by a time advantage of 8 minutes 59 seconds.

165-pound class—Willets, Pitt, defeated Magee, Carnegie Tech, by a time advantage of 7 minutes 30 seconds.

175-pound class—Nicksick, Pitt, defeated Kelly, Carnegie Tech. Kelly defaulted when an injured side forced him to retire.

Heavyweight class—Detzel, Pitt, defeated Forman, Carnegie Tech, by a fall in 4 minutes 55 seconds.

STOCK MARKET TONE STEADY TO FIRM

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Financial markets looked toward the Ides of March today with some degree of complacency and prices generally maintained a steady to firm tone.

Although stocks turned quite dull after an early expansion of activity, the list recorded gains of fractions to around two points. Better Washington news, another upturn in steel and electric power output and a drying up of liquidation helped to brighten the equity picture.

While grains were only a little better than even during the early hours, silver and rubber futures again pointed higher and cotton improved. The dollar moved quietly in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were fairly steady.

Shares of United States Smelting got up 3 points, and Union Pacific and du Pont advanced about 2 each. There was a revival in the amusement issues, with Pathe, Paramount, Warner Brothers and Loew's firming fractionally to around a point. Similar advances were shown by United States Steel, American Smelting, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Can, Santa Fe, New York Central, Armour, United States Industrial Alcohol, Goodyear, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Bethlehem Steel, Western Union and American Telephone. The oils and utilities improved slightly.

Indications that the authors of the stock exchange control bill would agree to modifications bolstered Wall street sentiment, although there were some skeptics who still feared that drastic federal regulation, instead of the desired supervision, would be the outcome.

The silver contingent was given a small thrill by Washington advices that Cuba would be allowed to buy some $20,000,000 of the metal on credit through a proposed new American export bank. It was recalled that the republic last year purchased a similar amount here on a bid from the Chase National Bank. If the new deal goes through, it was assumed that the regular market price would be paid.

Worries over the effect on business of a curtailment of CWA workers were somewhat abated by word that President Roosevelt and his advisors had drawn up a new plan for relief and unemployment which will go into operation as the CWA is gradually liquidated between now and May 1.

The Commerce Department reported a continuation in January of the favorable foreign trade trend of the past several months, with exports up more than $50,000,000 over the corresponding 1933 month.

WHEAT EASY AT CLOSE

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—Awaiting March unofficial domestic crop summaries to be isued tomorrow, grain prices displayed unusual steadiness today, but eased at the last.

Barring some unforseen surprise, the crop summaries were expected to show relatively little change as compared with December 1, when the condition of wheat was figured at around 74 per cent proposed Washington enactments, which would apparently give the Secretary of Agriculture almost unlimited power over production and distribution of agricultural staples aroused keen interest, but in the absence of specific details had little or no immediate market influence.

Wheat closed easy, 3/8@5/8 under yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 1/4 lower, oats 1/8@3/8 down, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents higher.

BUSINESS ARDOR CHILLED BY POLITICIANS

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Business confidence has been needlessly chilled a little by the disposition of politicians to overvalue their own services to society.

Mr. Rukeyser

The high-handed treatment of the airplane industry has been regarded as symbolic of the new hazards to business and investment resulting from the politicians' field day.

...rring references to business likewise tend to dampen ...pirit of enterprise and economic adventure, on which the development of the country in the past has depended.

These inroads on investment and business confidence are especially costly at this juncture when the federal government, under President Roosevelt's admirable two-and-a-half year budget plans, is looking forward to tapering off its own emergency expenditures and hence necessarily is relying on private employers to take up the slack.

LEADERSHIP ESSENTIAL

Wealth creation, on which the material welfare of all of us depends, results from the energy and imagination of inventors, the leadership of practical executives capable of transforming ideas into accomplishments, and the efforts of working men, supplemented by machinery, who toil under the ...tains of industry.

...oud-mouthed, cynical politic... are for the most part tax ...rs, who live in a semi-parasitic way off the product of those ... are gainfully employed in ...ducing goods and services.

The inexperienced, academic ...itic is frequently inclined to re...ard business as a mere mechanical system of production, overlooking the equally important demand side of the equation. Under existing improved technology, the stimulation of demand through productive advertising and creative selling becomes the point of origin of real prosperity.

EDITOR'S VIEW

Alluding to political efforts to discourage the spirit of enterprise, Merle Thorpe, editor, the Nation's Business, points out:

"This birth of ideas and, more important, the development of those ideas into actual use, have been stimulated by the promise of reward to the successful. If these rewards are to be levelled down to the all-inclusive impersonality of the state as the collector and distributor of the people's savings, the danger is that ideas will be correspondingly devalued and the desire to get ahead deadened.

"That thought is variously articulated today. There is a fear that encroachment of profits may discourage business to such a degree that recovery will halt, that socialistic practices will be accepted on the showing of authority rather than by a sober consideration of all the people.

"Would the state—should the state—feel as free to risk tax money on the development of stream-lining as individuals cooperating voluntarily? Would there not at least be a lag, a disheartening delay?"

N.Y. TRIP BEGUN BY MRS. MASSIE

RENO, Nev., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Slipping quietly out of Reno where she had been in a hospital since last Friday night, Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie boarded an eastbound train early today for New York.

The young matron, who was the central figure in the Honolulu attack case of 1932, had been in the hospital since she collapsed Friday following her divorce from Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N.

She left the hospital early this morning and entered a taxicab with George Springmeyer, her Reno attorney, and Mrs. Vida Claywell, formerly of Carmel, Cal., a friend. They drove to Sparks, Nev., where Mrs. Massie boarded an eastbound limited, which left Sparks shortly after 4:30 a. m.

Every effort was made to keep the young woman's departure from Reno secret.

"Woodie" Volner, one of her companions at a dinner party where Mrs. Massie became ill, boarded the same train.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

dear mother cat. It's not right to leave her alone in travail. Always remember that, Dadee. Never leave any one alone in extremity."

The boy didn't laugh. His eyes filled. He said on a gulp: "I'm sorry, mother. I didn't know that."

"Darling, I was fooling, but what I said is true. Remember it."

Thinks of Eyes

She went softly up the wide stairs. There was a little patio between the front and back rooms. She paused to smell the potted violets. They were like Pippin's eyes—burning blue when she was excited; softly purple when she dreamed.

Now the girl's voice reached her. Every night a scene like this went on. Pippin and the youngest boy. It was a little heart-breaking, yet Chickie smiled . . .

"Alright, smarty—see who'll comb your hair from now on! Bluff your father and mother, but I'll teach you manners!"

Yeah—nerts to you!"

Then Pippin rushing from the room—eyes blazing.

"What's the matter, dear? Isn't Bruce behaving?"

"Behaving! You would be balmy! But the world won't put up with a spoiled brat who hasn't a spark of gratitude! The first thing you know the parents in this block won't allow their children to play with him. He called Nellie a 'damn fool' when she told him to come in. All the children heard. You should see the way the Grahams' nurse shook her head."

"Where is he now?"

"In his room. Without a stitch of clothes. Dawdling the last hour since his bath—driving everyone in the place crazy. It's no laughing matter, mother! Nothing cute about profanity in a 9-year-old."

Rages Over Brother

"You're right. I don't seem able to cure him."

"The idea of temporizing with such a habit! If Dad had a patient with an appendix, would he wait till it exploded before operating? No! That's what you do. You haven't the nerve to correct him so that he stays corrected."

"Very difficult to correct a child when he hears adults use 'damn' loudly and freely."

"There you go, temporizing and evading! Dad has a right to be profane if he feels like it! You don't allow Mr. Bruce to have cocktails when you do. I suppose you can't inform him that certain talk is permissible in grown-ups and not in children?"

"But speech is so automatic—a rhythm of the tongue that we pick up by ear."

"Keep on being facetious, mother, and you'll have a nice problem on your hands in a few years. But I'd certainly like to know how long this fresh stage lasts."

"Don't you remember?"

"How should I remember?"

"That's so—you wouldn't. You and Jon went through it together. Well—I think another six months. You and Jon were quite out of it by 10."

Children's Plaints

"Me and Jon! Don't tell me you ever let us get away with murder like that. Any old time I dared sass you back!"

A door opened down the hall. A pair of enormous hazel eyes glinted, then a snub nose and a wide, rippling mouth appeared. Like a flash a small urchin flew down the hall and hid behind his mother. He looked first at Chickie, then at Pippin:

"She thinks she owns me. She thinks I'm going to be her slave and do just what she says because she combs my hair. Well, nerts to you! I can comb it myself."

He stood forth, freckled, scrubbed and scrupulously dressed, his bright hair sopping wet, but slicked back, the water trickling to his clean shirt.

Tears swam in Pippin's eyes. She felt terribly betrayed. She was sure she'd raised her mother's youngest son. She adored him. Now the ingratitude! After all these years of cleaning his fingernails, digging into his ears and tying his shoes.

David came noiselessly up the stairs. He had a swift arm about Pippin's shoulder.

"Hello, dear—glad you're back to normal and helping us raise the children again. Here's a letter you overlooked. Read it and off to the clouds again!"

Pippin took the envelope, grinned and went flying to her room.

Happy Again

From Kevin. Careless and gay, but the first letter he'd ever written her. Excited fingers shook as she pulled out the sheets.

"Little Dear Sweetheart! You looked too darling for words as you waved goodby. You were the last person I saw as we steamed out the bay. I kept looking until you were nothing but a blur. I didn't want to lose you."

Then he told of his trip, the Panama Canal and all his eager plans. He ended with this:

"Don't be too faithless. Years aren't so long till you'll be old too, dear. I've got to find you just the same when I come marching home again. See that I do, won't you, sweetheart?"

With a little happy sob Pippin crushed the letter to her lips.

She went down the hall and seeing her brother, completely forgot her grievance.

"Darling, did you really comb your hair alone? It's marvelous. I forgot to tell you I bought the baseball I promised. It's on my desk."

He grinned, showing all his big new second teeth.

"Not mad any more? Can I have the ball right now? Geegosh, thanks."

"The angel," Pippin murmured and went down the stairs, her eyes and her heart brimming.

JUNIOR PATROL

Cold weather and deep snow is causing much suffering, fellows!

Poor people, especially, are having a hard time of it. When you have plenty to eat, and live in a nice warm house, and have lots of warm coats and clothing to wear, the cold isn't so bad. A fellow feels all pepped up, somehow, and ready to go to work.

But lots of people don't get enough to eat and don't have warm coats to wear. Whatever you can do to help them these cold days is a wonderful thing. You remember, President Roosevelt asked all the Boy Scouts to collect clothing and furniture for the needy. Well, we hope our Junior Patrol members are helping, too.

The terrible wreck Monday night, when a Pullman train on the Pennsylvania Railroad jumped the rails, and the engine and some of the cars plunged off a viaduct into the street, has brought sorrow to many homes.

It goes to show that with all our fine inventions man hasn't perfected his machines yet. There is still much for us to do, and for Junior Patrol members to do when they grow up, to make the world a safer, better place in which to live.

George Blain, Jr., of Pittsburgh, has just written us a note. He says he reads the Junior Patrol every evening. Because he likes it very much he is going to try to get some members.

Another new member, Raymond Mulligan, of 3711 Main street, Homestead Park, writes that he is going to start a big Junior Patrol Club. He says he reads and enjoys the Junior Patrol comic strip, too.

Now here is another letter from Norman and Charles Price, of 1509 Kenberma street, Beechview. They write that they would like to start a club in their neighborhood and if there is one there already they would like to join. We would like you to go ahead and start your own club, fellows. Write and tell us how you get along.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

LANDING OF THE CATHOLIC CAVALIERS (Maryland, 1634)

Sir George (first) Lord Baltimore started (1627) in New Foundland the colony "Avalon," a territory granted to him by King James I (1623). Severity of climate, hostilities of the French caused Sir George to request lands farther south from King Charles I, successor to James I.

This was granted, the colony to be named "Maryland" in honor of the Queen, when Sir George died. His elder son, Cecil, (second) Lord Baltimore, thus became the real founder of Maryland, though he never set foot on it.

Cecil's younger brother, Leonard, landed with about 300 noblemen and laborers to take possession of the land, founding St. Mary on the Chesapeake Bay. Difficulties with the Protestant sections, border troubles with Claiborne (Kent Island), William Penn (Pennsylvania), Virginian settlers, etc., and influence of the upheavals in England (Cromwell-Stuart -William and Mary's regime) account for the rapsodic deprival of and restoration to the Lords Baltimore of Maryland. By the close of the 17th century the Catholics, though founders, were even denied suffrage and worship in public. (U. S. History)

ATHENIAN REJOICINGS AFTER THE NAVAL VICTORY OF SALAMIS (480 B. C.)

The Greek settlements in Asia Minor were subdued by the Lydians, then the Persians in the sixth century B. C. About 500 B. C. the Ionians revolted against Persian yoke, aided in their liberation attempt by Eretrians and Athenians. Darius I, Persian king, wanted to crush Greece, but was defeated (Marathon 490 B. C.). His son Xerxes—though his armies destroyed the abandoned Athens, Delphi, etc., after the heroic stand of the Greeks led by Leonidas at Thermopylae—suffered disaster in the naval battle at Salamis (480 B. C.). Other Persian forces at Plataea and Mycale met similar fate (479 B. C.). Thenceforth Greece's most brilliant period, especially that of Athens, began, lasting to the outbreak of the Peloponnesian Wars in 431 B. C. (World History)

MECHANICAL ANALYSIS OF SOIL

Above left: Soil particles are classified by size. Mechanical analysis is separating particles by size (right). Soil samples are taken by soil auger (center), dried. Procedure: "Place 50 grams soil in bottle, add few drops of ammonia solution, fill 2/3 with water, shake to break up granules. Allow sand, gravel to settle, pour off water with suspended silt and clay. Add water, repeat procedure until water is clear above settled sand, gravel. Wash out gravel, sands into weighed filter paper in funnel. Drain, dry, weigh. Total weight, less weight of filter paper, gives weight of sands and gravel; the difference to original 50 grams is weight of silt and clay. Sift, weigh gravel. Determine percentage of each separate. Particles of highest percentage give name to soil (sandy, clay). Mechanical analysis, besides chemical (for lime, phosphoric acid, potash, etc.) and structure (granular, separate grain) is conclusive to tillage, drainage and crops to which soil is best adapted.

NRA—A FLOAT IN "VICTORY PARADE" (Pittsburgh, Sept., 1933)

The National Industrial Recovery Administration (NIRA or NRA) was created by the 73d Congress (Public Act No. 67) on recommendation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Its purpose is to draft treaties (codes) that substitute team play for unbridled competition in business. Parties to the treaties are employers, workers, consumers. Aims: To put unemployed to work; raise wages; increase standard of living. Terms: Minimum limits for wages; maximum hours; no child labor; no profiteering. Workers may organize and be represented by spokesmen of own selection. Anti-trust law is temporarily suspended. NRA co-operators display Blue Eagle.

Subsidiaries of NRA are: CAB (Consumers Advisory Board) represents consumer at hearings, observes effects, educates consumer; LAB (Labor Advisory Board), represents employes and IAB (Industrial Advisory Board) represents employers; CSB (Central Statistical Board), co-ordinates federal statistical services; NLB (National Labor Board), settles disputes between employer and employes, composed of members of LAB and IAB. COOLING SYSTEM OF AUTOMOBILE ENGINE

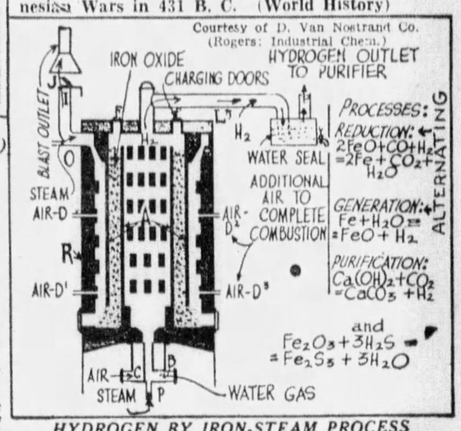
Due to high temperature of fuel combustion (about 2300° F.) in the cylinders these have to be cooled by circulating water. Carried off heat is given to atmosphere through fanned radiator. Thermostat valve opens, by-passes radiator when water is not hot (in winter). Some motors use direct air cooling (separated, fanned, ribbed-jacketed cylinders, no water). (Automobile) (19—III—B)



HYDROGEN BY IRON-STEAM PROCESS

Hydrogen—besides by electrolysis—is manufactured from water by decomposing steam with hot iron. The Messerschmidt hydrogen generator (above) operates on this process.

Iron oxide (FeO) is filled between iron cylinders (A) in fire brick retort (R). Water gas at (B), air at (C) are introduced, the former burns partly, heating the brick checker work and lining; unburned CO reduces iron oxide to iron. Combustion gases are led out through pipe (I) into stack (J). This reduction process lasts about 20 minutes. Some steam is now introduced at (P) to clean out combustion gases. Then hydrogen generation process begins (lasts 15 minutes) by admitting steam at (O)—cleansing steam at (P) closed—which is decomposed by hot iron, giving iron oxide and hydrogen. H2 leaves at (L), is liberated from dust, CO and H2S by water, lime water, iron oxide.

Ready for the Gong

They buzz us that there is going to be war in the old country pretty soon. The boys will not feel well dressed unless they are neatly bandaged.

In order to keep up with the styles they must have their 1934 scars. Also a fragrant spraying of aromatic spirits of corrosive mustard gas from the barber's atomizer.

The next war will come with the spring freshets of good beer. That's how close the wiseacres say it is. It will be a terrific smack for the pacifists who thought they had the thing all packed away and salted down.

We listened to Carrie Chapman Catt on the radio just this past New Year's Day. She has a sweet voice and we feel badly about wising her up.

Carrie said she was in a battle museum and saw all the old instruments of war safe behind glass cases. There was the knout. Also the bow and arrow. The catapult. The knobbed thumperoo and the tomahawk. The spear and the sword. And the blunderbus.

Carrie said they were in the museum because they were outmoded and no longer good form. That was right. And she hoped the day would come when the machine gun, the depth bomb, the poison ray, the poison gas and the mitt grenade would also be in the museum, alongside their murderous ancestors.

And they will be, Miss Carrie. But not until they invent something worse.

The machine gun sent the blunderbus into retirement. And the machine gun will bow out when the scientists think up something better. Or something worse, if you will have it that way, Miss Carrie.

We will not be in the next war. But we will sell them munitions. Why not? Everybody rolls snowballs for the toughest kid to throw.

We will get paid round sums for those munitions. And once again we will have wartime prosperity. They say that is a fals prosperity. But we love it. Who doesn't?

Peace is the minute interval between rounds. We have had 1 years of it now. And the world is chewing its own gums. It wan to go out and bite somebody else.

Let 'em go ahead. We don't care where they advance or wher they retreat, so long as they don't chase 'em past our house.

The P. R. R. Wreck

The Horror Is Emphasized By the Usual Safety Of Railroad Travel

There have been many railroad wrecks with greater loss of life than was sustained in the Pennsylvania's disaster on the North Side Monday night, but few, we venture to say, which have created a more dreadful impression on the people of this community.

The horror is accentuated by the fact that railroad travel, as a rule, is so remarkably safe. It is much safer than riding in automobiles.

Multitudes of persons have passed in railroad cars every day for many years over the very point where the wreck occurred without suffering the slightest mishap. One is ordinarily as free from danger in a railroad train as in one's own home.

It has not always been so. In the early days of railroading the hazard was great and wrecks of frequent occurrence.

Imagine what would have happened if the cars of the wrecked train had been of wood instead of steel. The casualties would have been multiplied. If the wreckage had caught fire, as sometimes happened in the old days, many of the injured would have burned to death.

The theory is advanced that the wreck was caused by the freezing of a switch. But conclusions must be guarded against until the evidence is in.

The Public Service Commission, the Coroner and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company itself no doubt can be depended upon to conduct thorough investigations and to give their findings to the public. Until that is done the wise plan is to suspend judgment.

If there was negligence, there is reason to expect that the person or persons responsible will be held to account.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has had a good safety record in recent years, bearing witness that until Monday night at least it was unceasingly vigilant to prevent accidents to its passengers and trainmen.

If vigilance faltered—if carelessness was to blame for the wreck—condemnation can scarcely be too severe.

But let us first have the facts.

McNair as Spoilsman

The Change in Fire Chiefs Is a Direct Blow at the Merit System.

Citizens who still cherished the hope that Mayor William N. McNair was a champion of the merit system in the municipal service were disillusioned by the appointment of John Heinz as fire chief.

McNair revealed himself as a spoilsman in this move.

Richard L. Smith, deposed as chief to make room for Heinz, has an excellent reputation as a fire fighter. If business considerations ruled in the administration of the city, as they should, he would have been retained.

Heinz is an active Democratic politician, and Smith is not. That was the only reason for the change, and it is not a satisfactory reason.

The Flood Danger

It Is to Be Hoped a Disaster Will Not Be Required to Arouse the Government.

W. S. Brotzman, meteorologist in charge of the Pittsburgh office of the United States Weather Bureau, warns that conditions are ripe for the worst flood since the one in 1907, when high water inundated 1,600 acres and extended to the corner of Sixth street and Liberty avenue.

The thick ice in the rivers and the heavy snow on the hillsides make for danger. A copious rain would cause the streams to burst from their banks.

Mr. Brotzman is no alarmist. Conservative engineers after careful surveys have warned us that Pittsburgh PROBABLY will experience a worse flood than the 1907 inundation unless storage reservoirs are built at the headwaters of the rivers.

The federal government is proceeding very slowly in the building of the protective works.

Heaven grant that a disaster be not required to arouse it to the need!

Not Very Impressive

Beaver County Officials' Offer to Help Investigate Riots Is Rather Amusing.

District Attorney A. B. deCastrique and Sheriff J. O. O'Loughlin, of Beaver County, have offered their help to the Governor's committee investigating the conduct of deputy sheriffs in the labor riots at Ambridge last autumn.

Gov. Pinchot probably will not be very much impressed; nor will anybody be who is conversant with what occurred. The offer to help investigate is indeed rather amusing; for deCastrique was in the vanguard of the deputies' attack.

He is the District Attorney who was roundly denounced by Gov. Pinchot not so long ago for refusing to prosecute the officials responsible for the shanghaiing of a group of Negroes.

The investigation of the Ambridge riots must be made by men with open minds, not by participants in the disorders.

Local History

The Historical Societies Should Co-operate With the Schools in Teaching It.

The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania celebrated with a dinner last night the one hundredth anniversary of its founding.

It begins its second century at an opportune time. There has been a great increase of interest in local history. A splendid opportunity for usefulness is open to the society.

Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, makes an excellent suggestion in this connection. He proposes that the schools shall get in touch with local historical societies, of which there are 65 in Pennsylvania, united in a federation, and ask them to furnish speakers and exhibits to reinforce the history courses as taught from inadequate textbooks.

The Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania no doubt would be glad to co-operate in such an undertaking.

Rescue the Children!

(Copyright, 1934.)

As a minor phase of its emergency activities, the Federal Government has dedicated a portion of its relief funds toward keeping schools open in rural districts.

But the Federal Government must do A GREAT DEAL MORE to rescue education and assure its future.

At the National Conferences on Education in Cleveland, data were submitted showing that—in addition to those previously closed—2,600 schools throughout the country were shut down on January first for lack of funds, with a total of TWENTY-SIX THOUSAND schools doomed to close by April, unless aid be forthcoming.

The educators were informed that $180,000,000 of Federal funds will be necessary to reopen schools in all States affected and keep them open. This is a sum of money far less than the Government has extended for other purposes less vital than education.

Our school children, as Prof. John Dewey has remarked, are "not getting a NEW DEAL, they are getting a RAW DEAL."

And, as this eminent educator has also said, Federal aid to education must be much more than temporary relief.

There must be established A FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION to cope with the national problem, and to do for the school children of America what national Departments of Education are doing for the children of Europe.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—These are days one meets those unfortunates who were built up for the big let down. The $25,000 a year man trying to adjust himself to $35 a week or perhaps no job at all. Pride is scarred but most of them are bravely riding the wavering hope.

They are remindful of blobs of mercury, huddling together to coalesce and pick up speed for a big dash. Then as suddenly separate and glide away in smaller particles. There is no gain-saying many are beaten. For not in American history have so many big shots suffered such cruel setbacks.

Once rooted in vigorous authority, mulched by tendrils of genuflections on every side, they find everybody looking out the window. They sit in anterooms, hat in hand, waiting the inevitable office boy's apologia: "Sorry, but there is nothing today!"

It is tragedy in any niche of life to be without the pay envelope. But the fall is naturally more jolting for those who have climbed highest. And their daze lasts longer. It was O. Henry who observed: "The joy of a high salaried job never compensates for the pain in losing it."

Enthusiasm for the dachshund has swept to Hollywood where such owners include Corinne Griffith, Frank Morgan, the Colins Clements, Joan Crawford and Clarence Brown. In New York until a few years ago the dachshund was seen in the German section of Yorkville only. Sometimes the buffetings of a manuscript are as romantic as the tale it contains. There was a fiction conceit I turned out in a bleak room four flights up and all the way back 18 years ago, the fate of which literally meant food and warmth. It made the rounds of the "pulps" but always came back. Finally it went to the storehouse of other lost dreams—an old trunk. Resurrecting it the other day, I was touched by its clear cry of youthful courage in such contrast to the comic struggle to exist at the time it was written.

There's a charm to the desolation of Broadway between 6 and 7 in the evening. The day's tension relaxes into a small town hiatus. Clerks come to the front door to hang on awning ropes. Taxi drivers roll cigarets, stretch their legs and indulge some curb chaff. Lindy's fills with the early dining crowd—the chorus girls and orchestra musicians. But most cafes reflect an out-of-mealtime sobriety. Pedestrians walk across the street with no awareness of death at each step. Ladies of the evening are cosmetically fresh and alert for the ready dinner buyer. Everywhere the languor of those who seize desperately upon commonplaces to forget for a time—the hard business of living.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Sadness May Be a Sacrament

Lenten days. Whether we be church folk or not, unconsciously our thoughts follow that gallant Figure along the trail that led to Calvary.

The Stations of the Cross—why have they meaning for us all, rich or poor, wise or simple, virtuous or vile? Because we all must take them in our time. The Stations of the Cross are the stations of the soul—all souls—every soul. Sooner or later, each one of us must know Gethsemane . . . be scourged . . . stumble in agony against a load we cannot bear . . . die for the thing we love—

And find our Easter through dark tombs of pain!

I did not know all this once. I hated suffering . . . thought it was horrible, unnecessary . . . regarded it as a personal insult. I felt it walled me off from all that was happy and healthy in life. I resented the isolation . . . pitied myself bitterly.

I still hate suffering; still feel that much of it might and should be avoided. I will not agree that all earth's misery is willed by God. I'm sure that we inflict much of it upon ourselves by our own waywardness and stupidity. Yet, in spite of that, I have grown wiser about pain . . . I've even found that it may be used beautifully.

In the first place I've come to realize that, whatever may lie in the future, suffering is at present the common lot. Nor, with all our skill, do we seem to have decreased its sum total. We have learned how to eliminate certain scourges and hardships that handicapped human life . . . but there are countless new heartaches in their stead. Pain may not be the will of Heaven but, thanks to our own cussedness, it's still going strong on earth.

And so, whether I like it or approve of it, or not, I still must suffer. Nor is it much comfort to endure heroically. Heroism is wonderful for the audience, but generally tough on the performer. I want something more consoling than cold courage when pain comes my way. And I've found it!

Pain will never be easy to bear. But I have discovered that it may be robbed of its worst horrors of isolation and loneliness. I need only observe every life I touch, and I will see suffering there, too. Never a heart that does not walk its Stations of the Cross!

"But it seems hideously selfish to try to comfort your own pain by thinking of how many are suffering even worse pangs!" you cry.

It does, indeed! And I'm not trying to comfort my own pain in that way. It IS hideously selfish to use the pain of others as a "counter irritant."

BUT IT IS WISE AND BEAUTIFUL—HAVING SEEN THAT OTHER PAIN — TO USE YOUR OWN AS A SACRAMENT.

Broken bread . . . spilled wine . . . of these Christ made a Sacrament at the last supper. "This is my body broken for you . . . this is my blood."

But the tears we share may be a sacrament, too!

The loaf we bake for some other woman . . . remembering that dark and desperate hour when our own hands failed . . . the floors we sweep . . . the crying babies we hush.

Even that old, terribly guarded humiliation which we bear to ease another's shame . . . that never-healing wound . . . these, too, may be sacraments!

"My body . . . my blood . . . eat, drink, in remembrance of me."

Old words, droning over my head, as a little child in church. What did they mean? I did not know until life had broken me, too. And then I saw.

It was not a meaningless ritual . . . not even a symbol by which He would keep their remembrance of Him alive. IT WAS THE GREATEST COMFORT HE COULD LEAVE THEM . . .

To eat and drink "in remembrance."

To share laughter and tears, work and play . . . all experience . . . in remembrance of common love and hope and agony. That is our deepest comfort and life's loveliest sacrament.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

These Modern Lovers

Divorce is the doubtful panacea which relieves a woman of the annoyance of wheedling money out of her husband, at home, and gives her a chance to bully alimony out of him in court.

"When you consider the alacrity with which a modern divorcee rushes straight from the courtroom to the altar," says Reno Ruth, "a burned child must positively love the fire!"

Just about when a man is beginning to make up his mind to devote his life to one girl, along comes another girl and changes the whole scenario.

No matter how great a woman's inferiority complex, she never can believe that the day will come when she will resemble her passport photograph.

Most husbands and wives appear to forget that they are merely connected by marriage and not blood relatives who can afford to be insulting or snippy to each other.

This modern theory that a man can love more than one woman at a time is not based on common sense; because love is like the tide—when it flows in one direction, it always ebbs from the other.

No matter how much a man may love his home, there are moments when he longs to "get away from it all" and lead a roving life. The only thing that he never considers is the possibility that his wife may have a touch of the wanderlust too.

Marriage will never get back to its old standing until people stop asking how much money the bridegroom has and begin asking how much brains and ability he has.

A modern bachelor flinches at the thought of matrimony almost as spontaneously as a dog flinches at the sight of a leash.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Are you a wiggler in your theater-seat?

If so, you are a most annoying person.

Usually theater seats are staggered so that it is possible to get a good view of the stage at all times.

But the incessant mover-about makes it necessary for many people seated behind him to change their positions.

And this wiggly sort of person may be counted upon to keep talking to his or her companion, so that it is impossible for others to hear what is spoken on the stage.

To be unable to sit still in a theater is perfect evidence of lack of self-control.

It denotes a weakness that will show itself later in excesses of many different kinds.

This wiggly person reveals himself as the sort of person who is unable to keep his mind centered on the subject requiring close attention.

Don't be so unstable; if you are, certainly do not proclaim it to the world.

No man wants a wife of that sort, and a sensible girl doesn't want that kind of a husband, so SIT STILL, or go home.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

De Vaca in the Wilderness

Eight years the Spanish knight, de Vaca, went,
Preserved most strangely from strang enemies
With stumbling steps across our continent,
Immune from savage stealth and dread disease.
Ships sank beneath him, stormy seas spewed death;
But, stout of heart, he vanquished every ill,
For he was clad in armor wrought of faith
In God, in prayer, and in his own vast will.

It seemed another world he wandered through,
So alien was it to his glamorous
Spain;
This land so cryptic, beautiful and new,
So rich in promise, yet so
brimmed with pain,
And even in age de Vaca felt in dreams
The wild, strange lure of Texas plains and streams.

Human Side of the News

Goering in Germany, Dollfuss in Austria, and Weygand In France, Are Making History

By Edwin C. Hill

THE BEAT of the goosestep rises above the din of the March of Events. France's new government turns away from the riots of Paris, from the consideration of tariffs and war debts and announces that the paramount issue of the day is the saving of Austria from Germany and of its perpetuation as an independent state.

Of course, it is an old Machiavellian custom to divert the mind of an angry people from their own grievances to an international situation—and no doubt, there is something of this in France's moves in the Austro-German situation. But that isn't the whole answer. Riots or no riots in Paris, France has to do something about Central Europe, or else see the breaking down of the ring of iron which she forged about Germany at Versailles.

In the meantime Germany's internal affairs continue to boil. The breach with the Catholic Church and a considerable portion of the Lutheran Church grows wider. The last vestiges of Liberalism in the reich are threatened by Hitler's appointment of Hermann Goering as commander of all the police.

You would probably have to go even farther than the Communist Internationale to find a more ruthless firebrand than this same Hermann Goering, daredevil, peacock, personification of Prussianism and the man who is liable at any time to swallow up the whole nation and Herr Hitler with it. In a year, in his own Prussia he has set up a secret police as terrible as the agents provocateurs of the French Revolution, or the Cheka of the Bolsheviks. They call him a madman, they say he was the one who set fire to the Reichstag.

He flew with Richtofen in the war and took command of the air squadron after Richtofen's death. He was severely wounded in the abortive Hitler revolution in Munich, and today, squat, blond, sandy-haired and in his forties, he struts about in gorgeous uniforms covered with decorations and breathes fire and brimstone at his enemies. Heaven help those who are brave enough, or unfortunate enough, to stand in his way.

Dollfuss Emerging As Dictator

FROM THE ferocity and the carnage of the civil war in Austria her midget Chancellor, Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss, is apparently emerging as the newest Dictator, the youngest, as well as the most diminutive. He is only 4 feet 11 inches tall, this flyweight who has dealt so ruthlessly with the Socialists and is the only man in the world who has made a monkey out of Adolph Hitler.

He has been Chancellor of Austria for two years. He came from peasant people in the hill country along the Danube, and for all of his small size, he is tough and strong. In the war he rose from private to lieutenant, something of a feat in the old Austrian Imperial Army. When he took over the Chancellorship in 1932, because nobody else wanted it, there was a disposition to smile at the midget. But when he declared that he was not going to stand for Germany swallowing Austria whole, he gave his people a great emotional throb. It made them believe again in Austria, as Austria.

The cards were on the table and ever since that day the conflict between Hitler and Dollfuss has terrified the chancelleries of Europe. He has had to fight on many fronts against terrific German propaganda, against disloyalty and against the powerful Socialist party, but there is iron in the little man, and it begins to look as if he may yet save Austria, with the benevolent backing of Mussolini.

Weygand Prominent In France

IN TROUBLED France the outstanding personality is short, bow-legged, curt Maxine Weygand, who is only a naturalized Frenchman and who was born in Belgium. France saved by a Belgian. The royalist movement balked by a man, who, curiously enough, is said to have several quarts of blue, royalist blood in his veins.

During the World War he was the principal lieutenant of Marshal Foch, who said on his death bed:

"If any peril menaces France when I am no longer here, call on Weygand and you can be tranquil."

And when the great insurrection broke out in the streets of Paris and governments were falling and tottering and the republic seemed on its last legs, it was Maxine Weygand, chief of the army, who held his troops loyal to the republic and put down the revolt.

A strong man this Weygand. When the Bolshevik army marched against Poland and drove the Poles back over their own frontiers, it was Weygand who came to the rescue, organized victory and sent the Red legions staggering back toward Moscow. Today more than any other man, he is the real master of France, but seemingly loyal to the republic—a soldier doing his duty.

Nicaraguans Applaud Killing of Sandino

By James T. Williams, Jr.

EVEN IN Nicaragua, Abraham Lincoln's assertion that "public sentiment is everything" appears to apply.

A Managua dispatch declares that public sentiment there and elsewhere throughout Nicaragua approves the action of those officers and men of the Guardia Nacionale who disposed of Sandino and five of his fellow outlaws by turning them over to a firing squad which executed them summarily.

In the files of the Department of State and of the Navy Department are the bitter records of the cowardice and the cruelty with which Sandino and his outlaw band waged guerilla warfare against loyal Nicaraguans and the brave Americans sent to assist them.

And some of these records reveal the revolting details of the mutilation of the bodies of both Nicaraguan and American dead, whom Sandino and his outlaws killed from ambush.

Had President Coolidge remained in the White House another year, Sandino and his less than three hundred outlaws would have been rounded up by Nicaraguan and American armed forces and made to pay the penalty for their crimes.

Sandino Encouraged By Congressmen

MR. COOLIDGE never concealed his contempt for Americans in Congress—and some of them are still there—who actually encouraged Sandino in his atrocious crimes against the people of his own country and against the armed forces of the United States by broadcasting to the world indefensible attacks upon our own defenders with the colors and expatiated publicly upon the alleged exploits of "Gen." Sandino.

Gen. Moncado, afterwards President of Nicaragua, in whose army Sandino served for a time professed the utmost contempt for the bandit, who broke his word of honor to turn in his arms when the revolution ended.

Shortly before his inauguration as president, and after a visit to the United States, Gen. Moncado, in an interview never before published, said:

"During my stay in New York, I found out who was aiding Sandino, encouraging his work, and procuring for him arms and sympathy. The steady communication with the bandit chief was by way of Honduras. And the intermediary in Tegucigalpa was a poet.

"Sandino's chief circle of supporters in the United States and several countries to the south was led by an intimate friend of a leader of the Conservative party in Nicaragua. This friend had been private secretary to this leader during the European War and was a German propagandist. For a time he served as Consul of Nicaragua in New York.

"I found also that Sandino had a brother in New York who was aided by a Costa Rican writer and that a group of pacifists kept in frequent touch with these two by correspondence when the two left the United States for Nicaragua to aid Sandino.

"I don't know where Sandino acquired the title of 'general.' I suppose he gave it to himself. I had no chance to know the alleged military talent of Sandino. There was no fighting in the field where I once assigned him. He never cared for the open field, but preferred the mountain. His art was the ambuscade.

"I do not know a good thing about him. In the battle of Ocotal, he ordered his lieutenants to the combat but he stayed about two miles away giving tremendous orders. He was fond of launching oaths and threats against his enemies but they remain written on paper.

"Only by means of ambuscades have Sandino and his outlaws ever been able to kill or wound the armed forces of the United States."

Congress Should Provide Markers

NOW THAT this outlaw has met at the hands of the loyal Nicaraguans the fate that he richly deserved, and the fate that would have overtaken him in 1929 had Calvin Coolidge remained in the White House another year, Congress has a duty to perform. This is the duty of providing the same marble markers for the graves of our defenders with the colors scattered through Northern Nicaragua that mark the graves of their comrades who are buried in American soil.

These white crosses in Nicaragua will attest the devotion of the American people for their heroic dead and the contempt of the American people for the politicians and publicists who slandered these heroes while they were defending the flag on foreign soil.
